GROVELAND INSCRIPTIONS.

ANCIENT BURIAL GROUND.

THIS old burying ground was the rear portion of the lot of land upon which stood the first meeting house in the East parish of Bradford, now Groveland, and the first person buried in it was Martha, wife of Samuel Hale. The burial occurred in June, 1723. Additions to the lot have been made since. The following are all the inscriptions to be now found in the cemetery bearing dates prior to 1800.

Rev^d Ebenezer Dutch,
who departed this life,
December y^e 29th AD 1794
Ætat. 33.

The memory of the Just is blessed.
Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord that they may rest from their labors.
Willing rather to be absent from the body,
and to be present with the Lord.
This mortal shall put on immortality.

In Memory of
M^{iss} SALLY FOSTER, daughter of Mr Stephen & M^{rs} Rebecca Foster, who died, July, 17th, 1797, Ætat. 22
Why should we start and fear to die?
What tim'rous worms we mortals are!
Death is the gate of endlefs Joy,
And yet we dread to enter there.
Jesus can make a dying bed
Feel soft as downy pillows are
While on his breast I lean my head
And breathe my life out sweetly there.

*Our years are fevinty, through strength fourscore,
That strength soon fails, and we are seen no more.
But oh! how few e'en these short limits reach,
Deaths gloomy ensigns o'er this ground may teach.
By sin came death but Jesus died for men,
was bury'd, and in triumph rose again.
Sinners repent, Christians lift up your eyes,
Fight the good fight, and win the glorious prise.*

Draw near with pious reverence & attend.
Here lies the loving husband's dear remains
The tender father, & the generous friend.*

*O loving husband, tender parent dear,
How great our grief, too much for us to bear,
Can we sustain the loss of such a friend
Without a hope that we shall meet again.*

*Friends here behold the fate of Adams race,
Ruin'd in him & doom'd to sleep in dust;
Yet made alive by Christ, we shall appear Before God's throne in endless friendship there.*

into the Joys of the Lord.

*My flesh shall slumber in the ground,
Till the last trumpet's joyful sound,
Then burst the grave with sweet surprize,
And in my Saviour's Image rise.*

Cease then, my friends, to mourn, bid earth adieu,
Loosen from hence the grasp of fond desire,
Weigh anchor, and some happier clime explore.

THE OLD HOUSE.

BY ANNA M. TUTTLE.

It stands in idle silence by the way,
 The bare old house, neglected, gaunt and gray,
 Low settled in the turf, yet reaching high
 A sagging roof-line, bold against the sky.
 Through its uncurtained windows, dim and small,
 Moonlight and sunlight, both unheeded fall;
 Bleared, sightless eyes, whence life has fled away;
 No hearth fire's gleam, no cheering candle ray Looks forth at night. The doors are barred and dumb,
 The scuttling rats retreat will answering come
 To all who knock, welcome is there no more;
 The fallen plaster on the slanting floor,
 The unsafe stairs and beams, the steps restrain
 When peering eyes invade the still domain.
 Yet how confidently wild roses press
 Against the window their pale loveliness!

SALEM IN 1700. NO. 22.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The map on page 23 represents that part of Salem which is bounded by Essex and English streets, the harbor and a line about midway between Carlton and Turner streets. It is based on actual surveys and title deeds, and is drawn on a scale of two hundred feet to an inch. It shows the location of all houses that were standing there in 1700.

Essex street was called ye street or highway in 1668; ye lane or street, 1670; ye towne street, 1701; the main street, 1711; and Essex street, 1797.

English street, which was originally called English's lane, was laid out by Philip English over land of himself and the owners of the lots shown on the map as bounding on the street about 1697, as far as the present Derby street, the dividing line of the lots having been midway of the street. That part lying southerly of Derby street was laid out by agreement of the adjoining owners, George Crowninshield and Retire Becket, April 13, 1802.*

Becket street is partly modern. The ancient highway shown on the map as running near the water existed from the first settlement of the town by Endecott. That part of Becket court that runs parallel with the water to the foot of English street is the only portion of it that survives. A lane from this highway to the site of the early Becket house was laid out by John Becket and Edmond Bridges before 1681; and the same way is still in use. When John Becket conveyed the Samuel Phippen lot, Sept. 15, 1675, he described it as being bounded easterly by "the highway that shall be backward through the whole breadth "of the grantor's homestead.* July 2, 1675, Mr. Becket called it "a particular highway of ye said Becket."† When Philip Cromwell purchased the lots of the Estate of Edmond Bridges and Abraham Purchase, he bought of Mr. Becket a right of way from the front side of the old Becket house to Essex street in the same place in which it is now located. The deed is dated Feb. 1, 1676, and describes the passage as "a cartway from the comon town street in Salem begining its entrance from ye house and ground of Michael Combes on y^e westerne side, & Thomas Sollas, his house & ground on ye easterne side to run through the land of ye said Beckett, home to the land which was formerly the land of Goodman Harwood & since the land of Jeremiah Boote-man, but now in ye possession of ye said Cromwell."† Mr. Cromwell conveyed the Estate of Edmond Bridges and Abraham Purchase lots to Edmond Bridges Sept. 21, 1680, and the next day he conveyed to him this grant of a right of way.† In Mr. Becket's will, in 1683, he provides that the lane shall be left as "a convenient highway" "for the use of my children to go to the high street." That part of the street from Essex street to Becket court was called the lane or highway in 1681; the lane or highway that leads into ye main street, 1687; ye lane that runs down by William Becket, sr.'s, 1716; a byeway goeing down to Becket's, 1721; Becket's lane, 1726; and a lane leading from ye main street to Mr. John Beckett's, 1734. In 1795, the street was extended to Derby street, and named Cromwell street. It was first called Becket street in 1799, and has ever since been so called. Becket court, or avenue, as it is now called, has been a highway since 1680.

Carlton street was laid out through land formerly of Samuel Carlton in or before 1801, when it was called the new highway, and also the same year Carlton street, which name has ever since distinguished it. The brace marked "b" on the map shows where it begins.

Derby street was laid out in or before 1768. The braces marked "a" show where it runs. It was called a new town way in 1768; a way leading from the Long wharf to the ropewalk, 1770; the new lane, 1781; Fore street, 1787; and Derby street, 1799.

White street was laid out in 1770 by John Turner, esq. It was called in 1770 land of John Turner, esq., left open for a way; and in 1771 a way opened by John Turner, esq. The city laid it out as a public way and named it White street July 8, 1872.

Blaney street was laid out by Joseph Blaney, esq., and accepted as a public way by the town March 11, 1799.

The ancient way by the water was in use until Derby street was laid out about 1768, and some portions were used a few years later, that portion now a part of Becket court being still in use. The ancient way was called the highway against the South harbor in 1664; and the way by the South river or harbor in 1770.

The South river or harbor was called ye harbor in 1659; the South harbor, 1664; Salem harbor, 1669; ye sea, 1676; ye sea or harbor, 1679; the river, 1682; ye harbor or salt water, 1697; the salt water, 1706; and South river, 1741.

The lots of John Swasey, Joseph Swasey, William and Abigail Masury and Thomas and Mary Mascoll, as shown on the map, comprised the original lot of Joseph Swasey.

Samuel Archard of Salem, carpenter, conveyed to John Becket of Salem, shipwright, for sixteen pounds, a house and three acres of land behind it, lying between land of Edward Harnett and Ric: Lambert, April 9, 1655.* This lot included the lots of Mary Webb, Sarah Bartoll, John Becket, Samuel Phippen, John and Mary Marston, Jacob Fowle, Daniel Webb and Estate of Job Hilliard, as shown on the map. The dwelling house stood on the Mary Webb lot on the street, where its site is marked on the map. This land was a field, called, in 1671, "Job's field."†

In the sketches that follow, after 1700, titles and deeds referred to pertain to the houses and land adjoining and not always to the whole lot, the design being, after that date, to give the history of the houses then standing principally.

John Swasey House. Joseph Swasey of Salem, seaman, owned this lot and the lots of Joseph Swasey adjoining, of Abigail Masury, and of Thomas Mascoll, as early as 1658. Upon this lot he built a dwelling house before 1661. He conveyed the house and lot to his son John Swasey of Salem, mariner, April 2, 1689.‡ John Swasey died in 17—; and the house was gone before 1763, when his heirs disposed of the land.

Joseph Swasey Lot. This lot belonged to Joseph Swasey as early as 1658. He died in or before 1709, and his administrator, for fifteen pounds, conveyed the lot to Joshua Tyler of Salem, mariner, May 10, 1717.§

William and Abigail Masury Lot. This lot was owned by Joseph Swasey as early as 1658, and he conveyed it, in consideration of love, to his daughter Abigail Masury and her husband William Masury and to the heirs of the body of Abigail April 21, 1688.|| Mr. Masury died before 1717, and she continued to own the lot in 1734.

Thomas and Mary Mascoll House. This lot was owned by Joseph Swasey as early as 1658, and he conveyed it, in consideration of love, to his daughter Mary Mascoll and her husband Thomas Mascoll of Salem, mariner, April 20, 1688.* Mr. Mascoll built a house on the lot, and they resided there until their deaths, which occurred before March 10, 1721-2, when administration was granted upon his estate. Their house and land were appraised at one hundred pounds. The sons, John and Joseph Mascoll, both of Salem, the first being a mariner, and the second a shipwright, divided the house and lot between them by deeds, Sept. 16, 1729,† though an agreement to the same effect had been made Sept. 8, 1725.‡ John had the easterly end of the house, and Joseph the westerly end.

John Mascoll, for thirty-three pounds, six shillings and eight pence, conveyed his part of the house and land to Samuel Webb of Salem, mariner, Dec. 6, 1754.§ Mr. Webb, for forty-six pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence, conveyed his part of the house and lot to William Crispin of Salem, mariner, Jan. 29, 1765.|| Mr. Crispin, for a similar consideration, conveyed the same estate to David Hilliard of Salem, rope maker, Aug. 6, 1765.¶ Mr. Hilliard died possessed of the lot and the east end of the house and the barn before July 11, 1792, when administration was granted upon his estate. The half of the house and land that belonged to it were then appraised at twenty-one pounds, three shillings and four pence. His administratrix, for one hundred and eighty dollars, conveyed the same estate to John Becket of Salem, gentleman, June 5, 1798; and on the same day and for a similar consideration he conveyed it to widow Martha Rice of Salem (the administratrix of the estate of Mr. Hilliard).*

The westerly half of the house and the remainder of the lot were conveyed by Joseph Mascoll, for one hundred and forty-three pounds, to Zachariah Curtis of Salem, cordwainer, Feb. 11, 1734.* Mr. Curtis died possessed of the lot and westerly end of the house before Sept. 24, 1763, when, for thirteen pounds, six shillings and eight pence, his daughter Abigail Curtis of Salem, spinster, conveyed two-fifths of the same to Clifford Crowninshield of Salem, ropemaker,† Ebenezer Curtis of Salem, latter, son of the deceased, for twenty-six pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence, conveyed three-fifths of the same to Mr. Crowninshield March 30, 1767.‡ Their widowed mother, Abigail Curtis of Salem, joined in each of these deeds.

The house was probably taken down soon after 1798.

Philip English Houses. This lot and the John Carter lot constituted the homestead of William Goose, who was admitted to the church here in 1637, and who died "many years" before 1664, probably in or before 1656. In 1664, his widow was distracted and unable to provide for herself. The town of Salem having been at great expense for her for eight years, complained to the court, which appointed the selectmen administrators of Mr. Goose's estate June 28, 1664. This house (which had been built prior to 1661) and the land were then appraised at fifty pounds. The Goose house was the one located midway of the lot on what is now English street. The administrators of Mr. Goose's estate conveyed the house and eastern half of the entire lot of Mr. Goose to John Clifford of Salem, rope-maker, Feb. 28, 1664-5;§ and the western half of the lot to John Goose of Salem, mariner, on the same day.|| Mr. Goose conveyed his half of the lot to Mr. Clifford July 23, 1666.¶ Mr. Clifford, who had removed to Lynn, conveyed the Goose house and lot to Jacob Allen of Salem, mariner, Sept. 30, 1693;¶ and Mr. Allen conveyed the same estate to Philip English of Salem July 12, 1697.* The house and lot belonged to Mr. English in 1702, but he conveyed it away before 1735, when he died. The next owners that the writer has found for this lot are Joseph Hilliard of Salem, rope maker, and his wife Rachel. They conveyed the lot, the house being gone, to Clifford Crowninshield of Salem, mariner, June 22, 1741.†

That part of this lot included within the dashes at the eastern corner of the lot, which was a part of the Goose lot, and conveyed to John Clifford in 1664-5, was conveyed by Mr. Clifford to George Hacker of Salem, fisherman, Sept. 5, 1674.‡ Mr. Hacker built a house upon the lot; and, for sixty pounds, conveyed the house and lot to Jacob Allen of Salem, cooper, Nov. 7, 1677.§ Mr. Allen, for sixty pounds, conveyed the same estate to Philip English of Salem July 12, 1697.* Mr. English owned the house and land in 1702; and apparently conveyed it to his son Philip English of Salem, innholder, before 1735, when the father died. The house was gone before April 24, 1744, when, for ten pounds, Philip English, the son, conveyed the land to Clifford Crowninshield of Salem, mariner.||

John Carter House. This lot was a part of the William Goose homestead. He probably died possessed of the lot about 1656. The selectmen of Salem were appointed administrators of his estate June 28, 1664; and they conveyed the northeastern part of the estate, which included this lot, to John Clifford of Salem, rope maker, Feb. 28, 1664-5.¶ Mr. Clifford, for thirteen pounds and ten shillings, conveyed this lot to John Elwell of Salem, fisherman, Nov. 12, 1670. Mr. Elwell built a house upon the lot; and, for sixty-eight pounds, conveyed the house and lot to William Pinson of Salem, fisherman, March 14, 1677-8.* Mr. Pinson (or, Pinsent) became a husbandman, and, for fifty pounds, conveyed the house and lot to John Carter of Salem, mariner or fisherman, Nov. 27, 1686.† Mr. Carter died possessed of the house and land just before June 26, 1712, when administration was granted upon his estate. The house and lot were then appraised at fifty pounds. Mr. Carter's children, Mary Gavett, and her husband John Gavett of Salem, mariner, Martha Clemmons and her husband Benjamin Clemmons of Salem, Lydia Crow and her husband Aaron Crow of Salem, and John Carter of Boston, cordwainer, for thirty pounds, conveyed the house and lot to Gilbert Tapley of Salem mariner, Jan. 20, 1726.‡ Mr. Tapley died possessed of the house and lot before June 13, 1757, when administration upon his estate was granted. The house and land with an outhouse were then appraised at thirty pounds. Mr. Tapley's heirs were his daughters, Elizabeth Cox and Mary Henfield, and his deceased son William Tapley's son William. How long the house stood after 1757 is not known, but was probably gone soon after.

John Smith House. This house and lot were owned by John Smith before 1661; and it was in the possession of "widow Smith" in 1664 and 1693. John Smith owned it in 1697 and 1702, and died possessed of the estate about 1750. The house was gone before Aug. 28, 1756, when his children, Samuel Smith of Salem, fisherman, widow Mary Trask and widow Elizabeth Remnant, both of Newbury, for eight pounds, conveyed the lot to Clifford Crowninshield of Salem, rope-maker, Aug. 28, 1756.§

William Becket House. This house and lot were owned by John Becket as early as 1671. He died Nov. 26, 1683, at the age of fifty-seven, having devised the house and lot to his wife Margaret for her life, and then to his son William Becket. William Becket lived here and died possessed of the house and lot Nov. 10, 1723, aged fifty-four. His estate was divided among his children in 1732. The eastern lower room of the dwelling house, the inner cellar, and the western half of the flats, wharf and building yard were assigned to the widow as her dower, and the remainder of the house, barn and land were assigned to his son Retire Becket. In 1735, the dower portion was assigned to the deceased's son John Becket, his mother having died, probably. Mr. Becket evidently purchased the interest of the heirs of Retire Becket, who had died in 1734. John Becket died possessed of the house and lot in 1763, having devised the estate to his wife Susannah Becket. She survived him, and, March 15, 1769, conveyed the western half of the house and that part of the lot and an undivided half of the eastern half of the house and lot to her son John Becket of Salem, shipwright.* Mr. Becket became possessed of the remaining fourth part of the house and lot, and probably conveyed the house and land around it to his son Capt. John Becket of Salem, boat builder, in 177-. Mr. Becket died in 1804, having in his will, devised the estate to his wife Sarah during the minority of his children, and the easterly end of the house for her life. He also provided that his son John Becket should have the house and lot after the interest of his mother ceased, at its value; and in case he refused it, the latter's brother David should have the same privilege. John Becket took the house and lot. He died in 1816; and his heirs conveyed the house and land around it to Stephen Gauss of Salem, cooper, by five deeds, as follows: From John I. Beckett, carpenter, Rebecca C. Beckett and Priscilla T. Beckett, singlewomen, all of Boston, and widow Mary Elizabeth Brown of Andover, $\frac{4}{21}$, Nov. 1, 1853;† from Samuel Cook, master-mariner, and Elizabeth Becket of Boston, $\frac{2}{3}$, Nov. 1, 1853;* from William T. Beckett of New York city, $\frac{1}{21}$, Feb. 21, 1854;‡ from Edward Sampson of Salem, master-mariner, and wife Ellen M., mother and only heir of Miss Ellen Beckett, deceased, by her former husband David Beckett, deceased, $\frac{1}{21}$, Sept. 7, 1854;§ and from Joseph Beckett of Boston, mariner, $\frac{1}{21}$, Nov. 9, 1854.§ Mr. Gauss died April 15, 1891; and his children, John D. H. Gauss, Mary P., wife of William F. Powars, Martha K. Gauss, all of Salem, and Harry C. Gauss of Oil City, Pa., conveyed the house and land around it to James Roche of Salem May 26, 1891.¶ Mr. Roche conveyed the estate to Louis Dembosky of Salem Aug. 22, 1902;¶ and on the same day Mr. Dembosky conveyed it to Wecinty Hajnoski of Salem. A picture of this ancient house as it now appears is the frontispiece of this number of The Antiquarian.

Hannah Sterns Lot. This lot was a part of the estate of John Becket as early as 1671, and he died Nov. 26, 1683. His widow, Margaret Becket, subsequently married Philip Cromwell; and as widow and executrix of Mr. Becket, she conveyed this and the Joseph Mascoll lot, in consideration of love, to her daughter Hannah Sterns, wife of Isaac Sterns of Salem, March 26, 1687.†† The title remained in her and her children until 1721. Mr. Sterns died in 1692.

Joseph Lord Lot. This lot was a portion of the estate of John Becket as early as 1671, and he died Nov. 26, 1683. His widow Margaret subsequently married Philip Cromwell, and as widow and executrix of Mr. Becket she conveyed this and the Hannah Sterns lot, in consideration of love, to her daughter Hannah Sterns, wife of Isaac Sterns of Salem, glazier, March 26, 1687.* Mr. Sterns, in whose name the title stood, conveyed the lot to Joseph Lord of Salem, mariner, March 29, 1687;† and Mr. Lord, who had removed to Boston, for eleven pounds, conveyed it to Thomas Mascoll of Salem, mariner, May 10, 1700.‡

Mary Earthy Lot. Edward Harnet of Salem, tailor, and wife Eunice owned this land as early as 1655, the dwelling house and land constituting his homestead, and conveyed the estate to Thomas Solas of Salem July 20, 1658.§ The consideration of thirteen pounds was payable in English goods at Mr. William Brown's shop. Mr. Solas (also, Salloes and Sallowes) died in 1663, possessed of the estate. The house and lot were then appraised at sixty pounds. In the house were mentioned a parlor and hall. The estate descended to the only surviving child, Mary, wife of John Earthy of Salem, mariner; and the house was probably gone before 1700. Mrs. Earthy, (also, Arthey) died before Aug. 4, 1711, when her only surviving children, Mary Earthy and Anne Earthy, singlewomen, for forty-five pounds, conveyed the lot to Benjamin Gerrish of Salem, merchant.||

Jacob Fowle House. Samuel Archard of Salem, carpenter, for sixteen pounds, conveyed to John Becket of Salem, shipwright the dwelling house and three acres of land behind it April 9, 1655.¶ Jeremiah Bootman of Salem, fisherman, owned this house and lot Aug. 13, 1668, when, for fifty-five pounds, he conveyed the same, "being the dwelling house wherein I now live," to Michael Coombes of Salem. Mr. Coombes owned it as late as 1681; but no conveyance from him has been found. Jacob Fowle of Marblehead, sail-maker, owned the house and lot March 11, 1701, when, for thirty-five pounds, he conveyed the estate to John

Carter of Salem, shoreman.* Mr. Carter became a mariner, and died in 1712, possessed of the house and lot, which were appraised in the inventory of his estate at eighty pounds. Sarah Carter, his widow and administrator, for one hundred and fifteen pounds, conveyed the house, lean-to, and land, where she then dwelt, to Daniel Bray of Salem, mariner, July 14, 1713.† Mr. Bray died possessed of the estate Dec. —, 1717. In his will, he devised the estate to his wife, Hannah Bray, for the period of her widowhood, and then to his children. William Mansfield of Salem, fisherman, and wife Hannah, daughter of the deceased, for thirteen pounds, six shillings and eight pence, conveyed her fourth interest in the house and land, the widow having deceased probably, to her three sisters, Eunice Stevens and Elizabeth Ingersoll, widows, and Priscilla Bray, spinster, all of Salem, Jan. 8, 1757.‡ The three sisters made partition of the house and land around it May 17, 1768, the northerly half of the house and land next the street being assigned to Eunice Stevens and the southerly end to Elizabeth Ingersoll.§ The house stood end to the street, and the front door was on the western side in the middle. Mrs. Stevens removed to Windham, Me., and died before July 14, 1803, when her executor, for five hundred and ten dollars, conveyed her half of the house and land around it to Solomon Lufkin of Salem, housewright.|| Mr. Lufkin, for a similar consideration, conveyed the same estate to Thomas Barker of Windham, Me., yeoman, Sept. 24, 1803.¶ Mr. Barker died before Aug. 8, 1815, when his daughter Polly, wife of Robert Wier (formerly widow of — Smith) of Windham, Me., yeoman, conveyed her interest in the estate to Tyng Smith of Windham, Me., yeoman.¶ Another daughter of Mr. Barker, widow Eunice Gallison of Windham, Me., and Tyng Smith, then of Minot, Me., clothier, conveyed this part of the house and land around it to widow Mary Wright of Salem April 14, 1817.*

Mrs. Ingersoll died Aug. 5, 1768, possessed of the southerly half of the house and land about it, having in her will devised her estate to her sons John and Samuel Ingersoll. John Ingersoll apparently died young soon after his mother, and Samuel Ingersoll, who was a mariner, and lived in Salem, conveyed this end of the house and land around it to Edmund Kimball of Salem, mariner, Aug. 31, 1782.† Mr. Kimball was drowned in the West Indies March 28, 1789, at the age of thirty-seven. His son Edmund Kimball of Boston, mariner, conveyed his interest in this part of the house and land to his mother, Eunice Heaney of Boston (she having remarried after the death of Mr. Kimball), widow, Feb. 14, 1793.‡ His son Oliver Kimball of Boston, mariner, conveyed his interest to his mother Jan. 17, 1803.§ Joseph Olain of Boston, mariner, and his wife Abigail, daughter of the deceased Edmund Kimball, conveyed her interest in the estate to her mother Jan. 22, 1803.§ Mrs. Heaney conveyed this half of the house and land around it to John Peirce, jr., of Salem, blacksmith, May 10, 1803.¶ Mr. Peirce conveyed the same estate to Mrs. Wright, who subsequently owned the northerly end of the house and land, May 20, 1805.¶ Mrs. Wright died in 1819, having devised her real estate to her sister Sarah, wife of John Barr of Salem, merchant, and Betsey Allen of Salem, singlewoman. The house was probably removed by these devisees immediately.

Mary Webb Lot. This was a part of the lot of John Becket very early. A house stood on this lot in which the widow Hollingworth lived in 1661, 1668 and 1671. Mr. Becket conveyed the lot to his daughter Mary Becket in 1675. She married Daniel Webb of Salem, mariner, in 1675, and owned the lot in 1700, when the house was gone.

Daniel Webb House. That part of this lot lying between the dashes, of eighteen feet in width, belonged to Richard Lambert in 1655, and to Job Hilliard in 1667. Mr. Hilliard, for twelve pounds (seven pounds for the land and five for the barn), conveyed the land and barn thereon to Thomas Maule of Salem, tailor, Aug. 7, 1669.* That part of the lot west of the western dashes also belonged to Mr. Hilliard, and he died possessed of it in 1670. Mary Hilliard, his widow and administratrix, conveyed this strip of five feet in width to Mr. Maule Oct. 20, 1670.† On these two lots, together measuring 71x23 feet, Mr. Maule built a dwelling house, and conveyed the house and land to Samuel Pickworth of Salem, carpenter, being "all y^t his dwelling house newly built," Aug. 14, 1671.‡

That part of the lot lying east of the eastern dashes was six or seven feet in width, and was conveyed by Mr. Becket, who had owned it as a part of his large lot for many years, to Mr. Maule March 3, 1672;§ and Mr. Maule conveyed it to Mr. Pickworth probably soon after.

Mr. Pickworth, for forty-five pounds sterling, conveyed the house and land around it to John Turner of Salem, mariner, Aug. 30, 1673.¶ Mr. Turner died in 1680, and Elizabeth Turner, his widow and administratrix, for fifty pounds, conveyed the house and lot to Daniel Webb of Salem, mariner, Jan. 1, 1682-3.¶ Mr. and Mrs. Webb died before 1722; and the estate descended to their children, John, Perez, Mary, Daniel, Elizabeth and Margaret Webb. Perez Webb was of Salem, ship carpenter and seaman, and for ten shillings, conveyed his interest in the estate to his brother Daniel Webb of Salem, mariner, April 7, 1722.* Probably the daughters released their interest in this estate to their brother Daniel at about the same time. This estate continued in the Webb name, and the house probably stood until Carlton street was laid out.

John and Mary Marston Lot. This was a part of the land of John Becket of Salem, shipwright. For fifteen pounds, he conveyed this lot to John Robinson of Salem, tailor, July 2, 1675.† Mr. Robinson, for seventeen pounds, conveyed it to Habakuck Turner of Salem, mariner, Aug. 17, 1681.‡ Mr. Turner died in 1685, possessed of this lot, which was then appraised at the price he paid for it. His widow Mary married, secondly, Dea. John Marston of Salem, house carpenter, and to them Mr. Turner's son Robert Turner of Salem conveyed his interest in the premises Aug. 4, 1693.§ Mr. and Mrs. Marston, for twenty-five pounds, conveyed the lot to Benjamin Phippen of Salem, fisherman, Jan. 22, 1717.¶

Samuel Phippen Lot. This was a part of the John Becket land, and he conveyed this lot, for twenty-five pounds and five shillings, to Samuel Phippen of Salem, block maker, Sept. 15, 1675,† and Mr. Phippen died in the winter of 1717-8, possessed of this lot. The lot was appraised in 1718 at thirty-five pounds and in 1733 at fifty pounds.

John Becket Lot. This lot was a part of the land of John Becket; and he died in 1683, possessed of it. In his will he devised this lot to his son John Becket of Salem, shipwright, who, for fifty pounds, conveyed it to John Starnes of Salem, tailor, Aug. 2, 1716.¶

Sarah Bartoll Lot. This was a part of the John Becket lot, of which he died possessed in 1683. In his will he devised this lot to his daughter Sarah, wife of Robert Bartoll of Marblehead. She owned it until after 1700.

Mary Webb Lot. This was a part of the lot of John Becket who died in 1683, having devised this portion to his daughter Mary, wife of Daniel Webb of Salem. She owned it in 1700.

Estate of Job Hilliard House. This lot was probably a part of the land of Richard Lambert in 1655. In 1667, it belonged to Job Hilliard of Salem, mariner. He lived in Salem as early as 1653, and died in March, 1669-70, without a will. There was then a house upon the land, and the estate was appraised at seventy pounds. The house was almost worthless when Mr. Hilliard's surviving children, Job Hilliard of Charlestown, mariner, widow Sarah Connaway of Boston, John Hooper of Marblehead, fisherman, and wife Abigail, for twenty-four pounds, conveyed the lot and housing to Peter Henderson, sr., of Salem, mariner, May 9, 1701.* Mrs. Hilliard, the widow, married, secondly, William West, and probably lived here until her death. The house disappeared soon after the purchase by Mr. Henderson.

Samuel and Eunice Browne House. This lot belonged to Joseph Grafton of Salem, mariner, in 1664. It was principally salt marsh. A house was built upon it after 1661. Mr. Grafton, in consideration of love, conveyed the estate to his son Nathaniel Grafton of Salem, mariner, Sept. 23, 1667.† Nathaniel Grafton died at the Barbadoes Feb. 11, 1670; and his widow (?) Elizabeth married Thomas Skinner of Boston, baker, before May 1, 1679, when she and Mr. Skinner, for one hundred and forty pounds, conveyed the house and land to John Turner of Salem, merchant.‡ Mr. Turner died the next year, possessed of the house and lot, which were then appraised at one hundred and forty pounds. The estate passed to his son John Turner of Salem, who died in 1692, when the house and lot were again inventoried at the same value. A deed is on record, in which Dr. William Hewes of Boston and wife Elizabeth, and Thomas Jackson of Boston, merchant, and wife Priscilla, the only surviving children of Nathaniel Grafton, for fifty pounds, release the estate to John Turner of Salem, merchant, June 25, 1695.* In the division of the estate of Mr. Turner, made March 22, 1696-7, this house and land were assigned to Samuel Browne of Salem, merchant, for his wife Eunice, daughter of the deceased; and on the same day the administrator of the estate, and grantee under deed last above mentioned, gave a deed of the same to Mr. and Mrs. Browne.* The house was standing in 1702, and probably some years later, it remaining in the Browne family as long as it stood.

Samuel Browne Lot. This was a part of the lot of Henry Harrod, who died in February, 1663-4, leaving a nuncupative will, in which he devised his land to his kinswoman Jane, wife of Richard Flinder of Salem, mariner. Mr. Flinder, for ten pounds, conveyed this lot of upland and marsh to Mr. Samuel Browne of Salem, merchant, April 8, 1697.† Mr. Flinder's son John Flinder released the land to Mr. Browne Nov. 2, 1698.‡ Mr. Browne owned it several years.

Richard Flinder House. This lot was a part of the estate of Henry Harrod, who died in February, 1663-4, leaving a nuncupative will, in which he devised his real estate to his kinswoman,§ Jane, wife of Richard Flinder. Mr. and Mrs. Flinder lived here. She probably died before 1700; and he married, secondly, Mary —, who survived him. In his will Mr. Flinder devised his estate to his wife Mary and his daughter Mary, the latter being young. He died in the autumn of 1707. The inventory of his estate describes the property as follows: "a dwelling house and small barn and about an acre and three quarters of and : part of it orchyard." The estate was then appraised at one hundred and thirty pounds. The house was built before 1661. Daniel Webb, mariner, and John Becket and William Becket, shipwrights, all of Salem, testified, Feb. 5, 1712-3, "that being next or nigh neighbours vnto Richard Flinder late of Salem Deceased that to their certaine knowledg y^e aforesaid Richard flinder in his life time & his wife and daughter Since his death haue peaceably enjoyed y^e homestead which he dyed possest off for vpwards of Thirty yeares last past which homestead confists of a dwelling house & about Two acres of land being An Orchard & garden fenc't in, & is Situate in y^e Towne, ship of Salem aforesaid and is now bounded in manner following Southeasterly with y^e Harbour or Salt Water and westerly with y^e land of Col^o Samuel Browne Esq^r which he had in right of his wife m^{rs} Eunice Turner Deceaf't Northerly with y^e land of Daniel Webb & Easterly partly with y^e land of Abraham Purchase," etc.* Mary Flinder, the daughter, married Dr. Sabastian Hendrick Schwietzer of Salem before April 12, 1716, when they mortgaged the house and land.† Mrs. Schwietzer died before April 21, 1718, when administration was granted upon her estate. The administrators of her estate for seventy-five pounds, conveyed the house and lot with the orchard, to Abraham Purchase of Salem, anchor-smith, Sept. 29, 1719.‡ Mr. Purchase died possessed of the house and lot before Aug. 9, 1724, when administration was granted upon his estate. The house was gone before 1735, when the estate was divided.

Abraham Purchase House and Estate of Edmond Bridges Lot. This house and lot belonged to Henry Harrod very early. He died in February, 1663-4, possessed of the estate. His widow and administratrix, Elizabeth Harrod, and the selectmen of Salem, by order of court, for her use, conveyed the house and this and the Estate of Edmund Bridges lot to Jeremiah Butman of Salem, fisherman, Nov. 1, 1669.* Mr. Butman (or Bootman) apparently conveyed the house and upper end of this lot to John Beckett in or before 1673; and the balance of the lot to Philip Cromwell of Salem, butcher, July 11, 1673.† Mr. Cromwell conveyed the land he had thus procured to Edmond Bridges of Salem, blacksmith, Sept. 21, 1680.‡ Mr. Bridges gave by deed to his eldest son Edmond Bridges, in consideration of the latter's marriage with Elizabeth, daughter of Richard Croade, the northern half of this lot (said half being shown on the map as the Estate of Edmond Bridges lot), and also for a highway to the water side and grantor's wharf, the grantor agreeing to build the grantee a dwelling house upon said land, with a leanto and cellar, of the same dimensions as grantor's, also a blacksmith's shop for his trade and supplied with tools and materials, April 2, 1681.§ Both son and father died the next year before the buildings that were promised had been constructed. This part of the lot was then appraised at twenty-five pounds. The county court settled this lot upon Elizabeth Bridges, widow of the son Edmond Bridges. She married, secondly, — Gillman of Exeter, N. H., and, for ten pounds, conveyed the lot to John Beckett, jr., of Salem, shipwright, March 10, 1714-5.¶ The remainder of the lot (being the Abraham Purchase lot) was conveyed by Edmond Bridges, sr., with the dwelling house, shop and wharf he had built thereon immediately after his purchase of the lot in 1680, for one hundred and sixty pounds, to widow Elizabeth Turner of Salem, April 12, 1682.¶ The title passed to John Turner of Salem, merchant, before Oct. 28, 1699, when, for one hundred and seven pounds, he conveyed the land and house, shop and wharf to William Beckett of Salem, shipwright.* Mr. Beckett conveyed the same estate to Abraham Purchase of Salem, blacksmith, Nov. 1, 1699.† Mr. Purchase died before Aug. 9, 1724, when administration was granted upon his estate. The estate was divided in 1735; and the "old house," barn and wharf and southerly half of the land were assigned to Ruth Purchase, the widow of the deceased, as her dower. She was living in 1748, and the house was gone before 1763.

ANSWERS.

43. The mother of Lydia Peabody, baptized in 1640, daughter of Lt. Francis Peabody of Topsfield, has been generally given as Mary Foster, widow of Daniel Wood. This widow Wood was the second wife of Francis Peabody and mother of only a part of his children. Daniel Wood died in 1648, as near as we can get any clue from his inventory. When Francis Peabody sold his estate in Hampton to come to Topsfield he still had his first wife Lydia, and she was the mother of the elder children. In The Antiquarian, volume VIII., page 6, in the files of the Ipswich court, in 1645, Lydia Peabody is a witness with Sarah Perkins, wife of Isaac Perkins, to the unneighborly feelings of Eunice Cole. Perkins, Peabody and Cole lived on adjoining estates in Hampton. See Dow's History of Hampton, N.H.—Charlotte H. Abbott, Andover, Mass.

325. Benjamin Meacom who married Nancy Webster Aug. 10, 1795, was born in Beverly Sept. 25, 1772, his parents being Robert and Elizabeth (Robinson) Meacom of Beverly. Robert Meacom was son of Robert Meacom of Beverly, yeoman, and died before his father. Robert Meacham, sr., died in 1777, his will, dated Jan. 25, 1775, being proved July 7, 1777. In this will he bequeaths to Benjamin Meacham, minor son of my son Robert Meacham of Beverly, yeoman, deceased. Benjamin Meacom's mother was Elizabeth Robinson of Boxford, and his parents were published in order to marriage Nov. 14, 1762. Benjamin Meacom was a blacksmith and lived in Andover in 1796 and 1801.—Ed.

APPAREL OF THE FIRST SETTLERS.

THE first reference to the clothing of the settlers of this colony is the list of apparel provided in 1629 for one hundred men who were to be sent here by the Massachusetts Bay Company. Four hundred pairs of shoes, three hundred pairs of stockings and ten dozen pairs of Norwich garters were included. Of the stockings two hundred pairs were to be of Irish make and the remainder knit. The knit stockings were worth about twice as much as the Irish. The shoes were probably made of leather, much as they have been in recent times, with leather soles and the uppers seamed. There were, also, four hundred shirts; one hundred suits of doublets and hose, made of leather, lined with "oiled skin leather," and fastened with hooks and eyes; one hundred suits of Northern "dussens," or Hampshire kersies, lined, the hose with skins, the doublets with linen; and a number of suits of Gilford or Gedleyman kersies. The doublet was a sort of bloomer, a short skirt, with a waist and sleeves. Its name arose from the fact that it lay in folds over the larger part of the person it covered. The hose were long, reaching to the knees or higher, and lined with skins for warmth and strength. There were four hundred bands, three hundred of them being plain falling bands. Bands were collars, sometimes prepared with wire and stiffened with starch, that they might stand out horizontally, and usually held by a cord and tassel at the neck. They were generally worn by our first settlers. There were, also, one hundred green cotton waistcoats bound with red tape; and, also, one hundred leather girdles. The girdles were worn to keep the doublet close to the body, probably, at first. There were, also, one hundred Monmouth caps, and five hundred red knit milled caps. Caps at that time were made of woolen, cotton, worsted, velvet, silk and fur. The Monmouth caps were so called from the place where they were made, and were worth about five times as much as those that were knit. A milled cap was one knit from double-twisted yarn, and of course was thicker and warmer than those knit from a single thread. There were, also, one hundred black hats, lined in the brow with leather. Hats were generally made of wool. The first settlers also had mandilions, fastened with hooks and eyes. A mandilion was a short loose outward wrap resembling a long cape or short cloak and without sleeves. The name was derived from the Italian word mandilion, the name of the Italians' outside loose garment. There were, also, sixteen dozens of gloves, twelve dozens of calf's leather, two dozens of tanned sheep's leather and two dozens of kid.

The dress of the women as well as of the men was of dark shades of color, though in cut and other ways it resembled the apparel of those less Puritanical.

Within five years thereafter the general court considered that the colonists were too extravagant in adopting new styles of dress and wearing silver, gold and silk lace, girdles, hatbands, embroidered or needlework caps, bands and rayles, ruffs and beaver hats; and in having more than one slash cut in each sleeve and one in the back. This slashwork consisted of long narrow openings made to show the bright colored inside garment. In the fall of 1634, the court passed the following law:—

“The Court, takeing into consideracon the greate, supfluous, & vnnecessary expences occaconed by reason of some newe & imodest fashions, as also the ordinary weareing of silver, golde, & silke laces, girdles, hatbands, &c, hath therefore ordered that noe pson, either man or woman, shall hereafter make or buy any appell, either wollen, silke, or linnen, with any lace on it, siluer, golde, silke, or thread, vnder the penalty of forfecture of such cloathes, &c.

“Also, that noe pson, either man or woman, shall make or buy any slashed cloathes, other than one slashe in each sleeue, and another in the backe; also, all cuttworks, imbroidered or needle worke capps, bands, & rayles, are forbidden hereafter to be made & worne, vnder the aforesaid penalty; also, all golde or silver girdles, hattbands, belts, ruffs, beav^r hatts, are prohibited to be bought & worne hereafter, vuder the aforesaid penalty, &c.

“Moreouer, it is agreed, if any man shall iudge the weareing of any the forenamed pticulars, newe fashions, or long haire, or any thing of the like nature, to be vncomely, or piudiciall to the comon good, & the pty offending reforme not the same vpon notice giuen him, that then the nexte Assistant, being informed thereof, shall haue power to binde the pty soe offending to answer it att the nexte Court, if the case soe requires; provided & it is the meaneing of the Court that men & women shall haue liberty to weare out such appell as they are nowe proveded of, (except the imoderate greate sleeves, slashed appell, imoderate greate rayles, longe wings, &c:) this order to take place a fortnight after the publishing thereof.”*

In October, 1636, an additional law was passed, as follows:—

“That no pson after one month, shall make or sell any bone lace, or other lace, to bee worne vpon any garment or linnen, vpon paine of 5 sh^s the yard for every yard of such lace so made or sould, or set on; neith^r shall any taylor^r set any lace vpon any garment, vpon payne of x^s for every offence; pvided that binding or small edging laces may bee vsed vpon garments or linnen.”*

Sept. 9, 1639, the following law was passed by the general court:—

“Whereas there is much complant of the excessive wearing of lace, & other superfluties tending to little vse or benefit, but to the nourishing of pride & exhausting of mens estates, & also of evill example to others, it is therefore ordered by this Court, & decreed, that henceforward no person whatsoever shall psume to buy or sell, wthin this iurisdiction, any manner of lace, to bee worne or vsed wthin o^r limits.

“And that no taylor^r or any other person whatsoever, shall hereafter set any lace or points vpon any garments, either linnen, wollen, or any other wearing cloathes whatsoever, & that no pson hereafter shalbee employed in making of any manner of lace, but such as they shall sell to such persons as shall & will transport the same out of this iurisdiction, who, in such case shall have liberty to buy the same: And that hereafter no garment shalbee made wth short sleeues, whereby the nakedness of the arme may bee discovered in the wearing thereof; & such as have garments already made wth short sleeves shall not hereafter were the same, vnless they cover their armes to the wrist wth linnen, or otherwise: And that hereafter no person whatsoever shall make any garment for weomen, or any of their sex, wth sleeves more than halfe an elle wide in the widest place thereof, & so proportionable for bigger or smaller persons.

“And for psent reformation of imoderate great sleeues, & some other superfluties, wth may easily bee redressed wthout much piudice, or the spoile of garments, as imoderate great breches, knots of ryban, broad shoulder bands, & rayles, silk rasers, double ruffles, & cuffes, &c ;—

“And whereas some have beene greived that such excesses were pented to the Courte, w^{ch} concerned the members of churches, before the parties had bene dealt wth at hoame, intimating therby that the churches would (vpon notice of those abuses in apparell) haue taken such course as would have reformed their members, & so have pvented the trouble of the Courte ;—

“This Court hath, therefore, thought fitt (in the great confidence it hath of the care & faithfulness of the churches) to stay all pceedings, vpon the said pntments, in expectation that the officers & members of all the churches, haveing now cleare knowledg, both of the said disorders in apparrell, & the resolution of the Court to attaine a generall reformation, will speedily & effectually pceede against all offenders in this kind, & that they will also (from observation of o^r pness to follow new fashions, & to fall to excessive costliness in attire) keepe the more strict watch over all sorts for time to come ; & this Court doth hearby intimate to all whom it may concerne, (of what quality or estate soever they may bee,) that all such persons as, after all these admonitions & forbearances, shall obstinately persist in their excesses in this kind, shalbee looket at as contemnners of authority, & regardles of the publike weale, & must expect to bee pceeded against by the strictest course of iustice, as their offences shall deserve.

“It is referred to the care of all those of the late grandiury men, & others who shall succeed, or any others, to admonish all offenders in their severall townes, as they shall have occation & opportunity.”*

The passage of these laws as an expression of the opinion of the general court upon the subject of extravagance in dress was about all that they amounted to. The church, apparently, did not take kindly to the jurisdiction and office given it by the civil authority ; and Nov. 13, 1644, “It is ordered, that all those former ord^{rs} made about apparrell & lace are hereby repealed.”*

The inventories of the personal property of those persons in Essex county whose estates were early settled give evidence that our first settlers were far from a mean condition in respect to their dress.

In the inventory of the estate of John Goffe of Newbury, who died in 1641, are mentioned one purple cloth suit, doublet and hose ; one short coat ; one large blue coat ; one large white coat ; two pairs lead colored breeches ; one pair drawers ; one green doublet ; one cloth doublet ; one leather doublet ; three pairs of shoes ; one pair of boots ; two pairs of leather stockings ; one pair woollen stockings ; two hats ; one cloth cap ; etc.

In the inventory of the estate of John Mattocks, in 1644, is included an old gray short coat ; several suits ; a pair of knit stockings ; a pair of cloth stockings ; a pair russet boots ; two pairs of shoes ; an old hat ; etc. ; and he was a poor man.

In the inventory of the estate of Robert Lewis, who died in 1643, apparently poor, are named “his best clothes,” valued at sixteen shillings ; an old hat ; an old stuff doublet ; two cotton waistcoats ; a pair of cotton breeches ; two pairs of cotton stockings ; a hat ; pair of shoes ; etc.

Joanna Commins of Salem died in 1644, and in the inventory of her estate (which amounted in all to only thirty-three pounds) are named, beside her ewe goat, spotted sow, milch cow, green rug, damask curtain, etc., one sad† colored “Carsy”‡ gown ; one hood ; one stamell§ “Carsy” coat with velvet about the skirts ; one green “Carsy” petticoat ; one blue pet-

Robert Pease of Salem, a man of ordinary means, having a good farm, died in 1644. Among the items in the inventory of his estate are two suits of apparel, coat, hat, pair of stockings, pair of shoes, etc.

Widow Margery Wathen died in 1644, possessed, among many other things, of one purple gown; one purple waist cloth, laced; one red petticoat and waist cloth; one tawny cloak cloth; one old mixed color cloth gown; one London russet gown of cloth; one "perpetuance" hood; one old purple petticoat and waist cloth; tawny doublet and "portingal" cap; one russet "pagon" apron; one Holland white waist cloth; two Holland aprons; four neck handkerchiefs, laced; five plain neck handkerchiefs; six pocket handkerchiefs; one long neckcloth; three laced cross cloths; two plain cross cloths; one white wrought coif; four white stuff coifs; four old coifs; two Holland coifs; three white stuff stomachers;‡ three white wrought stomachers; one pair of white knit thread gloves; one silk girdle; five women's shifts; one pair of cotton gloves; one "straddle" band; one "pema^t painlads;" one embroidered girdle; one pair of old shoes; one white apron; one blue apron; one pair of old worsted stockings; one flannel neck cloth; a cotton waistcoat; cloak buttons.

Jane Gaines of Lynn died in 1644. She was of ordinary estate, both real and personal, and among the articles of apparel belonging to her estate were one man's coat and breeches; one man's doublet; one man's waistcoat; a woman's gown; three women's waistcoats; a man's coat; a woman's cloak and hood; two petticoats; one woman's hat; one linen skirt for a shift; two shifts for a woman; two skirts for shifts; a white apron, ten handkerchiefs; twelve coifs; four cross cloths; three head cloths; one neck cloth; two bands; a straw hat;* one pair shoes; one pair of gloves; one pair of stockings; apron; three pairs of "bodys;"† one pair of pattens;§ etc.

Widow Margaret Pease of Salem died in 1644, having an ordinary estate for a woman of her time. She had five aprons; cloth gown; one stuff gown; red petticoat; two old petticoats; two old waistcoats; red waistcoat; two hoods; cloak; green apron; and a hat.

John Thorne of Salem died in 1646. He was a man of small means; and in the inventory of his estate is included a great coat, valued at one pound; two cloth suits; one stuff suit; two hats; two shirts; three bands; two handkerchiefs; one pair of milled stockings; one pair of yarn stockings; two pairs of shoes; a waistcoat; etc.

Oct. 14, 1651, the general court passed a new law as follows:—

"Although severall declarations and orders have bin made by this Court against excesse in apparrell both of men and wemen, which have not yet taken that effect which were to be desired, but, on the contrary, we cannot but to our greife take notice that intollerable excess and bravery hath crept in vppon vs, and especially amongst people of meane condition, to the dishonor of God, the scandall of our profession, the consumption of estates, and altogether vnsuiteable to our povertie; and although we acknowledge it to be a matter of much difficultie, in regard of the blindness of mens mindes, and the stubbornes of their wills, to set downe exact rules to confine all sorts of persons, yet we cannot but account it our duty to commend vnto all sorts of persons the sober and moderate vse of those blessings which, beyond our expectation, the Lord hath been pleased to afford vnto vs in this wilderness, and also to declare our vtter detestation and dislike that men or women of meane condition, educations, & callings should take vpon them the garbe of gentlemen, by wearing gold or siluer lace, or buttons, or points at their knees, to walke in great bootes, or women of the same ranke to weare silke or tiffany hoodes or scarfes, which though allowable to persons of greater estates, or more liberall education, yet we cannot but judge it intollerable in persons of such like condition; itt is therefore ordered by this Court, and the authoritie thereof, that no person within this jurisdiction, or any of their relations depending vpon them, whose visible estates, reall and personall, shall not exceede the true and indifferent value of two hundred pounds, shall weare any gold or siluer lace, or gold or siluer buttons, or any bone lace above two shillings p yard, or silk hoods or scarfes, vpon the pœnalty of ten shillings for euery such offence; and euery such delinquent to be pœnted by the grand jury. And forasmuch as distinct and particuler rules in this case, suiteable to the estate or qualitie of each person, cannot easily be given, it is further ordered by the authoritie aforesajd, that the selectmen of euery towne, or the major part of them, are hereby enabled and required from time to time, to have regard and take notice of apparrell in any of the inhabitants of their seuerall townes respectively, & whosoever they shall judge to exceed their rankes and abillitie in the costlynnes or fashion of their apparrell in any respect, especially in the wearing of ribbons or great bootes, (leather being so scarce a commoditie in this country,) lace pointes, &c, silk hoods or scarfes,*

* The words "silke hoods or scarfes" were left out in the first draft through oversight and were the select men aforesajd shall have power to asseesse such persons so offending in any of the particulars above mentioned in the country rates, at two hundred pounds estates, according to that proportion that such men vse to pay to whom such apparrell is suiteable and allowed, provided that this law shall not extend to the restraint of any magistrate or other publicke officer of this jurisdiction, their wives and children, who are left to their discretion in wearing of apparrell, or any settled millitary officer or souldier in the time of military service, or any other whose education and imployments have beene above the ordinary degree, or whose estates haue beene considerable, though now decayed; & this order to take place & be of force two moneths after the end of this session of Court."*

Under this law, complaints to the magistrates were speedily made. At the Ipswich court, held Sept. 28, 1652, Ruth Halfield of Wenham (?) was presented for excess in apparel, but, at the next court, held March 29, 1653, it being shown that she was under the government of her mother, who was worth two hundred pounds, she was discharged.

At the court held in Salem Nov. 30, 1652, Robert Edwards of Manchester was fined for wearing silver lace and silver and gold buttons; Abigail, wife of Arthur Kippin of Lynn, for wearing broad bone lace; Henry Bullock of Salem, for wearing great boots, ribbons, gold and silver lace, etc.; and Mark Haskell of Salem, for wearing broad lace. Jonas Fairbanks of Lynn was presented for wearing great boots, but was discharged.

At the court held in Salem in December, 1652, the wife of Austin Killam of Wenham was presented for wearing a silk scarf or hood; and John Brackenbury of Salem, for wearing points and ribbons. The wife of Thomas Fiske of Wenham was fined for wearing a tiffany or silk hood; and Alice, daughter of William Flint of Salem, having been presented for wearing a silk hood, was discharged, it being proved that her father was worth above two hundred pounds.

At the court held in Ipswich March 29, 1653, George Palmer was fined ten shillings for wearing silver lace; and Samuel Brocklebank, who was presented for wearing silver lace, was discharged in consideration of his employment, etc.

At the court held in Salem June 28, 1653, the wife of Thomas Day was fined for wearing a silk scarf; and two days later the wife of John Tompkins was fined for wearing a silk hood.

At the Ipswich court held Sept. 27, 1653, the wife of Richard Coy of Wenham (?) was discharged; also the wives of Hugh March, John Whipple, Richard Knight and Nicholas Noyes, they being worth above two hundred pounds. The wife of John Hutchings was presented for wearing a silk hood, and discharged upon testimony of her having been brought up above the ordinary rank. The wives of John Swett and William Chandlour were each fined ten shillings for wearing silk hoods. The wife of Anthony Potter was presented for wearing a silk hood. Richard Brabrook was also presented for wearing a silk scarf, but it was not proven. The wives of Thomas Harris, Thomas Wayte and Edward Browne were also presented, but all were discharged upon proof of their education and bringing up.

This spasm of economy and morality continued no longer in Essex county, and the law remained a dead letter for years. It is interesting to note the various expedients taken to remedy the evil of undue dress. First, making it a crime; second, taxing the wearers of immoderate apparel on two hundred pounds assessed valuation, on the assumption that that amount of property must have been possessed, or they would not have so dressed; and, third, through and by the church, on the ground of moral or religious duty. Apparently the church refused to interfere, taxation was not feasible, and the criminal law was only spasmodically enforced. The trouble was that the general court sought to enact laws that would severely affect other people, but would wholly exempt themselves from its operation,—laws that naturally are unpopular and bound to become dead letters.

NOTES.

"Beverly, June 6. A number of young Ladies, of feveral Ages, very early in the Morning, affembled at the house of the Rev. Mr. Champney, with their Spinning-Wheels, bringing with them a Sufficiency, and indeed more, to employ them the whole Day, which they spent with great Diligence and surprizing Application, and with much Decency and Propriety. Their exact Number was sixty. The Number of Skeins they spun, was one hundred of Linen and Cotton Yarn, twenty Knots in a Skein, which they generously left with the Family at Night, beside some Wool and Flax, which the Approach of the Evening forbid their spinning. 'Twas remarked by many, that nothing but Love and Pleasure appeared in their Words and Behaviour.—It may not be amiss to let the Publick know, that divers in the Parish were generous and respectful to Mr. Champney and Family on the Occasion."

"Boxford, May 17. Mr. Joseph Robinson, of this Town, had a Ewe that bro't him four Lambs this Spring at a Time, and are all alive, and like to do well. They all suck the Ewe, and look as likely to live as any Lambs I have seen this Year. The same Ewe bro't three Lambs at a Time last Spring, and raised up two of them.—If our Sheep should all increase so fast, we should have but little Need of sending Home for our Goods."

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The map on page 63 represents that part of Salem lying between Essex street and the harbor and from a line nearly parallel with Turner street and about eighty feet easterly thereof and a line nearly parallel with Daniels street and about one hundred feet easterly thereof. It is based on actual surveys and title deeds, and is drawn on a scale of two hundred feet to an inch. It shows the location of all houses that were standing there in 1700.

The braces marked "a" show where Derby street runs; and that marked "b" shows the water end of Turner street.

Essex street was the original main thoroughfare in this section. It was called a street or highway in 1667; ye street, 1670; "a highway or the strete that goes from y^e meting house down to the neck so caled," 1683; ye high street, 1687; ye main street, 1706; Main street, 1788; and Essex street, 1795.

The ancient way by the side of the water was provided for in the original laying out of the town, in 1628 or 1629. It was called the highway that runs between Mrs. Ann More's estate and the south harbor in 1668. It was used as the main road to reach the wharves and warehouses along the south harbor until the laying out of Derby street in 1767. After that time it was but little used, and a few years later became obsolete; although in the deed of John Turner to Samuel Ingersoll, of the Turner house and lot, Sept. 30, 1782, it is stated that the grantor conveyed the estate, "referving to the use of said town the way at the fouth-erly end of the premifes of twelve feet in wedth for the use of the Inhabitants as heretofore, said way to be above high water mark."*

What is now Turner street originated in the following manner: Edward Woolen laid out through the middle of his lot of land a drive way, which he called in 1679 "a particular way." In 1683, he sold a lot of land on this way to his son-in-law Hugh Pasco, agreeing that it should be "a particular high way." It was not formally laid out, however, until May 28, 1684, when it is recorded as "the privilege of a highway," the record being as follows: "I have accordingly . . . laid Out y^e high Way which is Twenty fue foot Square for y^e Turning of Cattle Carts or Sleds towards m^{rs} Elizabeth Turner her Gates & fifteen foot wide all y^e way from thence to y^e main Street in' Salem Except in y^e narrow betwixt my houe & my Garden & there it is but thirteen ffoot & a halfe wide & There was prefent Leiu^t Jeremiah Neale, Samuel Pike blacksmith ffrancis Neale Sen^r and ffrancis Neale Jun^r and this high Way was by me layed Out y^e Twenty Eighth Day of May one thoufand and Six hundred Eighty fower."* This privilege of a way was assigned by Mr. Pasco to Francis Neale May 29, 1684.* This part of the present street only went as far as the present Derby street. When Mr. Woolen conveyed a lot to John Mars- ters in 1690, he also conveyed to him "a priviledge in y^e Lane to turne a cart att the Lower end." It was called a lane or highway, left for the use of the proprietors in 1680; the lane that runs down along to the land or house of Capt. Charles Redford,† 1687; ye lane going downe to the water side, 1687; ye highway, 1695; and the lane going down to Col Turner's, 1724. That part of the lane that now runs through the ancient Turner estate was laid out by Hon. John Turner about 1725. The entire lane was called the lane in' 1741; the lane leading to Turner's wharf in 1744; Turner's lane, 1757; and Turner street, 1795.

Hardy street was laid out as far as Derby street by Joseph Grafton and John Grafton, by taking a strip of land ten feet in width from either of their lots between 1667 and 1670. No record was made of it until Dec. 14, 1683, when John Grafton and Joshua Grafton, owners of that part of the lot lying below Derby street, agreed to take a strip of land ten feet wide from either lot and continue the lane to the water. The record, which is as follows, incidentally mentions the original laying out of the upper part of the lane: "who [said Joseph Grafton] was agreed in his life time with y^e sd John Grafton to leave a highwaye of twenty foot bredth to allow out of either parties land ten foot for a highway, & accordingly Mr. Joseph Grafton began at the northerly end, so far as the house lotts are laid out of his land to allow ten foot of his part, & y^e sd John Grafton out of his part alsoe allowed out of his land ten foot bredth, intended in like maner to leave out the same breadth throughout to the south harbour, that soe there might be a way of that bredth left from y^e sd south harbour to y^e sd streete against Christopher Babadge."* Hardy street was called the lane or highway laid out by Joseph Grafton, sr., and John Grafton in 1670; "a highway or lane left for the use of severall of the neighbors scituate in y^e said lane," 1671; a lane or highway, 1672; a small lane or particular highway, 1679; ye street or lane, 1692; Grafton's lane, 1709; ye lane yt leads down to ye South River by Mr. Grafton's, 1711; the lane that runs down to the South river, 1713; a lane or highway laid out through the land formerly of John Grafton and Joshua Grafton, 1722; a lane or highway leading from ye main street to ye harbor, 1728; Hardy's lane, 1747; and Hardy street, 1795.

The passage shown on the map, and marked with the word "Way," was a passage way reserved by Isaac Meachum when he conveyed the lot marked "Mary Dowry" to Mrs. Mary Voeden March 27, 1682.† It was ten feet in width, and ran back to Mr. Meachum's land in the rear. This was extended many years later, and finally became the present Bentley street. It was called a way in 1746; meeting-house lane 1788; and some years ago was named Bentley street.

Derby street was laid out in 1767. It was called the new way so called in 1768; and Derby street in 1792.

The harbor at this point was called the South harbor in 1668; the harbor or salt water, 1711; the South river, 1713; ye harbor, 1722; and ye sea, 1744.

In the sketches that follow, after 1700, titles and deeds referred to pertain to the houses and land adjoining, and not always to the whole lot, the design being, after that date, to give the history of the houses then standing principally.

Isaac Foot Lot. This was probably a part of the land of Richard Lambert in 1655. It belonged to Edward Woolland of Salem, fisherman, Sept. 28, 1667, when he conveyed the lot to Pasco Foot, ye elder, of Salem, fisherman.* Mr. Foot died Nov. 28, 1670, and the land descended to his son Isaac Foot, who owned it in 1700.

John Marsters House. This was probably a part of the land of Richard Lambert in 1655. The house was built before 1661; and in 1667 the house and lot belonged to Edward Woolland of Salem, fisherman or shoreman. April 7, 1690, for fifty-four pounds, Mr. Woolland conveyed the house and lot to John Marsters of Salem, mariner.† Mr. Marsters died, possessed of the house and lot, in the summer of 1721, having devised all his estate to his wife Deborah. Upon her decease, in or before 1757, on a division of the estate the house and land around it were assigned to her daughter Hannah, widow of Penn Townsend, Sept. 7, 1759.‡ Mrs. Townsend took the house down before 1771.

Isaac Foot Lot. This was a part of the Edward Woolland lot in 1667; and, for nine pounds and ten shillings, he conveyed this lot to Isaac Foot of Salem, fisherman, April 2, 1685.* Mr. Foot owned it in 1700.

Matthew Barton House. This was a part of the Edward Woollan lot; and, for ten pounds and five shillings, he conveyed that part of this lot lying northerly of the dashes to Richard Simons of Salem, mariner, Oct. 28, 1680.† Mr. Simons had built a cellar and erected the frame of a house over it when he died. Administration was granted upon his estate June 27, 1682. In the inventory of his estate the property is described as "a fmall pcell of ground with a new frame fstanding there vpon in Salem," and valued at twenty-six pounds. His administratrix, for thirty-five pounds, conveyed the lot with the house's frame and cellar to Matthew Barton of Salem Jan. 15, 1682-3.‡ Mr. Barton finished the house and lived in it.

That part of the lot lying south of the dashes was a part of the lot conveyed by Mr. Woollan to Thomas Searle of Salem, fisherman, Feb. 17, 1681-2.§ Mr. Searle died before 1686; and his widow married, secondly, Joseph Phippen of Salem, mariner, before 1686. Mr. Phippen conveyed this part of the Searle lot, to Mr. Woollen before May 14, 1686, when Mr. Woollen, for six pounds and five shillings, conveyed it to Mr. Barton.|| The house was standing in 1702, and was there some years later.

Estate of John Searle House. This lot was a part of the land of Edward Woollen; and Mr. Woollen conveyed this lot and a part of the land adjoining on the north-west to Thomas Searle of Salem, fisherman, Feb. 17, 1681-2.§ Mr. Searle died before 1686; and the lot descended to his son John Searle, apparently. John Searle (?) erected a house upon the lot immediately after his purchase; and probably died, possessed of the estate, before Dec 20, 1694, when his widow, Mary Searle, married Joseph English. Mr. and Mrs. Searle apparently had a daughter Mercy, who, under the name of Mercy English, married John Beadle Oct. 11, 1722. The house was standing Oct. 6, 1738, when the rights of commonage allowed for this house were sold by Joseph English, shoreman, and wife Mary, and John Beadle, mariner, and wife Mercy, all of Salem;* and Mrs. Mercy Beadle owned the lot when she died in 1777.

John Cromwell Lot. This was a part of the lot of Edward Woollin of Salem, who conveyed it, for eleven pounds, to Mr. John Cromwell of Salem, slaughterer, Dec. 17, 1687.† Mr. Cromwell died, possessed of this lot, in 1700.

John Turner Houses. This lot and an old house standing thereon belonged to a Mr. More before 1661. He died before 1664, leaving a wife Ann (also, Anna or Hanna). She conveyed that part of the lot lying within the dashes at the easterly corner, for thirteen pounds, to Nathaniel Grafton of Salem, mariner, March 10, 1664-5;‡ and that corner came into the possession of John Turner, who owned the remainder of the lot, before 1679. A sale of the house and remainder of the lot being necessary for her support, as she stated in the court, she conveyed the same to John Turner of Salem, mariner, Aug. 17, 1668.§ In this deed the house is called "one old dwelling house," and the land is partly an orchard and partly arable. Mr. Turner apparently removed the old house and erected a house, probably on the same site, on the easterly side of the present Turner street. He died in possession of the new house Oct. 9, 1680. The estate was described as "The dwelling houfe land out houfing two ware houfes & a wharfe, belonging there vnto," and appraised at five hundred pounds. The estate descended to his son John Turner of Salem, merchant. The latter died in 1692, in the possession of the estate, This portion of his estate was then described as "A dwelling house and ground belonging to it with outhouseing 2 warehouses and wharff," and was valued at five hundred pounds. The estate was divided among his heirs March 22, 1696-7, and the house and lot were assigned to his son John Turner who was then living there. This son was Maj. John Turner, afterwards colonel and the Honorable Mr. Turner, being a rich merchant and magistrate and magnate. He permitted the old house to remain, but immediately erected, westerly of it, the present "House of the Seven Gables," so called, the home of Mr. H. O. Upton. Colonel Turner died, possessed of both houses and the entire lot, in the winter of 1741-2. In the new house, some of the rooms are described as best room, great chamber, great chamber garret, porch chamber, hall, accounting room, kitchen, leaner, hall chamber, shop chamber, kitchen chamber, etc. The division of the estate occurred July 15, 1745. The old house, which was described as follows: "The Land on the East Side of the Lane old house & barn," and appraised at two hundred and fifty pounds, was assigned to Colonel Turner's daughter Elizabeth, wife of Col. Thomas Berry of Ipswich, who had the southern half of the lot and the old house, and the deceased's son Robert Turner had the northern half of the land on that side of the lane. Col. Berry died, and his widow, for eighteen pounds, six shillings and eight pence, conveyed the land, the house being gone, to John Turner, esq., of Salem, April 4, 1769.*

The present house and the land west of the lane were assigned, in the division of Colonel Turner's estate, in 1745, to his son John Turner of Salem, esquire, and Habbakuk Turner of Salem, merchant, equally. That part of the estate was then described as "The Mansion house & Land & Garden," and was valued at five hundred and sixty-five pounds. Habbakuk Turner released his half interest in the estate to his brother John Turner April 15, 1749.* Mr. Turner, for five hundred and fifty pounds, conveyed the house and land around it to Capt. Samuel Ingersoll of Salem, mariner, Sept. 30, 1782.† Captain Ingersoll died in 1804; and the estate was then described as "A dwelling house and Land under and adjoining, with the buildings standing thereon, situate on Turner's street in said Salem." It was then valued at six thousand dollars. The house and land around it came into the possession of his daughter Susannah Ingersoll (for so she was baptized, she says, though generally called Susan). Miss Ingersoll never married, but lived here, much of the time alone. This was one of Nathaniel Hawthorne's most frequented places, and here he obtained the title and much of the material of his romance entitled, "The House of the Seven Gables." Miss Ingersoll died in 1858, having, in her will, which was made Nov. 25, 1835, devised all her estate to "the Rev. Horace L. Conolly, rector of St. Matthews church in the City of Boston." Under the name of Horace Ingersoll he was sued by Henry C. Ingerson of Lowell, judgment was obtained, and execution issued thereon. The execution was levied upon this house and land around it, and the sheriff making the levy sold the estate at auction to the plaintiff, the deed being dated June 14, 1879.‡ Mr. Ingerson conveyed the estate to John M. Hall of Rutland, Vt., Jan. 21, 1880;§ and Mr. Hall conveyed it to James Everson of Castleton, Vt., Feb. 11, 1880.|| Mr. Everson, for forty-five hundred dollars, conveyed it to Maggie J. Hynes of Rutland, Vt., Dec. 6, 1880;¶ and, for a similar consideration, Miss Hynes conveyed it to Chalon Blanchard of Rutland Jan. 10, 1881. Mr. Blanchard, for two thousand dollars, conveyed the house and ground around it to Elizabeth A. Upton of Salem, the present owner, June 8, 1883.* The frontispiece is a copy of an etching of the ancient house made by George M. White, the artist, some twenty years ago.

John Cromwell Lot. This was a part of the lot of Edward Woollen, and was conveyed by him, for ten pounds, to Mr. Philip Cromwell of Salem, slaughterer, Dec. 17, 1687.† Mr. Cromwell died March 30, 1693, at the age of eighty-three, having devised his real estate to his son John Cromwell. John Cromwell died Sept. 30, 1700, at the age of sixty-four, possessed of the lot.

Aaron Messervy House. This was also a part of Edward Woollen's lot and Hugh Pasco of Salem, fisherman, had built a house upon it before — 18, 1679, when Mr. Woollen, for twelve pounds, conveyed the lot to him.‡ Mr. Pasco conveyed the house and lot to Francis Neale, sr., an inhabitant of Casco now resident in Salem, June 23, 1683.§ For thirty-five pounds, Mr. Neale conveyed the house and land to Aaron Messervy of Salem, fisherman, Aug. 22, 1695.|| Mr. Messervy died in 1706, leaving widow Susannah, and children, William, Aaron, John, Mary and Abial. Mr. Messervy made his will in Charles county, Maryland, and in it devised all his estate to his wife Susannah. She subsequently married John Batten of Salem, fisherman; and they conveyed the "old dwelling house" and land around it to their son Aaron Messervy of Salem, mariner, April 1, 1724, Aaron to pay to his sisters Mary and Abial and his brother John five pounds each.¶ The sisters, Mary, who had married Charles Mason, a shipwright, and Abial, who had married Benjamin Burton, a tailor, all of Salem, released their interest in the estate to Aaron Aug. 22, 1733.

No buildings are mentioned in this release, and apparently the house was then gone.

William Murray House. This was Edward Woollen's orchard, and was conveyed by him to William Murray of Salem July 22, 1687.* Mr. Murray erected a house and barn thereon, and died possessed of the estate before Dec. 23, 1700, when administration upon his estate was granted to his widow Mary Murray. In the inventory it was described as "a house wth about 56 pole of land part of it Orchard wth a small barne & y^e fence, and it was valued at one hundred pounds. The estate was next in possession of William Murray of Salem, cooper, probably son of the late owner, and he conveyed the northern end of the lot and house to his son Jonathan Murray of Salem, cooper, thirty-three pounds, six shillings and eight pence, July 7, 1759.†

Jonathan Murray died before 1795, possessed of his half of the house.

William Murray died in 1769, possessed of his half of the house, the estate being then described as "Half of a Dwelling House & about forty six Poles of Land with an old Barn," and was appraised at one hundred and six pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence. The next owner was Samuel Murray of Salem, cooper, apparently son of William Murray, and Samuel Murray died in the summer of 1788, possessed of the house. The estate was then described as "one half of a house and a warehouse with about twenty Poles of Land under and adjoining them situate in the Easterly part of said Salem bounding partly on the main street & partly on Turner's Lane (so called)," and was valued at one hundred and five pounds. Samuel Murray's executor, for four hundred dollars, conveyed his part of the house and lot to Ebenezer Slocum of Salem, mariner, Sept. 19, 1795.‡

portions of the house in 1811; but probably the house was removed soon afterward.

Zachariah White House. This was a part of the lot of Joseph Grafton at an early date apparently; and it belonged to Robert Day, probably very early. The latter gave it to his son John Day, upon the latter's marriage, probably about 1670.* John Day built a house on it, and conveyed the house and lot to Joseph Grafton of Salem, mariner, before April 2, 1679, when Mr. Grafton, for eight pounds and five shillings, conveyed the house and land to Pasco Foot of Salem, mariner.† For seventy-four pounds, Mr. Foot conveyed the estate to Zachariah White of Salem, seaman April 3, 1679.‡ Mr. White lived here awhile, and then the house and land were occupied by Capt. Zachariah Fowles or his family. He probably conducted an inn in this house. Mr. White became a husbandman, and conveyed the house and lot, for eighty pounds, to Josiah Willard of Salem, clothier, March 3, 1710-1.§ Captain Fowles probably continued to conduct an inn here until his death, which occurred July 10, 1718, at the age of forty-four. Captain Willard continued the business, the house being called the "Crown Tavern." He died before May 17, 1731, when administration was granted upon his estate. The inventory of his estate describes the property as "a Dwelling Houfe and about 20 Pole of Land with a Barn," and mentions the best chamber, east chamber, west chamber, and south old chamber. His estate was valued at £757, 16s., 2d.; and the accounts and papers on file in the probate court show an extensive purchase of liquors. Captain Willard is also called "deacon" in the probate papers. His widow and administratrix, Susannah Willard, removed to Boston, and, for three hundred and forty-five pounds, conveyed this house and lot, it being described in the deed as "A Certain Dwelling House in Salem aforesaid Called y^e Crown Tavern with y^e Land adjoining being about Twenty Poles," to Richard Bethel of Salem, tailor, Feb. 28, 1735.* For four hundred pounds, Mr. Bethel conveyed the house and lot to Osman Trask of Beverly, coaster, April 6, 1747.† The next owner, of which there is any record, is Sarah, wife of Edmund Whittemore, who died before July 2, 1788, when her children, Retire Whittemore of Salem, mariner, Richard Deighton, Sarah Deighton, Henry Lovitt, Lydia Lovitt, Richard Whittemore, Abraham Frees and Hannah Frees, for twenty pounds, conveyed one-third of the house and land to Jonathan Archer, 3d, of Salem, barber.‡ Doctor William Bentley of Salem wrote in his journal, under date of July 9, 1790: "The Old Tavern, alias College, alias Becket's House near the Meeting House, has been new Shingled." Under date of March 29, 1791, he wrote: "Mr Jon^a Archer tert: is preparing a little Barn on the front of his Land between his house & Murray's: It is the Eastern End of the Old Tavern house next to the East Meeting House, eastward." The widow and heirs of William Becket, viz., his widow Mary Beckett, and children Retire Beckett, shipwright, James Beckett, gentleman, and his wife Deborah, Thomas Rowell, boat-builder, and his wife Hannah, Benjamin Hawkes, boat-builder, and his wife Abigail, Joseph Brown, mariner, and his wife Mary, Ebenezer Slocum, mariner, and wife Sarah, Jonathan Archer, 3d, barber, and his wife Rachel, and Jonathan Beckett, shipwright, all of Salem, for ninety-five pounds, conveyed to Samuel Leach of Salem, boat-builder, and his wife Lydia, in her right, one-third of the western half of the lot and house, also the northwest lower room and chamber and

garret over it, and the middle or great chamber, etc., Feb. 26, 1794.* Mr. Archer, for three hundred and sixteen dollars and sixty-six cents, conveyed to Mr. Leach the northeastern part of the lot, and northeastern half of the house including the northeast lower room and chamber and half of the garret, being the same property he bought of Retire Whittemore and others, as above stated, May 27, 1796.† Retire Beckett of Salem, shipwright, conveyed the rear part of the house and one-third of the land to Samuel Leach of Salem, boat-builder, Nov. 5, 1800.‡ Mr. Leach and his wife Lydia, for two thousand dollars, conveyed the house and lot to Nathaniel Andrew of Salem Nov. 10, 1803.§ Mr. Andrew removed to Marblehead; and, for eighteen hundred dollars, conveyed the same estate to Samuel Very, jr., of Salem, yeoman, Dec. 11, 1804.|| Mr. Very died Jan. 20, 1832, having devised his estate to his wife for her life, and then to his children. Rev. Edward D. Very of St. John, N. B., one of the heirs, for five hundred dollars conveyed "one-ninth" (one-twenty-seventh?) of the estate to Samuel Very, jr., of Salem, mariner, June 30, 1851.¶ Samuel Very, jr. (two-twenty-sevenths), John C. Very (one-twenty-seventh), Benjamin F. Larrabee and his wife Abigail C., in her right (one-forty-fifth), William F. Stafford, jr., and his wife Susan P., in her right (one-forty-fifth), all of Salem, Theodore K. Very of Boston (one-forty-fifth) and Abigail Eames of Brooklyn, N. Y. (one-ninth), for two hundred and eighty-six dollars, conveyed thirteen-forty-fifths of the estate to Joseph Gomes, Nathaniel Very, Nathaniel Horton and William P. Goodhue, all of Salem, July 7, 1851. William P. Goodhue and his wife Alice,

Joseph Gomes and his wife Mary Ann, Nathaniel Horton and his wife Martha, and Nathaniel Very, all of Salem, for eight hundred dollars, conveyed seven-ninths of the estate to George E. Berry of Salem Aug. 25, 1851;* and Harriet Very and John V. Felt, both of Salem, for four hundred dollars, conveyed two-ninths of the estate to Mr. Berry Dec. 15, 1853.† Mr. Berry died Dec. 1, 1879, having devised all his real estate to his wife Lydia W. Berry. She died, his widow, Aug. 9, 1900; and by partition in the probate court this house and lot were assigned to her son Francis T. Berry, who now owns the estate. In this old house, Mr. Berry has conducted a grocery store for many years. It is now in bad condition, and must soon succumb to the ravages of time. The great chimney has been removed, and the partitions in the main part of the first story of the house have been taken away, making a large room for the store.

Estate of John Day House. This was a part of the lot of Joseph Grafton, and subsequently of Robert Day, who gave it as a wedding present to his son John Day. John Day owned the house, and Mr. Grafton owned the land as early as 1671 and as late as 1680, when Mr. Day died. The house was probably built at the time of Mr. Day's marriage to Ann Coleman in 1668. There were three children, Ann, born in 1669, John, in 1670, and Stephen, in 1672. Thomas Waters of Salem, mariner, bought the house and lot evidently before 1702; and Aug. 15, 1707, John Day's daughter Anne Day of Salem, singlewoman, for fifteen pounds, released the lot, "with an old dwelling house thereon," to Mr. Waters, warranting the title against her brother John Day.† The house was gone soon afterward.

Paul Mansfield House. This was a part of the lot of Joseph Grafton of Salem, mariner. For ten pounds, he conveyed the lot to Nicholas Bartlet of Salem, fisherman, Sept. 6, 1671.* Mr. Bartlet built a house upon the lot, and conveyed the house and lot to Capt. Walter Price of Salem Oct. 24, 1670 (1671).† Captain Price reconveyed the estate to Mr. Bartlet March 7, 1672;† and on the same day the latter, for seventy-five pounds, conveyed the house and lot to Thomas Ives of Salem, slaughtereer.† Mr. Ives, for eighty pounds, conveyed the same estate to William Henfield of Salem, mariner, June 27, 1673.‡ Mr. Henfield lived in the house, and mortgaged the estate to William Hirst of Salem, merchant, Aug. 1, 1692.§ Mr. Henfield died before May 18, 1695, when Mr. Hirst released his interest in the estate to Mr. Henfield's widow, Elizabeth Henfield.|| Mrs. Henfield, for thirty-three pounds, conveyed the house and lot to Benjamin Pickman, jr., of Salem, mariner, March 8, 1697-8.¶ Mr. Pickman, for forty pounds, conveyed the house and lot to Paul Mansfield of Salem, mariner, Nov. 13, 1698; and Mr. Mansfield conveyed the same to Thomas Laskin of Salem, cooper, Nov. 18, 1708.†† Mr. Laskin, for sixty-five pounds, conveyed the house and lot to William Smith of Salem, fisherman, Sept. 12, 1728.‡‡ Mr. Smith died in 1742; and in the inventory of his estate the house is described as "a single old house," being appraised with the land at forty-six pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence. Mr. Smith's widow and administratrix, Mary Smith, conveyed the house and land, for forty pounds and eight shillings, to Richard Valpy of Salem, fisherman, July 30, 1765.§§ Mr. Valpy probably removed the house shortly after that date.

Adoniram Collins House. This was a part of the Joseph Grafton lot. A house was built upon the land after 1661, probably, by Venus (or Phineas) Colefax, who owned the estate in 1671, 1672 and 1673. In 1679, it was the estate of James Collins. Mr. Collins went on a voyage to Barbadoes June 18, 1685, and was never heard from. In 1691, this house and land were valued at forty-five pounds. He left two young children, Adoniram and James. The latter probably died young; and Adoniram Collins became sole owner of the house and lot. He conducted an inn, and apparently built upon the lot a new house, permitting a part of the old house to remain. He died in 1721.

Estate of Robert Stone House. This was a portion of the ancient lot of Joseph Grafton of Salem, mariner; and, for love, he conveyed this part to his grandson Edmund Henfield of Salem, mariner, July 22, 1678.* For fifteen pounds, Mr. Henfield conveyed the lot to James Poland of Salem, blacksmith, Dec. 14, 1680;† and, for sixteen pounds, Mr. Poland conveyed it to Robert Stone, jr., of Salem, mariner, June 10, 1685.‡ Mr. Stone erected a dwelling house upon the lot; and died, possessed of the estate, June 16, 1688. It was then valued at fifty-five pounds. His brother Samuel Stone of Salem, eldest and only surviving brother of the deceased, his sister Sarah, wife of James Manning of Salem, and their widowed mother Sarah Stone, as administrators and representatives of the estates of said Robert Stone, jr., and of his father Robert Stone, sr., also deceased, released the house and lot to Robert Stone of Salem, cooper, son of the said Robert Stone, jr., deceased, Dec. 24, 1709.§ The house was apparently taken down a few years later while the estate was owned by Mr. Stone.

John Collier House. This was a part of the lot of Joseph Grafton, and upon it, probably about 1664, his son Joseph Grafton built a house, in which he lived. The latter died at Barbadoes in February, 1670, leaving sons Joseph and Joshua. (Owned by Venus Colfax, 1679-80?) Grafton lived in Salem, being a mariner, and he released to his brother Joseph Grafton, mariner, the land and house, Joseph then living in it, in 1687.* For four pounds, Joseph Grafton conveyed the house and lot to John Collier of Boston, baker, Nov. 30, 1699.† Mr. Collier removed to Salem, and continued his business as baker. He died in 1732, when there were only "stones of an old Cellar" remaining on the lot.

Joseph Hardy House. That part of this lot lying westerly of the dashes was a part of the ancient lot of Joseph Grafton. It was probably the estate of Joseph Hardy, as early as 1660, the house having been built in or before 1661. Mr. Hardy owned the estate in 1683. He died in 1705, possessed of the house and lot, which were valued at fifty pounds. The title passed to his only son, Joseph Hardy, of Salem, a shipwright, who, for one hundred pounds, conveyed the estate to his grandfather John Grafton of Boston (formerly of Salem), mariner, April 14, 1711.‡ Mr. Grafton conveyed the lot and house to his son-in-law John Swinnerton of Salem, cooper, Dec. 15, 1714;§ and Mr. Swinnerton, for one hundred pounds, conveyed the estate to Jonathan Webb of Salem, cordwainer, Oct. 21, 1717.|| Mr. Webb died in 1765, possessed of the house and lot, the house being called in inventory of his estate "an old house," which was valued at twenty-three pounds, six shillings and eight pence. The twenty-one and a half rods of land was appraised at forty-three pounds. The estate descended to his children, Stephen Webb, cordwainer, Samuel Webb, mariner, John Webb, coaster, Joseph Cloutman, joiner, and wife Mary, widow Hannah

Neal, widow Susannah Flint, widow Priscilla Hodges and Jonathan Webb, coaster, all of Salem; and Jonathan bought the interests of his brothers and sisters, for fifty pounds, sixteen shillings and three pence, Nov. 26, 1768.* Mr. Webb took the house down Oct. 18, 1791.

This part of the lot lying easterly of the dashes was a part of the lot of Edward Wooland, sr., of Salem, fisherman; and, for twelve pounds and five shillings, he conveyed it to Joseph Hardy, jr., of Salem, mariner, May 5, 1683.† Mr. Hardy owned it until 1711.

Samuel Pope House. This was a part of Joseph Grafton's land as early as 1661, and he died possessed of it in 1683. It was a part of the lot of land conveyed by Mr. Grafton's administrator to his grandson Joshua Grafton of Salem, mariner, Dec. 12, 1683.‡ Joshua Grafton conveyed this lot to widow Gertrude Pope of Salem June 2, 1684;§ and she gave it by deed to her son Samuel Pope of Salem, mariner, Aug. 23, 1694.|| He built a house upon the lot, and lived in it. Mr. Pope, for one hundred and fifty pounds, conveyed the house and lot to his son Samuel Pope, jr., of Salem, blacksmith, June 1, 1733.¶ For a similar consideration, Samuel Pope, jr., conveyed the same estate to John Williams of Salem, mariner, July 24, 1735.¶ Mr. Williams died, possessed of the estate, before April 6, 1761, when his children (?), for one hundred and sixteen pounds, conveyed it to Thomas Elkins of Salem, mariner, the grantors being widow Mary Maverick, John Williams, trader, Joseph Hiller, blockmaker, and wife Mary, and Jacob Quincey, physician, and wife Elizabeth, all of Boston. Captain Elkins died, possessed of the house and lot, March 17, 1764, at the age of twenty-six. tate is described as "A house Barn and about 48 Poles of Land," and appraised at three hundred and thirty-three pounds, six shillings and eight pence, in the inventory of his estate. The estate descended to his daughters, Martha Pynchon and Elizabeth Elkins, singlewoman, both of Salem, and, for six hundred pounds, they conveyed the same, with the consent of Elizabeth (their mother?) and her husband Miles Greenwood, to Joseph White of Salem, merchant, Aug. 31, 1780.* For four hundred and eighty pounds, Mr. White conveyed the house and lot to James Dunlap of Salem, tallow-chandler, July 15, 1794.† Mr. Dunlap conveyed the same estate, for two thousand dollars, to Michael Webb of Salem, merchant, Oct. 12, 1797.‡ Mr. Webb conveyed the estate to Stephen Phillips of Salem, mariner, March 30, 1798;§ and Mr. Phillips, for twenty-three hundred and thirty-three dollars, conveyed the house and lot to George Archer of Salem July 15, 1799.|| Captain Archer was lost at sea on the Grand Banks, in the following December, while on a voyage from Hamburg. He was thirty-four years old. For nineteen hundred and twenty-six dollars, his children, George, Sarah and Caroline, by their guardian, conveyed two-thirds of the estate to Edward Allen of Salem, merchant, April 21, 1801;¶ and on the same day Mr. Archer's widow, Judith Archer, for five hundred and eighty-four dollars, conveyed her part to Mr. Allen. Captain Allen died July 27, 1803; and his executor, for twenty-five hundred dollars, conveyed the house and lot to Timothy Wellman, 3d, of Salem, mariner, Dec. 9, 1808.†† Mr. Wellman died in 1824, possessed of the estate, which was then appraised at nine hundred and fifty dollars. His widow Abigail Wellman, and children, Nancy Wellman, singlewoman, George Kimball, printer, and wife Margaret, George Savory, merchant, and wife Mary Ann, all of Salem, and Augustus T. Wellman of Swampscott, for twelve hundred dollars, conveyed the house and lot to Thomas Hunt of Salem, merchant, Oct. 2, 1854.* Mr. Hunt conveyed the estate to James P. Cook of Salem Oct. 17, 1859;† and Mr. Cook conveyed it to Elizabeth, wife of Thomas Hunt of Salem, as a trustee, on the same day.‡ Mrs. Hunt conveyed the house and land to Susanna Palfrey Foye, wife of Samuel M. Foye, Oct. 26, 1869.§ Mrs. Foye died Dec. 20, 1880; and the house and lot still belong to her estate.

Estate of Joshua Grafton House. This lot was a part of the homestead of Joshua Grafton, sr., who owned it, with the house thereon, before 1661. He died in 1682, possessed of the house; and his administrator conveyed the lot, house, kitchen, etc., to his grandson Joshua Grafton of Salem, mariner, Dec. 12, 1683.|| Mr. Grafton died in 1699; and in the inventory of his estate the house, land and orchard were valued at one hundred pounds. The house was standing in 1702, but was gone before Jan. 11, 1722, when Hannah, wife of Nathaniel Emmes, stonecutter, and Priscilla, wife of Joseph Robie, glazier, both of Boston, for fifty-five pounds, conveyed the lot to Col. John Turner of Salem, esquire.¶

John Grafton House. This lot was a portion of the original homestead of Joseph Grafton, a mariner, who conveyed it to his son John Grafton of Salem, mariner, Sept. 15, 1667. John Grafton built a house upon the lot and lived in it until his removal to Boston, before April 14, 1711, when he conveyed the house and land for two hundred pounds; to his grandson Joseph Hardy of Salem, shipwright.* Mr. Hardy also removed to Boston before June 17, 1713, when he conveyed the house and lot to Joseph Andrew of Salem, house-carpenter, for three hundred pounds.† For a similar consideration, Mr. Andrew conveyed the land, house, workhouse and barn to John Pickering of Salem, yeoman, Feb. 21, 1714-5.‡ Mr. Pickering died, possessed of the estate, in 1722, having devised it to his daughter Sarah Hardy for her life and then to her children by her husband Joseph Hardy. Mrs. Hardy died, and the children of Mr. Hardy and herself: Benjamin Goodhue of Salem, blacksmith, and wife Martha, Nathaniel Phippen, jr., of Salem, cooper, and wife Seeth, Edmund Henfield of Salem, cooper, and wife Lydia, Isaac Pierce of Boston, baker, and wife Mary, and widow Sarah Mansfield, conveyed five-sixths of the house and land to Warwick Palfrey of Salem, gentleman, Nov. 11, 1745;§ and Benjamin Ropes of Salem, cooper, and wife Ruth (another daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hardy) conveyed one-sixth of the house and lot to Mr. Palfrey May 31, 1746.|| Mr. Palfrey died in 1756, possessed of the house and lot, having devised the estate to his son Walter Palfrey who then lived in the house. Walter Palfrey, jr., was a sailmaker, and died, possessed of the house and land around it, Oct. 11, 1793, at the age of seventy-three, having devised the estate to his daughter Susannah Hunt, being "the house wherein I now dwell." Mrs. Hunt, as the wife of Robert Richardson, her third husband, conveyed the house and land around it to Joseph Perkins of Salem, gentleman, Dec. 11, 1812.¶ Mr. Perkins took down the ancient house about 1830. The great pear tree on this estate is very ancient. Martha Hardy, who was born here in 1711, and moved away in 1731, stated that she gathered fruit from it when she was a girl. The tree was probably there soon after 1700.

John Turner Lot. This lot was a part of the homestead of Joseph Grafton, who conveyed it to his son John Grafton of Salem, mariner, Sept. 15, 1667.* John Grafton, for ten pounds, conveyed this lot to Thomas Gardner of Salem, cordwinder, Aug. 22, 1670.† Lieutenant Gardner died Nov. 16, 1695; and the administrator of his estate, for thirty pounds, conveyed the lot to Capt. John Turner of Salem, merchant, Dec. 23, 1698.‡ Captain Turner owned this lot until 1703.

Christopher Babbidge Lot. This lot was a part of the homestead of Joseph Grafton, who conveyed it to his son John Grafton of Salem, mariner, Sept. 15, 1667.* John Grafton conveyed this lot to Christopher Babbidge of Salem Aug. 22, 1670;§ and Mr. Babbidge, who was then a tailor, for twelve pounds, conveyed the lot to his son Christopher Babbidge Nov. 27, 1706.|| On this lot the first meeting-house of the East church was built in 1717.

Mary Dowry House. This lot was a part of the homestead of Thomas Browning, being owned by him before 1661, and he died in 1671, possessed of it. He was an old man, probably upwards of eighty. He devised his homestead to two of his daughters, Sarah Williams and Deborah Meachum. They made a division of the estate in 1675, this lot being a part of the land released to Deborah and her husband, Isaac Meachum. Mr. Meachum built a small house upon the lot immediately; and, for fifty-five pounds, conveyed the house and lot to widow Mary Voeden of Salem March 27, 1682.¶ In this deed, Mr. Meachum reserved a strip of land ten feet wide on the eastern side of the lot as a way to the rest of his land in the rear of this lot. This was the beginning of the present Bentley street. Mrs. Voeden married, secondly, before 1696, a Mr. Dowry; and she died, his widow, in 1744, possessed of the house and lot. In the inventory of her estate the property was valued at twenty-five pounds. For one hundred pounds, the administrator of her estate conveyed the house and lot to Benjamin Stone of Salem, cooper, Nov. 6, 1746.* Mr. Stone was lost at sea in 1761; and the estate descended to his children, Robert Stone, merchant, and Joseph White, merchant, and his wife Elizabeth, who together with William Carlton, printer, and his wife Elizabeth, all of Salem, for five hundred dollars, conveyed the lot, the house being gone, to Samuel Silsbee of Salem, yeoman, Aug. 5, 1796.†

Walter Palfrey Lot. This lot was a part of the homestead of Thomas Browning, being owned by him prior to 1661; and he died in 1671, possessed of it. He devised his homestead to two of his daughters, Sarah Williams and Deborah Meachum; and they divided the estate in 1675, this lot being a part of the land released to Deborah and her husband, Isaac Meachum. Mr. Meachum removed to Enfield, Mass., where he was a yeoman; and, for sixteen pounds, conveyed this lot to Walter Palfrey of Salem, sailmaker, July 3, 1696.‡ Mr. Palfrey owned it for many years after 1700.

Sarah Williams House. This lot and house were a part of the homestead of Thomas Browning before 1661. He died, possessed of the house and lot, in 1671, being an old man, upward of eighty. In the inventory of his estate the homestead, which ran through to what is now Essex street, is described as "A house & two Acer lott." He devised the homestead to two of his daughters, Sarah Williams and Deborah Meachum, who made a division of the estate in 1675, the house and this lot being released to Mrs. Williams. She lived in the house; and, when a widow, conveyed to her daughter Abigail Williams of Salem, singlewoman, "y^e homestead where I now dwell & about an acre of land or near about So much before y^e salt water wafh't part of it away," April 10, 1719.* Miss Williams made her will on the same day that her mother's deed to her was made. She devised all her estate to her mother, among other property being mentioned "my homestead where my mother & I Dwell Together." She died a month later; and thus the title returned to the mother. Mrs. Williams died in 1729, when the house was gone.

JOHN BEAN'S FIRST WIFE.

BY HENRY WINTHROP HARDON.

It has been assumed on the faith of a family tradition which first found its way into print in Lancaster's History of Gilman-ton, published in 1845, and was repeated successively in Runnell's Sanbornton, in the Bangor Historical Magazine, volume I, page 159, and in the annual publications of the John Bean Association, that John Bean, the freeman of Exeter, 1677, came from Scotland about 1660, that his first wife died on the way to America, and that he married, for his second wife, an Irish girl who had been a fellow passenger, of whom nothing further was known except that her name was Margaret. The record at Salem of the birth, June 8, 1655, of a daughter Mary was accordingly assumed to be that of a child born before his arrival in this country. This tradition will have to be revised in part at least if not abandoned altogether in view of further records which have recently come to light.

In the Essex Antiquarian, volume II, page 148, is the note of a deed, dated April 18, 1654, conveying land at Exeter to Nicholas Lisson, to which deed "John Baine" was a witness. There is scarcely room for doubt that this witness was John Bean, the freeman of Exeter, 1677.

In 39 N. H. Deeds, 226, is the record of a deed, dated Nov. 14, 1748, made by "Holdridge Kelly of Stratham in the Province of New Hampshire & Hannah my wife heretofore Hannah Whittaker, daughter of Abraham Whitaker late of Haverhill, deceased & Hannah his wife who was daughter of John Bean late of Exeter * * * deceased," conveying, by quit-claim, a third part of a forty-acre tract granted by the Town of Exeter to Nicholas Lisson, "our s'd grandmother Hannah Bean being one of the daughters of ye sd Nicholas Listen."

In 43 N. H. Deeds, 271, is the record of another deed, dated February 12, 1749, made by "Houldridge Kelly of Stratham * * and Hannah my wife heretofore Hannah Whittaker, great grand daughter of Nicholas Lisson formerly of Exeter * * deceased," conveying, by quit-claim, all their right, title and interest in three hundred acres "granted to our sd great grandfather Nicholas Lisson deceased" by the town of Exeter in 1675 and laid out in 1712 "at the request of Nicholas Gordon & Alexander Magoon since deceased."

Nicholas Lisson, according to Pope, was at Salem in 1637, a proprietor at Marblehead. He is named as creditor in the inventory of George Pollard of Marblehead 30:4:1646 (5 Essex Antiquarian, 172). He had a grant of twenty acres on the little fresh river at Exeter before May 11, 1654 (1 ibid. 178). In April, 1654, he purchased a house and lot on the water-side at Exeter by a deed to which "John Baine" was a witness (2 ibid. 148). In 1656, he bought half the new saw-mill at Exeter falls (ibid. 148). In 1659, he owned a quarter of the new mills, John Gilman a quarter, John Cutt, Edward Hilton, John Warren, Thomas King, et al., a half (3 ibid. 141). In 1661, he conveyed to Henry Magoon, "my son-in-law," for life, remainder to his son John, lands in Exeter (ibid. 43). April 15, 1670, "Nicholas Lisen of Exeter, planter," for three hundred pounds conveyed one-quarter of six hundred and forty acres on Lamprel river (8 ibid. 38). Notes of other transactions, none of later date, may be found in 3 ibid. 43, 6 ibid. 172, 7 ibid. 32, 138-9.

The inference to be derived from the deed in 39 N. H. Deeds, above quoted, is that Nicholas Lisson had three daughters and no sons. His daughter Hannah married John Bean, another daughter married Henry Magoon, and the third daughter perhaps married a Gordon.

The daughter Hannah Lisson, who married John Bean was unknown to Mr. Drummond, the historian of the John Bean family. Their daughter Hannah is not mentioned by him in the list of John Bean's children. There is however a gap in his list between the birth of Mary, the first child, June 8, 1655, and John, the next, 1661. If further search should not disclose the record of the birth of Hannah² (John¹) Bean it may well be assumed that she was born a little later than her husband, Abraham² Whitaker, jr., son of Abraham¹ Whitaker and Elizabeth² (William¹) Symonds of Haverhill. He was born February 29, 1656 (4 Essex Antiquarian, 142). Hannah² Bean was thus born probably about 1657 or 1658, and was perhaps the second child of her parents.

It is thus clear that John Bean was at Exeter as early as April 18, 1654, when he witnessed the deed to Nicholas Lisson, that he married, probably about that time, Hannah, the daughter of Nicholas Lisson, and that by her he had a daughter Hannah born probably about 1657 or 1658 and probably other children.

GOD'S PIONEERS.

BY PHILIP E. HOWARD.

They tread the sounding shores of time,—
Not theirs to doubt or fail or wonder.
They speak in tones that ring sublime
Above the long seas' endless thunder.

The lowering world of lust and brawn
They startle from its dullard dreaming;
They sing the coming of the dawn,
And fling their banners to its gleaming.

O loving hearts, the stranger land
Too slowly answers your proclaiming!
But courage! All shall not withstand
God's pioneers, the world reclaiming.

ANSWERS.

326. Ebenezer Webster, the father of Nancy Webster, was son of Ebenezer Webster of Haverhill, husbandman, whose will, dated May 25, 1773, was proved June 2, 1783. He mentions his wife Mehitable, sons Ebenezer, Jonathan, Moses, Isaac and Stephen Webster, and daughters Lydia, wife of Joshua Hale, and Mary, wife of Richard Hale. Mehitable, the mother, was daughter of Jonathan Kimball of Bradford, yeoman. Ebenezer Webster, the father, was born in Haverhill Sept. 20, 1711, being son of Stephen Webster and his wife, formerly widow Mary (Goodwin) Cook. Stephen Webster was a yeoman and lived in Haverhill, where he died March 9, 1748-9, leaving a will, dated March 4, 1745-6. In the will he mentions his wife Mary, sons Samuel, John, William, Ebenezer and Stephen Webster, and daughter Mary Ayer. Stephen Webster's father was also named Stephen Webster.—Ed.

AMERICAN HISTORICAL MAGAZINE. New York, January, 1906. This is number one of volume one of a new historical magazine. This number contains 93 octavo pages, and has a frontispiece consisting of a portrait of James Alexander of New Jersey.

The magazine is published by the Publishing Society of New York, 41 Lafayette Place, New York City.

It is to appear bi-monthly, at the price of fifty cents each number, or three dollars per year. The editor states that it "will be published as a high class periodical, devoted to aspects of American history, to biography and to genealogy."

This number contains articles on the Board of Proprietors of East New Jersey; the Morris family of Morrisania; the fur trade in the early development of the Northwest; early New England exploration of our North Pacific coast; the Columbia river; the discoverers of Lake Superior; and the charter and constitution of Connecticut.

COLONEL ALEXANDER K. McCCLURE'S RECOLLECTIONS OF HALF A CENTURY. Salem, Mass., 1902. Colonel McClure's book contains 502 octavo pages, and is neatly bound in cloth. He is the author of various works, as "Lincoln and Men of War Times," "Our Presidents and How We Make Them," "Three Thousand Miles Through the Rocky Mountains," "The South," and "To the Pacific and Mexico." His works show the versatility of his pen, and his wide knowledge of men and things.

The volume is well indexed and contains several engravings, the frontispiece being a portrait of the author.

Colonel McClure treats of such subjects as the matchless progress of the last half century in the world, Lincoln and Davis, the first battles of the civil war, editors Gales and Blair, Pacific railway, sale of Chihuahua, Fillmore, Pierce, Buchanan, Johnson, Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Arthur, Cleveland, Harrison and McKinley, Sam Houston, Louisiana lottery, orator Thomas Corwin and Kossuth, the negro, Gen. Robert E. Lee, Thomas H. Benton, Western railways and Rocky coaches, Henry Wilson, McClellan, Sheridan, Jackson and Sherman, royal visitors, Alexander H. Stephens, Sumner, Boutwell and Chase, the new south, Robert S. Ingersoll, etc.

Colonel McClure's descriptions are vivid, and leave lasting impressions upon the memory. Not only is the book interesting but it has a peculiar value as history, which is presented only in this personal form.

The price is $3.00.

THE DIARY OF WILLIAM BENTLEY, D. D., Pastor of the East Church, Salem, Massachusetts. Volume I., April, 1784—December, 1792. Salem, 1905. The Essex Institute has begun the publication of the important and interesting journal of this remarkable man.

This volume includes over eight years time, being the first eight years that he lived in Salem. There are 456 octavo pages including the index to subjects, persons and places. There is also an introductory sketch of Doctor Bentley comprising 42 pages.

The frontispiece is a half-tone portrait of the journalist; and there are nineteen other engravings of houses and things and portraits of persons associated with him.

Doctor Bentley became eminent as a person of varied attainments in philosophy and literature, having extended his researches to foreign libraries and particularly to oriental sources. He read with facility over twenty different languages, and wrote and spoke in most of the principal languages of Europe. The credentials of the first Tunisian Ambassador was sent from Washington to be translated by him, and his correspondence reveals the closest relations with Jefferson and Adams. For nearly twenty years he edited the Salem Register, and he was also the author of numerous historical, theological and Masonic publications. His attainments, ardent patriotism, originality, and independence of character, mental activity, and social spirit, made him altogether marked and interesting. At his death he was a fellow of the Academy of Arts and Sciences, a councilor of the American Antiquarian society, and a member of numerous literary and scientific societies in Europe and America.

This Diary presents an intimate picture of social, political, and religious life in the locality in which he lived and particularly in Salem, from 1784 to 1819. No similar diary covering this period is known to exist. It excels in richness of detail and in acuteness of observation, and may be compared with the diaries of a Pepys and a Sewall merged into one, but having a detail and a gossippy flavor quite its own.

The price of this volume, bound in cloth, is $3.50. Address The Essex Institute, Salem, Mass.

HISTORY OF NEWBURYPORT, MASS., 1764-1905. By John J. Currier. Newburyport, 1906. This is Mr. Currier's third large volume on the history of Old Newbury. It is published in a form similar to his earlier works, and the superior features of type and engravings that characterized those are manifest in this.

This book covers the history of Newburyport from the date of its incorporation to the present time. In the History of Newbury he brought the history of this portion of the old town down to the time it was incorporated as a separate town, and left further allusion to it for this volume.

The chapters include the history of churches and pastors, schools and school masters, streets and landing places, ferries, bridges, turnpikes, postal service, taverns, stage coaches, railroads, street car service, ship-yards, ship-owners, ship builders, books and newspapers, libraries, Revolutionary War, privateers in the Revolution, the embargo and war of 1812, the Mexican, Civil and Spanish wars, distinguished visitors, memorial services, celebrations and political gatherings, and the general history of the town. There are also given lists of collectors of the port, representatives to the general court, town clerks, city clerks, and town and city treasurers.

There are one hundred and twenty-eight engravings, most of them full-page. There are many beautiful fine half tones. The illustrations consist of maps, signs, advertisements, portraits, title-pages, light-houses, landscapes, powder house, jail, dwelling houses, town house, court house, statues, meeting houses, almshouses, clocks, factories, wharves, sail-loft, old chaise, market house, city hall, Anna Jaques hospital, Young Men's Christian Association building, the jetties, tablets, autographs and other handwriting, school-houses, bridges, taverns, railroad depots, ships, launch of vessel, ship-building, newspaper headings, public library building, etc. The frontispiece is a fine half-tone full-page portrait of the author.

The index comprises seventy-four double column pages of small type; and is probably the most complete one ever made.

Those who are familiar with Mr. Currier's History of Newbury know the manner in which he treats general local history. This volume is prepared in the same manner, copies of records being given as far as possible, that the reader may get his information at first hand. Constant pursuit after the best authorities, careful investigation, the exercise of excellent judgment and antiquarian tastes combine to make the work of Mr. Currier valuable and accurate.

This volume contains 766 octavo pages. The price, bound in cloth, is $5.00; and in half morocco, $6.00. It is published by the author, John J. Currier, Newburyport, Mass.

A HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES AND ITS PEOPLE from their earliest records to the present time. By Elroy McKendree Avery. Cleveland, O., 1904. Volume two of this great work is at hand; and the same beautiful workmanship that characterized the mechanical production of the first volume is continued in this. There are 458 pages in this volume. Many of the maps are colored as in the first volume, and the frontispiece is a colored reproduction of the Vandyke portrait of Gov. John Winthrop in the state house in Boston. The illustrations are so numerous that it would be inconvenient to enumerate them. Over two hundred and fifty are given in the descriptive list. Maps are freely given, as well as portraits, title-pages of early books, scenery, flags, autographs, forts, monuments, medals, ancient drawings, letters, fac simile copies of records, seals, silver service in Jamestown church, coats-of-arms, charters, windmills, houses, tablets, copies of historic paintings, swords, spinning wheels, ancient furniture, costumes, deeds, churches, stocks, pillory, statues, monuments, currency, etc.

The period covered by this volume is from 1600 to 1660, and includes the settlement of New York, Virginia, Massachusetts, Maryland, Connecticut and Rhode Island. It also treats of Champlain and New France, the evolution of a colonial system, the growth of separatism in England, the Pilgrims, the council for New England, Roger Williams, Anne Hutchinson, Pequot war, annexation and confederation, the Puritan and the heretic, list of Mayflower passengers, colonial governors, and, as in the first volume, a bibliographical appendix, giving authorities for the facts of history comprised in this.

The volume is carefully and interestingly written, and is accurate in its statements. A good history of the United States is needed for popular reading, and Doctor Avery's work is certainly timely and adequate to meet the want. The history of this country is so extensive and complex that an exhaustive work upon it for the use of the scholar cannot be expected for many long years to come. Before that can be accomplished, State histories have got to be fully prepared, and local histories as well as sketches of numerous subjects, customs, persons and things must be published in the greatest detail.

Doctor Avery's work is developing into a history of greater detail and fullness than was planned. The growth of material for it has so increased that he finds that instead of twelve volumes it must be issued in fifteen, including the index volume. All those who subscribed for the set of twelve volumes will receive the last three without extra charge; and those who now subscribe for the fifteen will also receive free any subsequent volumes that may be issued.

The price in cloth per volume is $6.25 net; in half levant, $12.50; and in full levant, $17.50. The publishers are the Burrows Brothers Company, Cleveland, Ohio.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The map on the opposite page represents that part of Salem which is bounded by Essex and Orange streets, the harbor, and a line drawn parallel with Daniel's street and about a hundred feet easterly of it running from Essex street to the harbor. It is based on actual surveys and title deeds, and is drawn on a scale of two hundred feet to an inch. It shows the location of all houses that were standing in 1700. The braces marked "a" show where Derby street runs.

Daniel's street is a very old way. It was called a lane or highway in 1661; highway by the water side, 1669; a street or lane, 1672; ye highway or street, 1673; a lane or particular highway, 1679; ye highway, 1699; Ingersoll's lane, 1715; Daniels lane, 1742; and Daniels street in 1769. In some deeds, in 1864 and 1870, it was called Wharf street.

Essex street was an ancient way, and ran along the southern border of the common land. It was called "The common or highway next the penn so called" in 1669; ye street or highway next ye common in 1670; the street or highway next ye common upon ye same, 1675; ye high or main street, 1695; the main street, 1699; Salem main street, 1729; and Essex street in 1798. It was called Main street in 1818.

Orange street was laid out down as far as the dotted square shown on the map, and the dotted square added as a space to turn in, Aug. 1, 1671, by agreement of the adjoining owners, Paul Mansfield of Salem, fisherman, and Edward Bush of Salem, seaman.* It was made by taking a strip of land from the lot of Paul Mansfield on the eastern side eight feet and ten inches in breadth, and a strip seven feet wide from the eastern side of the homestead of Edward Bush, as far as the asterisk (). From that point to the dotted square, an equal amount was taken from each lot. The record goes on to say, that, at this point, they allow "Ten foote of Ground a piece y^t is Twenty foote Square befide y^e breadth of y^e Said Lane & Shooting away Eastward from it for roome for a Cart to turne in." The remaining portion of the lane was laid down to the ancient highway soon afterward. This was called ye lane or highway in 1674; ye lane yt runs from ye salt water to ye main street, 1715; Manning's lane, 1722; a lane laid out for ye conveniency of Sarah Mansfield's house and land, 1748; a lane leading from the main street to the South river or harbor, 1788; and Orange street, 1812.

The ancient highway along the water's edge was provided for in the laying out of the town eight feet wide; and was used from that time. It was called the highway that leads along the banke in 1708; and a way in 1760. The laying out of Derby street, about 1767, caused its discontinuance except where it became a part of the new street, as at the foot of Orange street.

Derby street was laid out about 1767. It was at first called New street, and was known as Derby street as early as 1774.

Palfrey court was called Derby court in 1800, having been laid out about that date.

The harbor was called ye harbor or South river in 1671; the South harbor, 1683; ye river, 1688; the harbor or salt water, 1711; the South river, 1713; ye sea or salt water, 1715; ye harbor, 1722; ye sea, 1744; and Salem harbor in 1816.

In the sketches that follow, after 1700, titles and deeds referred to pertain to the houses and land under and adjoining and not always to the whole lot, the design being, after that date, to give the history of the houses then standing principally.

Stephen Daniel House. Joseph Grafton, jr., owned this lot in 1661. Stephen Daniel owned it as early as 1682; and died possessed of it Feb. 14, 1686-7, at the age of fifty-four. It descended to his son Stephen Daniel. The house was standing upon the lot as early as 1702, and was probably built by his father about 1667, although it might have been erected by the son about 1690. Mr. Daniel was a shipwright, and lived in this house, which, with the land under and adjoining, he conveyed to his daughter, widow Mary Silsby of Salem, March 16, 1748.* Here she lived during the remainder of her life; and the estate then descended to her only surviving child, Samuel Silsbee, of Salem, house-carpenter. He probably built the northern part of the house, as it now exists, at the time of his marriage, in 1756. He died Dec. 14, 1803, leaving three children, Samuel Silsbee of Salem, housewright, Deborah, wife of Daniel Sage of Salem, mariner, and Sarah, wife of David Patten. Mr. Patten died, and in 1808 Sarah married Haffield White Reed of Salem, mariner. The three heirs made a division of the homestead Aug. 18, 1818, the northern half of the house and land being released to Sarah,† and the southern half of the house and lot to Samuel.‡

Sarah Reed died possessed of her portion of the estate Sept. 2, 1860, a widow. Her house and the land being then valued at nine hundred and fifty dollars. The administrator of her estate conveyed her house and the land, for eight hundred and eighty-five dollars, to Elizabeth, wife of Joseph Hodges of Salem, Nov. 21, 1860.§ Mrs. Hodges died May 2, 1883; and under her will the northern part of the house and lot came to her children, Margaret C. Hanson, Sarah E. Hodges, and Gamaliel Hodges, and grandchildren, Clara H. Jelly, William M. Jelly and Marion H. Jelly, children of her deceased daughter, Elizabeth M. Jelly. In consideration of eleven hundred dollars, the estate was conveyed by these heirs to widow Sarah S. Russell Oct. 8, 1883,||

the interest of said Marion H. Jelly, a minor, being conveyed by her guardian in a separate deed.* Mrs. Russell died March 29, 1886, and this estate descended to her daughters, Rebecca S. Burger and Sarah R. Dexter, both of Salem.

Samuel Silsbee died possessed of the southern part of the house and lot June 7, 1822, having devised the estate in his will to his wife, Rebecca Silsbee. His part of the house was then occupied by Philip Manning and a Mr. Savary. Mrs. Silsbee owned it until her death, July 9, 1857, when it descended to numerous heirs, Nathaniel S. Hood, Martha P., wife of Stephen Whipple, all of Salem, Samuel S. Hood of Gloucester, Mary E. Peck, Lucy A. Peck, Margaret S. Peck, Harriet R., wife of Samuel T. Thompson, and Asa Hood, all of Medford, Julia A., wife of Samuel Leach, and Sarah R., wife of David Ranney, all of Charlestown, Thomas P. R. Hood and John S. Hood, both of South Reading, Mary, wife of Job Curtis of Woburn, Rebecca, wife of John Peck of Cincinnati, O., and Sarah S., wife of John W. Russell of Salem, carpenter. All the heirs, but the last-named, for seven hundred and twenty dollars, conveyed their interests in the house and lot to the latter husband, John W. Russell, Aug. 18, 1857.† He died May 10, 1875, having devised this estate to his wife, Sarah S. Russell, for her life, and then to his daughters, Rebecca S. Russell and Sarah E. Dexter, absolutely. It was then valued at twelve hundred dollars. The widow died in 1886, and the two daughters have since owned it together with the northern half of the house and lot.

Walter Palfrey House. This lot was the property of Matthew Dove of Salem, planter, Oct. 24, 1661, when he conveyed it to Joseph Grafton, jr., of Salem, mariner.‡ Mr. Grafton owned it in 1687.

STEPHEN DANIEL HOUSE.

It belonged to Nathaniel Chatwell of Salem, mariner, Dec. 8, 1694, when, for fifty pounds, he conveyed the house and lot to Walter Palfrey of Salem, sailmaker.* Whether the house was built by Mr. Grafton or Mr. Chatwell is not known to the writer. Mr. Palfrey apparently added to the house, and died possessed of the estate in 1713, when the house, shop, barn and land were valued at one hundred and sixty pounds. Under Mr. Palfrey's will the property became owned by his sons Warwick and Thomas. The former released the house, barn and land to the latter, in two deeds, Sept. 18, 1714,† and Feb. 13, 1717-8.‡ In the house were mentioned the large room, bed room, ye kitchen, great chamber, old chamber, etc. Thomas Palfrey was a sailmaker, and died in 1720, possessed of the house and land, having devised the estate in his will to his wife, Elizabeth Palfrey. She died in 1721, having in her will devised the house and lot to her mother, widow Elizabeth Derby of Salem, a shopkeeper. Mrs. Derby, for one hundred and fifty pounds, conveyed the lot, house and sailmaker's shop to Thomas Dean of Salem, mariner, Jan. 7, 1726-7.§ Upon the lot at that time was a work shop of Warwick Palfrey. Captain Dean probably removed the house soon after.

Samuel Wakefield House. This house and lot belonged to Matthew Dove of Salem, planter, in 1661. For twenty-five pounds, he conveyed the estate to Samuel Wakefield of Boston, tailor, Nov. 26, 1687.|| Mr. Dove then lived in the house, and continued to live there as late as 1689.¶ Mr. Wakefield subsequently removed to Salem, and lived in this house. To his daughter, Anna Wakefield, of Salem, singlewoman, for love, he conveyed the western lower room in the house and part of the garden, for the term of her life, March 26, 1728.* He died before Oct. 2, 1728, when administration was granted upon his estate. The house and lot, excepting what he had deeded to his daughter, was then appraised at one hundred and thirty pounds. For twenty-five pounds and eight shillings, the administrator of the estate of Mr. Wakefield conveyed the house and land, except the interest of his daughter (then Mrs. Anna (Wakefield) Brown), to Warwick Palfrey of Salem, sailmaker, Dec. 19, 1750;† and on the same day Robert Roundy of Beverly, weaver (who was the administrator of Mr. Wakefield's estate), conveyed to Mr. Palfrey the interest of said Anna.‡ At the time of the death of Mr. Palfrey in 1756, This house was occupied by Benjamin Bates, jr. In his will, Mr. Palfrey devised the house and lot to his wife for her life, and at her decease it became the estate of his young son Thomas Palfrey. The house, barn and land were then valued at two hundred and thirteen pounds, six shillings and eight pence. Thomas Palfrey took the house down Oct. 28, 1791. Under that date, Dr. William Bentley wrote: "Palfrey's House in Daniel's Lane taken down, very old, & infamous."‡

Richard Harris House. Matthew Dove of Salem, laborer, owned this lot as early as 1661. Mr. Richard Harris of Salem, mariner (probably son-in-law of Mr. Dove), had built a house upon it before April 7, 1680, when Mr. Dove conveyed the lot to him.§ Captain Harris removed to Boston, where he died in March, 1713-4, having devised, in his will, this house and lot to his daughter Susanna, in the following words: "Unto my Daughter Sufanna Harris my house and Land lying in the Town of Salem only my Cousin Mary Welsh, her living in that part of it, wherein she now lives During her natural life, and if my Louing Wife shall judge it meet that the house should be Sold for the more and better maintenance of my Daughter Susanna then that it may be Sold, and the Effects thereof to be put out, that the Interest may be for the maintaining of my Daughter whom I leave to the Care of my Loving wife, in that She is a helpless Child, and during my wife's natural Life, my Wife to have the disposing of the Incomes of it, for the best advantage of my Child, and at the end of my Life my Daughter Susanna to enjoy the Incomes thereof during her natural Life, and if She decease without any Child the Incomes to be for my Daughter Hannah Palfrey and Elizabeth Dutch and their Children." The will, having but two witnesses, was disallowed as to the real estate. The property descended to the children. It seems that, notwithstanding she was a helpless child, she married a Mr. Row, and lived in Boston; apparently becoming a pauper. "For twelve pounds and five shillings, paid to the overseers of the poor of Boston, under order of the general court of Dec. 19, 1739, they and she joined in a conveyance of the house and land to Samuel Smith of Salem, cordwainer, Nov. 4, 1742.* Mr. Smith died possessed of the estate before Aug. 7, 1769, when administration upon his estate was granted to his widow, Rebecca Smith. The estate was then described as "His Mansion House & about Eighteen Pole of Land under & adjoining," and appraised at one hundred and ten pounds. After the inventory of the estate was taken, Hannah Farrand, wife of James Farrand, mariner, and widow Hannah Collins, all of Boston, claimed two-thirds of the estate as heirs of Richard Harris. For fifty-eight pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence, they released the estate to Mrs. Smith, the widow of Samuel Smith, Dec. 8, 1769.* Mrs. Smith, for forty pounds, conveyed the house and lot to her brother, John Lovett, 4th, of Beverly, mariner, Nov. 24, 1772;† and he reconveyed the estate to her Feb. 7, 1775.‡ Stephen Smith of Boston, cooper, grandson of Samuel Smith, deceased, conveyed one-fourth of the house and lot to Thomas Williams of Salem, mariner, Dec. 28, 1796.§ Mr. Williams released his interest in the estate to Walter Palfrey Jeffrey of Salem, mariner, Oct. 15, 1798;|| and the house was removed before 1806.

Jonathan Ager House. This lot was a part of the homestead of Richard Prince of Salem, tailor, before June 23, 1653, when he conveyed it to Arthur Kipping of Salem, fisherman.¶ Mr. Kippin conveyed this lot to Jonathan Ager of Salem, ship-carpenter, July 19, 1669. Mr. Ager built a house upon the lot, and lived in it. For her dutiful carriage and behavior to him, and five pounds yearly, Mr. Ager conveyed the house and lot to his daughter Mary Ager April 28, 1709.†† She reconveyed the estate to her father Dec. 8, 1711;‡‡ and on the same day, in consideration of the grantee's marriage to the grantor's daughter Mary, he conveyed it to Elias Langsford of Salem, mariner, reserving the right to live in the house with them and the free use of the outhouse to build boats in for his lifetime.§§ Mr. Langsford removed to Boston, and, for forty pounds, conveyed the house and lot to Paul Mansfield of Salem, shoreman, Sept. 19, 1721.||| Mr. Mansfield, for forty-five pounds, conveyed the estate to William Mansfield of Salem, mariner, Nov. 27, 1721.* Mr. Mansfield died in 1758; the house being described in the inventory of his estate, as "an old house," and valued, without the land, at six pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence. The real estate was divided among the children April 6, 1773, the western half of the house being assigned to his daughter Susanna, wife of Gibson Clough, and the eastern half of the house and land to his son William Mansfield. The house was standing some years afterward.

Philip English House. This was the house and larger part of the homestead lot of half-an-acre of Richard Prince of Salem, tailor, before June 23, 1653, when he conveyed the entire homestead to Arthur Kipping of Salem, fisherman.† Martin Mezury of Salem, mariner, bought the estate Dec. 14, 1689; and, for forty-one pounds, conveyed it to Philip English of Salem, merchant, Dec. 18, 1699.‡ The house was standing in 1702, and was removed by Mr. English prior to his death, which occurred in 1735.

Lawrence Masury House. This lot was a portion of the homestead of Richard Prince of Salem, tailor, before June 23, 1653, when he conveyed it to Arthur Kippin of Salem, fisherman.† Mr. Kippin conveyed this lot to his daughter Mary and her husband Lawrence Masury of Salem May 20, 1673.§ Mr. Masury built a house upon the land and lived in it. He died about 1711, and his widow (?) Susannah married, secondly, John Wester of Salem, seaman. Mr. and Mrs. Wester, for thirty-two pounds, conveyed the house and lot to Daniel Rogers of Salem, mariner, Feb. 18, 1712-3.|| Mr. Rogers apparently took the old house down before 1724, when he died.

Thomas Jeggles House. This was the homestead of Thomas Jeggles at an early date. Ebenezer Giggles, spinster, Samuel Foot, shoreman, Malachi Foot, shoreman, widow Elizabeth Felton, and Abigail Foot, spinster, all of Salem, and Mary Foot of Manchester, spinster, for five shillings, released their interest in the house and land to Isaac Foot of Salem, mariner, April 30, 1734.* Thomas Laskin of Salem, cooper, with consent of his wife Mary, for thirty-two pounds, mortgaged an undivided third part of the estate to Benjamin Pickman of Salem, merchant, being the easterly half of the house as far as the middle of the stock of chimneys, March 26, 1737.† Benjamin Pickman of Salem, esquire, for fifteen pounds, conveyed the same estate to John Magraw of Salem, mariner, March 29, 1771.‡ The house, of which these notes are but a part of its history, was gone before 1779.

John Ormes House. This house and lot belonged to John Ormes, sr., in 1661. He died before 1702, when his widow possessed the house and land. Subsequently, his daughter, widow Mary Dowry, owned the estate. The house was probably gone soon afterward.

Thomas Day House. This house and lot belonged to Thomas Day in 1661. He was deceased in 1702; and his grandson John Day of Salem, only surviving son of John Day, of Salem, mariner, deceased, for three pounds, conveyed the house and land to John Collier, sr., of Salem, baker, another grandson of Thomas Day, July 11, 1702.§ Widow Mary Colefax, formerly of Salem, now of Boston, for twenty shillings, released her interest in the house and land to Mr. Collier, then a mariner, Feb. 6, 1710-1.|| Mr. Collier, then of Marblehead, mariner, for ten pounds and ten shillings, conveyed this lot to widow Mary Poulden of Salem March 1, 1710-1, the house being gone.||

Samuel Gardner House. This house and land were owned by George Gardner

in 1661. He died Aug. 20, 1679, possessed of the estate, and in his will he devised it to his son Capt. Samuel Gardner, who was then living in the house. The house and other buildings and land were valued at two hundred and seventy pounds. His "cousin" (probably son of his sister), John Buttolph, was living in the house March 4, 1701-2, when Captain Gardner conveyed the estate, for love, to his daughter Hannah and her husband, John Higginson, 3d, of Salem.* Mrs. Higginson died in 1713, and Mr. Higginson in 1718. The estate was then let to Bullock, and—appraised at one hundred and eighty pounds. In the division of his real estate, this house and lot, with the bake house, were assigned to his daughters, Elizabeth, wife of Rev. Benjamin Prescott of Salem, and Sarah Higginson, equally. For one hundred and ninety pounds, Mr. and Mrs. Prescott conveyed the house and lot to Richard Elvins of Salem, baker, April 10, 1721;† though Sarah Higginson did not release her interest in the estate to Mr. Prescott until June 9, 1725, when, for one hundred pounds, she conveyed the same to him.‡ For fifty pounds, Mr. Elvins conveyed the house and lot to Josiah Orne of Salem, mariner, Aug. 30, 1744.§ Mr. Orne conveyed the estate to John Carrel of Salem, fisherman, Nov. 8, 1748.|| Mr. Orne subsequently brought a suit-at-law against Mr. Carrel, and this estate was assigned to Mr. Orne, in satisfaction of the judgment that he recovered against Mr. Carrel, Sept. 23, 1756.¶ Mr. Orne, for forty-six pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence, conveyed the house and lot to John Webb of Salem, cordwainer, April 26, 1757; and Mr. Webb removed the house soon after, probably before 1764.

Samuel Foot House. This house was standing in 1661, and was with the land the property of Lt. George Gardner. His daughter Mary married Habakkuk Turner in 1670, and they lived in this house. Mr. Gardner died Aug. 20, 1679, having, in his will, devised this estate to his daughter Mary and her husband for their joint lives, and then to such of their children as Mr. Turner should give it after him. The house and lot were then appraised at ninety pounds. Mr. Turner died in 1685; and the estate was valued, in the inventory of his estate, at sixty pounds. Mrs. Turner survived him, and probably died before Oct. 13, 1698, when their only surviving child, Robert Turner, of Wethersfield, Conn., for forty pounds, conveyed the house and lot to Samuel Foot of Salem.* Mr. Foot died in 1741; and the house and lot descended to his heirs. The house was gone before 1799, when the heirs sold the land.

Nathaniel Ingersoll House. This lot was a part of the land conveyed by Timothy Laskin to Robert Gray of Salem before 29: 7: 1656, when Mr. Gray conveyed it to John Ingersoll of Salem.† Mr. Ingersoll's son Nathaniel built a house upon the lot, and died, possessed of the house, in 1683. The father died later, in the same year, leaving this lot to his son Nathaniel's widow for her life, and at her decease to her son Nathaniel. The house was valued at eighty pounds and the land at six pounds. Nathaniel's son Nathaniel died in 1704, and the latter's estate was inherited by his brother John Ingersoll of Lynn, husbandman, and his sister Elizabeth. The latter probably conveyed her interest in this part of the estate of her brother Nathaniel to her brother John Ingersoll before May 9, 1710, when the latter, for eleven pounds, conveyed his interest in the estate to Lawrence Knight of Salem, mariner.‡ Mr. Knight apparently removed the house and built a new one upon the lot before his death, which occurred in 1729.

Samuel Ingersoll House. This lot was a part of the land conveyed by Timothy Laskin to Robert Gray of Salem before 29: 7: 1656, when Mr. Gray conveyed it to John Ingersoll of Salem.* Mr. Ingersoll's son John built a house upon the lot about 1670; and the father died in 1683, having, in his will, devised the lot to his son John. John Ingersoll was a mariner, and lived here. He died in 1694, possessed of the house and lot, which were then valued at sixty pounds. The estate was divided in 1695, this house and lot becoming the property of John Ingersoll's son Samuel. Samuel Ingersoll owned the house in 1702; and the house was apparently gone soon after.

Richard Ingersoll House. This lot was a part of the land conveyed by Timothy Laskin to Robert Gray of Salem before 29: 7: 1656, when Mr. Gray conveyed it to John Ingersoll of Salem.* Mr. Ingersoll's son Richard built a house upon the lot about 1675; and died, possessed of the house, in 1683. The father died later, in the same year, having, in his will, devised the lot to the widow of his son Richard, for her life, and then to the latter's son Richard. Sarah, widow of Richard Ingersoll, married, secondly, Joseph Procter of Ipswich, yeoman, before Dec. 24, 1701, when she released her interest in the estate to her son Richard Ingersoll.† The last-named Richard Ingersoll died prior to July 1, 1708, when administration upon his estate was granted to his widow, Ruth Ingersoll. The next owners of this house and lot, of record, are widow Elizabeth Hinchy and William Burrows, frame maker, both of Boston, and John Burrows of Killingsly, Conn., joiner, who, for thirty-four pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence, conveyed the estate to Jonathan Very of Salem, cordwainer, Nov. 6, 1751.‡ For forty pounds, Mr. Very conveyed the house and lot to widow Elizabeth Valpy of Salem April 24, 1753;* and, for ten pounds, Mrs. Valpy conveyed the western half of the house and land to her son Abraham Valpy of Salem, fisherman, March 31, 1767.† The house stood end to the street, facing the south, the front door being in the middle. Abigail Very subsequently owned the eastern part of the house and lot, and William Cabot of Brooklyn, N. Y., merchant, Francis Cowell of Boston, and wife Hannah, and Susanna Lowell, spinster, for eighty pounds, conveyed the same westerly half of the "old dwelling house" to Abigail Very, singlewoman, Feb. 1, 1802.‡ The house was probably gone soon afterward.

Estate of Richard Rose House. That part of this lot lying easterly of the dashes was a part of the land conveyed by Timothy Laskin to Robert Gray of Salem before 29: 7: 1656, when Mr. Gray conveyed it to John Ingersoll of Salem.§ Mr. Ingersoll gave this lot, by deed, to his daughter Ruth and her husband Richard Rose Oct. 30, 1672.|| Mr. Rose had already built a house upon the lot.

That part of this lot lying westerly of the dashes was owned by John Swasey before 15: 1: 1652, when he conveyed it to widow Dorothy King of Salem.¶ Mrs. King conveyed it to Thomas Johnson and Thomas Reignolds Oct. 21, 1653; and Mr. Reignolds released his interest in it to Mr. Johnson Feb. 20, 1653-4.†† Mr. Johnson conveyed it to Adam Westgate 29: 6: 1654.‡‡ Mr. Westgate was of Salem, mariner, and conveyed the lot to Walter Mountjoy of Salem, fisherman, Jan. 26, 1675-6.‡‡ For twelve pounds, Mr. Mountjoy conveyed it to Richard Rose, who owned and lived on the other

Mr. Rose thus became the owner of the entire lot. He died in 1684, possessed of the house and lot, which were then valued at eighty pounds. He left four children, Richard, Ruth, John and Judith. The sons died before 1707, and Judith died between that date and 1715. The surviving child, Ruth, wife of William Hibbert, late of Salem, then of Portsmouth, N. H., clothier, conveyed the house and lot to Benjamin Walker of Boston, merchant, May 18, 1715.† Mr. Walker, for seventy pounds, conveyed the same estate to John Berry of Salem, mariner, Dec. 7, 1722.‡ Mr. Berry died in 1746, having removed the old house apparently.

Samuel Ingersoll Lot. This was a part of the land conveyed by Timothy Laskin to Robert Gray of Salem before 29: 7: 1656, when Mr. Gray conveyed it to John Ingersoll of Salem.§ Mr. Ingersoll died, possessed of this and the adjoining lot to the south, in 1683; having in his will devised to his son John Ingersoll the northern half of the barn and this lot. Mr. Ingersoll died possessed of the same real estate in 1694. It was then appraised at twenty pounds. It became the property of his son Samuel Ingersoll, who owned it until 1715.

Estate of Samuel Ingersoll House. This was the house and part of the lot of land conveyed by Timothy Laskin to Robert Gray of Salem before 29: 7: 1656, when Mr. Gray, for forty-five pounds, conveyed the house and entire lot, including all land on that side of Daniels street from Essex street to the South river, to John Ingersoll of Salem.§ Mr. Ingersoll died, possessed of this part of the estate, in 1683; having devised it, with the southern half of the barn, to his son Samuel Ingersoll. This portion of the estate was appraised at sixty-five pounds. Samuel Ingersoll lived here, and died, possessed of the same estate, Nov. 19, 1696. It was then appraised at fifty-five pounds. Apparently the surviving child was Sarah, wife of Josiah Orne of Salem, cordwainer, who, for twenty pounds, conveyed the estate to Thomas Beadle of Salem Oct. 22, 1715.* The house was apparently removed by Mr. Beadle before his death, which occurred in 1734.

Mary Ingersoll House. This was a part of the lot of land conveyed by John Swasey of Salem to widow Dorothy King of Salem 15: 1: 1652.† Mrs. King conveyed it to Thomas Johnson and Thomas Reignolds Oct. 21, 1653;‡ and Mr. Reignolds released his interest in it to Mr. Johnson Feb. 20, 1653-4.§ Mr. Johnson conveyed it to Adam Westgate 29: 6: 1654.§ Mr. Westgate was of Salem, mariner, and conveyed the lot to Walter Mountjoy (also Munjoy) of Salem, fisherman, Jan. 26, 1675-6.|| Mr. Mountjoy built a house upon it, and lived in it. He died, possessed of the estate, before July 29, 1684, when administration upon his estate was granted to his widow. The "dwelling house and land, and little outhouse" were then appraised at sixty pounds. A suit at law was brought against the estate by Thomas Ives of Salem, slaughterer, and judgment obtained in due course. The execution that was issued on the judgment was levied on this house and land, which were duly set off to Mr. Ives, the judgment creditor, April 18, 1685, being valued at sixty pounds.¶ Mr. Ives, for sixty-eight pounds, conveyed the estate to Mr. Thomas Beadle of Salem, mariner, May 19, 1685. Mr. Beadle became a tavern-keeper, the county court sometimes sitting in this house. The court of oyer and terminer, which tried the alleged witches, in 1692, held some of its sessions here.

Mr. Beadle conveyed "my now dwelling house" and lot to John Robinson, sr., of Salem, tailor, June 18, 1695,* and moved across the street. Mr. Robinson apparently conveyed the estate to Richard King of Salem, slaughterer, before Oct. 18, 1697. Mr. King, for sixty pounds, conveyed the house, shop and land to widow Mary Ingersoll of Salem Feb. 21, 1697-8.† Mrs. Ingersoll lived in this house, and died in June, 1711, possessed of the estate, having devised it to her daughter Mary, wife of George Cox. Her son, John Cox, built an addition of considerable size on the north end of the house in 1725; and died possessed of it before April 17, 1733, when his mother, or his administratrix, conveyed that part of the house to Abraham Valpey of Salem, mariner, for fifty pounds.‡ She, also, conveyed to Mr. Valpey, on the same day, for twenty-five pounds, a part of her house, next to the new part built by her son John, and which she had conveyed to Mr. Valpey, the line running through the stack of chimneys.§

The northern part of the house and lot that had been conveyed to Mr. Valpey, was mortgaged by him to John Cabot of Salem, merchant, April 17, 1733.¶ The mortgage, evidently, was foreclosed; and John Cabot's sons, Francis Cabot and Joseph Cabot, both of Salem, merchants, who, with widow Hannah Cabot of Salem, for forty-three pounds, six shillings and eight pence, conveyed that part of the house and lot to John Crowninshield of Salem, mariner, Nov. 28, 1752.¶ John Crowninshield of Salem, shipwright, for thirty-nine pounds, six shillings and eight pence, conveyed the same estate to William Wyatt of Salem, mariner, Nov. 10, 1756. For eighty-nine pounds and sixteen shillings, Mr. Wyatt conveyed it to James Cheever of Salem, mariner, Feb 14, 1765.*

Mrs. Mary Cox continued to own the southern part of the house and lot as late as 1753, probably until her decease, before 1759. Sarah (Cox) Beans, widow, and her daughter, Mary Beans, jr., spinster, both of Salem, conveyed their interest in this part of the house and lot to Joseph Brown of Salem, mariner, son of William Brown of Salem, deceased (who paid debts of the estate of David Cox of Salem, deceased), for five shillings, March 22, 1759.† Mr. Brown died in 1763, possessed of that part of the house and lot.

James Cheever and Sarah Brown, widow of Joseph Brown, both of Salem, unitedly released the entire estate, for eight hundred dollars, to Joseph Brown of Salem, mariner, probably son of Joseph Brown, deceased, Aug. 24, 1799.‡ Mr. Brown died in 1831, possessed of the house and lot, which were then appraised at one thousand dollars. His administrator, for nine hundred and sixty dollars, conveyed the estate to Nathaniel Weston of Salem, master-mariner, June 8, 1832.§ For fifteen hundred dollars, Mr. Weston conveyed the house and lot to Julia A., wife of Samuel C. Weston of Salem Aug. 24, 1866.¶ Mrs. Weston took the old house down immediately after her purchase of the estate, and erected the present house upon the same site. The old house stood end to the street with the front door on the western side midway of the house. It was a plain, two-story house, with a pitch roof.

Thomas Downing House. John Swasey conveyed that part of this lot lying east of the dashes with the house thereon to widow Dorothy King of Salem 15: 1: 1652.¶ Mrs. King conveyed the same estate to Thomas Johnson and Thomas Reignolds Oct. 21, 1653.* Mr. Reignolds released his interest in the property to Mr. Johnson Feb. 20, 1653-4.† Mr. Johnson conveyed the house and lot to Adam Westgate 29: 6: 1654.‡ Mr. Westgate lived in Salem, mariner, and gave, by deed, the house and entire lot to his son John Westgate April 3, 1685.‡ John Westgate was of Salem, mariner, and, for sixty pounds and nine shillings, mortgaged the house and land to Lt. Thomas Gardner of Salem Nov. 17, 1690.§ The estate came into the possession of Adam Westgate again, and he conveyed the same to Nicholas Chattwell of Salem, mariner, before May 4, 1698, when, for sixty pounds, the latter conveyed the house, orchard and garden to Thomas Downing of Salem, merchant.|| Mr. Downing died in 1702, having, in her will, devised his homestead, housing and wharf after the decease of his wife, to his kinsman Richard Downing who then dwelt with him. The dwelling house, shop and frame standing at the end of the shop and five-eighths of an acre of land were then appraised at two hundred pounds. In the house is mentioned the kitchen, kitchen chamber, hall, hall chamber, leanto, etc. Richard Downing removed to Andover, being a cooper, and conveyed the house, orchard, garden, etc., to Warwick Palfrey of Salem, sailmaker, for one hundred and thirty-five pounds, Nov. 17, 1721.¶ Mr. Palfrey died in 1756, having devised "the dwelling house I now live in with the land under it and the yard garden and land belonging with the warehouse thereon" to his eldest son Warwick Palfrey. How much longer the house stood is unknown; but it was probably the property of the latter's grandson, Thomas Palfrey, in 1800.

Christopher Phelps House. This lot belonged to Timothy Laskin in 1653, and to Christopher Phelps in 1661 and 1698. The house was standing upon the lot in 1661. Mr. Phelps died about 1700. Widow Lydia Carkett (or Curkeet) of Salem owned it in 1702; and, for sixty pounds, conveyed the "old dwelling house" and lot to Paul Mansfield, jr., of Salem, mariner, May 16, 1717.* For eighty pounds, Mr. Mansfield conveyed the estate to John Mansfield of Salem, mariner, Nov. 18, 1720.† Mr. Mansfield died in 1736, possessed of the estate. His widow, Mary Mansfield, married John Trask Dec. 1, 1736, and she was the latter's widow Sept. 19, 1753, when she, who then lived in Newbury, and her "sons," John Mansfield of Salisbury, cordwainer, and John Wiat of Newbury, ship-carpenter, for sixty pounds, conveyed the house and lot to Jonathan Mansfield of Lynn, blacksmith.‡ Mr. Jonathan Mansfield, for sixty-seven pounds, six shillings and eight pence, conveyed the house and lot to William Webster of Salem, mariner, Dec. 24, 1753.§ Mr. Webster probably took down the old house immediately after his purchase of it.

Estate of Michael Chapleman House. This lot belonged to Paul Mansfield of Salem, fisherman, very early. For forty-five shillings, he conveyed it to Samuel Robinson of Salem, baker, on condition that the grantee should not convey it to any one but the lawful posterity of grantee or of his wife Constance, April 7, 1661.|| Mr. Robinson built a house upon the land, and, for sixty-five pounds, conveyed the house and lot to Michael Chapleman of Salem, seaman, April 7, 1669.¶ Mr. Chapleman died May 7, 1692, possessed of the estate. The house and land were then valued at forty-five pounds; in 1700 they were valued at thirty-eight pounds. For thirty pounds, the administrator of his estate conveyed the house and lot to Nathaniel Silsbee, jr., of Salem, joiner, Jan. 5, 1700-1*. Mr. Silsbee died Jan. 2, 1769, having devised this estate to his son William Silsbee of Salem, housewright. William Silsbee died in 1783, having, in his will, devised the house and lot to his wife Joanna Silsbee. Mrs. Silsbee died Feb. 25, 1793, possessed of the estate. Two of her children apparently released their interest in the property to their sister, widow Martha Babbidge of Salem, before Oct. 5, 1798, when she and her son, Christopher Babbidge of Salem, mariner, conveyed three-fifths of the estate to Samuel Townsend of Salem, mariner.† Another of the children and heirs of Mrs. Silsbee probably released his or her share of the house and lot to Mansfield Burrill, jr., of Salem, housewright, husband or son of Mrs. Silsbee's daughter Joanna, before Oct. 5, 1798, when, for four hundred and eighty dollars, he conveyed two-fifths of the estate to Mr. Townsend.‡ Mr. Townsend was lost at sea in 1801, being possessed of the house and lot. He devised it, in his will, to his wife, Mercy Townsend. Mrs. Townsend, for eighteen hundred and fifty dollars, conveyed the estate to her daughter, Widow Mercy Upton of Salem, Sept. 20, 1838.† Mrs. Upton died in 1855, possessed of the house and lot, having devised the estate to her daughter Eliza M. Upton for life, and then to the testatrix' sons, Moses I. Upton and John P. Upton. The house is still standing and belongs to the Upton heirs. The old house as it now appears is shown on the opposite page. The front end is new.

Simon Willard House. This lot belonged to Paul Mansfield in 1661, and to Thomas Ives, with the house thereon, about 1671. Mr. Ives died in 1695, possessed of the house and lot, which were then mortgaged to Mr. Turner, and appraised at ninety-five pounds. The house then had northern and southern rooms down stairs and chambers over them, kitchen, kitchen chamber, etc. Mr. Ives' widow, Elizabeth (Metcalf) Ives, married, secondly, John White Jan. 16, 1695-6. She was administratrix of Mr. Ives' estate, and with her husband, John White of Salem, slaughterman, for ninety-five pounds, conveyed the same to Capt. Simon Willard of Salem, shoreman, March 27, 1699.* Captain Willard, weaver alias shoreman, for one hundred and seventy pounds, conveyed "my now dwelling house," etc., to his son Josiah Willard of Salem, innholder, Jan. 6, 1728-9.†

Mr. Willard, shoreman, for eighty-five pounds, conveyed the northerly half of the house and lot to his brother Richard Willard of Salem, mariner, June 11, 1729;‡ and, on the same day, the latter, for sixty pounds, mortgaged the northern half of the estate to Capt. Thomas Ellis of Salem, mariner.§ The mortgage was foreclosed apparently by Captain Ellis, who had removed to Beverly. He died in 1743, having devised his real estate, after the decease of his wife Sarah, to his four sons, James, Francis, Richard and Samuel. In the inventory of his estate, the house is valued at twenty-eight pounds and the land at forty-six pounds and sixteen shillings. The sons, James, Francis and Samuel Ellis, died without issue, and their mother, Sarah Ellis of Beverly, released the house and lot to her son Richard Ellis of Beverly, ship-joiner, March 28, 1757.¶ On the same day, Mr. Ellis, for sixty pounds, conveyed the estate to Joseph Hodges of Salem, merchant.¶

Dea. Josiah Willard died April 7, 1731, possessed of the southern half of the house and lot, which was then appraised at eighty-five pounds, being rented by Jacob Willard. Deacon Willard's children, Josiah Willard, sailmaker, and widow Mary Johnson, both of Boston, for thirteen pounds, six shillings and eight pence, conveyed this part of the house and lot to Captain Hodges (called "mariner" in this deed) May 18, 1750.*

Thus Captain Hodges became the owner of the entire house and lot. For two hundred pounds, he conveyed the estate to Jonathan Andrew of Salem, tanner, March 6, 1780.† Nathaniel Vincent, mariner, and Sarah Vincent, both of Salem, released the same estate to Mr. Andrew (then called a trader), for eighty dollars, July 28, 1818.‡ Gamaliel Hodges, mariner, and Ward Chipman, trader, and wife Mary, in her right, for two hundred dollars, also quitclaimed the estate to Mr. Andrew Oct. 30, 1818.§ Mr. Andrew died April 18, 1844, having, in his will, devised this house and lot to his niece Mrs. Sarah Narbonne of Salem. Mrs. Narbonne died, a widow, March 13, 1890, having, in her will, devised the estate to her daughter Mary Andrew Narbonne. Miss Narbonne lived in the house until her decease, March 21, 1905, when the estate descended to her brother's son, the only heir-at-law, Gardner H. Narbonne of Los Angeles, Cal.

The frontispiece of this number of The Antiquarian is a view of this ancient house as it now appears.

Timothy Laskin House. This lot belonged to Paul Mansfield in 1674; and he conveyed the lot to Timothy Laskin of Salem, cooper, May 15, 1688.¶ The house which subsequently stood upon the lot was probably built about that time. Mr. Laskin died, possessed of the house and lot, in 1700; and the title descended to his only child, Thomas Laskin. Thomas Laskin of Salem, cooper, conveyed "the homestead" house and land to Paul Mansfield of Salem, mariner, Nov. 18, 1708.¶ There was then standing upon the lot a cooper shop, which the grantor had liberty to remove by the terms of the deed.

The house was standing about 1737, but how much longer is uncertain.

Benjamin Stone House. This lot belonged to Paul Mansfield of Salem, fisherman, very early. For fourteen pounds, he conveyed that part of it lying westerly of the dashes to William Reeves of Salem, butcher, Jan. 2, 1670-1.* Mr. Reeves built the house upon the lot immediately after his purchase, and, for seventy pounds, conveyed the house and land to Robert Stone of Salem, seaman, March 10, 1674-5.*

That part of the lot easterly of the dashes was evidently conveyed by Mr. Mansfield to George Holland of Boston and his wife Sarah in 1675; and, for eighteen pounds, Mr. and Mrs. Holland conveyed it to Mr. Stone Jan. 6, 1676.† Timothy Laskin of Salem, cooper, for five shillings, released this part of the lot to Mr. Stone Sept. 20, 1688.‡

Thus Mr. Stone became the owner of the house and the entire lot. He died, possessed of the estate, in 1690. In the division of his real estate, this part of it was assigned to his son Benjamin Stone. Benjamin Stone died, possessed of it, Nov. 30, 1703. It was then appraised at one hundred pounds. By the will of Mr. Stone, the estate passed to children of his brothers Samuel Stone and Robert Stone and of his sister Sarah Manning, namely: to Samuel, Robert, Elizabeth, Katherine, Mary and Sarah, children of Samuel Stone; Robert, Jacob, Elizabeth, Sarah, Richard and Benjamin, children of Sarah Manning; and Robert, son of Robert Stone. A division of the house and land occurred before 1720, though it was not done in writing until Feb. 7, 1728,§ the southern half being assigned to Samuel Stone for his children's share, and the northern half to Jacob Manning for his children by his wife Sarah (Stone). The dividing line ran through the stack of chimneys. Samuel Stone, who was of Salem, bricklayer, for fifty pounds, conveyed the southern half to Jacob Manning, who was then of Salem, gunsmith, and a resident of this house, Jan. 21, 1719-20.* Mr. Manning's children continued to own the northern half of the house and lot. Between the date of Benjamin Stone's will and his death three more children had been born to his sister Sarah Manning, and three had died before Dec. 13, 1722, when an agreement and conveyance was made by which this part of the house and lot became the property of Sarah Manning, Katherine, wife of John Berry, and Mary Manning, all of Salem.† The three owners of this part, or one hundred and thirty-three pounds, conveyed it to their brother Samuel Manning of Salem, gunsmith, Oct. 25, 1730.‡ Samuel Manning removed to Oxford, and conveyed the same part of the estate to John Hodges of Salem, mariner, May 20, 1749.§ How much longer the house stood is not known to the writer.

Benjamin Small House. This land belonged to Paul Mansfield of Salem, fisherman, in 1670. For ten pounds, he conveyed this lot to Benjamin Small of Salem, sailmaker, Feb. 15, 1674.|| Mr. Small died about 1700; and the house was standing Nov. 3, 1752, when Mr. Small's granddaughter, Hepzibeth Small of Boston, spinster, for five pounds, six shillings and eight pence, conveyed one-half of the house and land to John Hodges of Salem, mariner.¶

Ruth Langsford Lot. This land belonged to Paul Mansfield very early, and he died possessed of it in 1696, having devised it, in his will, to his daughter Ruth Langsford. She owned it until Jan. 21, 1715-6, when she conveyed it, for sixteen pounds and three shillings, to William Tozer of Salem, fisherman.

Damaris Tozer House. This land belonged early to Paul Mansfield; and his daughter Mrs. Damaris Tozer built a house on it about 1685. In his will, at his death in 1696, her father devised this lot to her. She died between 1702 and 1728; and the house was apparently gone before 1761.

Rebecca Mansfield Lot. This was early the land of Paul Mansfield, and he died, possessed of it, in 1696, having devised it, in his will, to his daughter Rebecca Mansfield. She married Edward Ball of Boston, rigger, Aug. 4, 1712; and they conveyed the lot to William Tozer of Salem, fisherman, Oct. 29, 1718.*

Abigail Hooper Lot. This land was early the property of Paul Mansfield, and he died, possessed of it, in 1696, having devised it to his daughter Abigail, wife of William Hooper of Marblehead, fisherman, with the barn thereon. She owned it until after 1718.

Estate of Paul Mansfield House. This was the house and lot of Paul Mansfield in 1661, being his homestead. He died in 1696, having, in his will, devised this lot and house to his eldest son John Mansfield, for his life, and then to the legal heirs of his body. John Mansfield died without issue, and the estate descended to the children and heirs of his father, viz: Paul Mansfield, mariner, Ruth Langsford, Damaris Tozer and Rebecca Mansfield, all of Salem, who, for twenty pounds, conveyed their interest in the house and lot to William Hooper of Marblehead, fisherman, husband of their sister Abigail, Feb. 10, 1699-1700.† Mr. Hooper, for twenty pounds, reconveyed the estate to the grantors Feb. 12, 1701-2.‡ Paul Mansfield, Damaris Tozer and Rebecca Mansfield (who had married Edward Ball of Boston, rigger, in 1712), for fourteen pounds and seventeen shillings, conveyed their interest in the house and land to their sister, widow Ruth Langsford of Salem, Jan. 18, 1715.* For thirty-one pounds, Mrs. Langsford conveyed the land and buildings to Samuel Elsey of Salem, mariner, April 15, 1718.† The house was apparently gone soon after.

WILL OF DANIEL REA.

The will of Daniel Rea of Salem was proved in the court at Salem 24 : 4 : 1662. The following is a copy of the original paper which was proved as and for his last will and is on file in the office of the clerk of courts at Salem, volume VIII, leaf 16.

THOMAS PURCHAS OF PEJEPSCOT.

BY CHARLES EDWARD BANKS, M. D.

In 1889, at a celebration held by the town of Brunswick, Maine, in commemoration of its settlement, the late William M. Sargent, esq., of Portland, read an interesting paper entitled "Thomas Purchas, the Founder of Brunswick; Additional Light upon his Family Connections, Home and Patent," in which, as a result of his painstaking researches and clear antiquarian acumen, he demonstrated conclusively the marital relations of Thomas Purchas, a demonstration verified by extracts from legal documents, as he states, "to straighten out the relationships of his family, confusion which has been worse confounded by the fact that there were three Thomas Purchases; that two of them married women whose christian names were Elizabeth; that there were three Elizabeth Purchases, two of whom married men each named John Blany; and that two of Purchas' sons married sisters surnamed Williams." It will be sufficient to state for the purposes of this communication that Thomas Purchas, who was born about 1576 and died in Lynn, Mass., in 1678, a centenarian, married, first, Mary Gove (who died 1655), and, second, Elizabeth, widow of Richard Pike of Falmouth, Maine, and that after the death of Purchas she married, November, 1679, for her third husband, John Blany, sr., of Lynn. The object of this paper is to identify the second wife, widow Elizabeth Pike, the mother of all his children, and I quote the following extracts from a document recorded in the old Norfolk records which first gave me a clue to a conclusive answer: Jane Mackworth, widow, formerly widow of Samuel Andrews of Falmouth, on February 7th, 1669-70, gave a certain tract of land in Falmouth, as a belated marriage portion, to her daughter Phillippa, wife of George Felt, jr., who had been married to Phillippa Andrews November 25, 1662. This land was at Mussel cove in Falmouth, and bounded "upon the southwest side of my Daughter purchas, her land, which was given her by my Deceased husband Mr. Arthur Mackworth." (Old Norfolk Records, IV, 95; comp. ibid., IV, 77). This conveyance, recorded in a distant registry, was unknown to Mr. Sargent, or he would have seen its import at once.

Mr. Samuel Andrews "Citizen of London," and his wife Jane came to New England, in 1635, with two daughters, Jane and Elizabeth, aged three and two years respectively (G. R., XIV, 309, 310), accompanied by a maid servant. He had two other children, a son James, born in 1635, and daughter Phillippa, who became the wife of George Felt. Samuel Andrews dying shortly after the emigration, the widow married Mr. Arthur Mackworth of Falmouth, by whom she had a second set of children. At his death, Mackworth left his property to their children and her Andrews children (Willis' History of Portland, I, 32, 75, 165). Among this property was land at Mussel cove, Falmouth.

Contemporaneously, in Falmouth, was a Richard Pike, said to have been previously of Newbury, 1655 (Savage, III, 436), and it will be shown that he married Elizabeth Andrews, the two-year-old daughter of Samuel and Jane, brought over in 1635, and resided at Mussel cove until his death. No dates are accessible, as the early Falmouth records were destroyed during the Indian wars. Probably he married her when she was about 20 years of age (1653), and they had one child, a son, Samuel, who, in 1688, claimed in a petition that his father, Richard Pike, deceased, had been possessor of a tract of land on the west side of Mussel cove.

After the death of Pike, Elizabeth Andrews married old Thomas Purchas, whose first wife had died 7th of November, 1656, in Boston (Savage). Supposing an immediate marriage to have taken place, say 1657, Thomas Purchas was at that time eighty years of age, and his wife Elizabeth, twenty, a discrepancy of fifty-six years.* Purchas was a large landed proprietor, the owner of the great Pejepscot patent, and if she became the bride of his old age under expectation of a short wedded life and an early inheritance of his property, she was doomed to disappointment for he survived twenty years and she bore him five children. This number is now known by name and accounted for though not named in his will; but in the fifth "article" of that instrument an apparent discrepancy occurs, in which he refers "to the said Eliza; & her six children." It is now clear that the additional child was Samuel Pike, the issue of her first marriage, a fact abundantly proved by Mr. Sargent in his paper.

Now to confirm this I quote from a deed executed, in 1716, by the children of this Samuel Pike, then deceased, in which they conveyed their interest in his estate at Mussel cove, Falmouth, "being an equall share with the shares of Mrs. Mackworth's children in the whole of it," and the tract is described as "adjoyning George felts land" (York Deeds, IX, 207, 208). That is to say, they inherited certain land at Mussel cove which descended to them in equal shares with the children of Mrs. Jane Andrews-Mackworth, through her daughter Elizabeth Pike, and this land adjoining the land at Mussel cove given by Mrs. Mackworth to Phillippa Felt is the land referred to as "My Daughter purchas her land." Mrs. Elizabeth (Andrews) Pike-Purchas soon after fell a victim to Cupid's wiles and in November, 1679, took a third husband, John Blany, sr., of Lynn. The children who conveyed this title in 1716 were Richard Pike, blacksmith (wife Elizabeth), Nathaniel Pike, shipwright (wife Margaret), Mary (Pike) Gray, widow, and Mary Pike, widow, their mother, all of Salem (York Deeds, IX, 207).

The Purchas children are as follows: I. Thomas,² married Elizabeth Williams, daughter of John, of Salem, 3: 10: 1679; and had Thomas³, born 20 Jan., 1680, making three of the name at that date. Thomas² was lost at sea before 1684, and legally declared dead. II. Jane², married Oliver Elkins. III. Elizabeth,² married John Blany, jr. IV. Abraham,² married Ruth Williams, daughter of John, of Salem, and had Ruth, born 10 June, 1702; and Benjamin, born 2 March, 1706. V. Sarah,² married Gamaliel Phippen.

NOTES.

SALEM, June 27.

We hear from Beverly, that a few Days since died there, after a long Indisposition, Mrs. CHIPMAN, aged about 62, Wife of the Rev. Mr. JOHN CHIPMAN, one of the Ministers of that Town ; a Lady of a fair and worthy Character.

Ipswich, June 22.

It gives us a noble Prospect to see what a Spirit of Industry and Frugality prevails, at this Day, in the American young Ladies ; and Generosity towards their Gospel Ministers ; it seems as if they were determined fully to copy after King Solomon's virtuous Woman, whose Price is above Rubies, in seeking Wool and Flax—working willingly with their Hands ;—in laying their Hands to the Spindle, and their Hands holding the Distaff, &c. As to their generous Spinning Matches, the Publick have been favoured with the Publication of divers Instances ; and it is likely will soon have many more.

Yesterday Morning, very early, the young Ladies in that Parish of this Town called Chebacco, to the Number of 77, assembled at the House of the Rev'd Mr. John Cleaveland, with their Spinning-Wheels ; and though the Weather, that Day, was extremely hot, and divers of the young Ladies were but about 13 Years of Age, yet by six o'Clock, in the Afternoon, they spun, of Linen Yarn 440 Knots, and carded and spun, of Cotton 730 Knots, and of Tow 600, in all 1770 Knots, which make 177 ten-knot Skeins, all good Yarn, and generously gave their Work and some bro't Cotton and Flax with them, more than they spun themselves, as a Present ; and several of the People were kind and generous upon this Occasion. And it may be worthy of noting, that one spun of good Linen Yarn 52 Knots, and another of Cotton 60 Knots, it being carded for her.

After the Mufick of the Wheels was over, Mr. Cleaveland entertained them with a Sermon on Prov. 14. 1. Every wife Woman buildeth her House ; but the foolish plucketh it down with her Hands ;—which he concluded, by observing, How the Women might recover to this Country the full and free Enjoyment of all our Rights, Properties and Privileges, (which is more than the Men have been able to do) : And so have the Honour of building, not only their own, but the Houses of many Thousands, and, perhaps, prevent the Ruin of the whole British Empire, viz. By living upon, as far as possible, only the Produce of this Country ; and to be sure to lay aside the Use of all foreign Teas. Also, by wearing, as far as possible, only Cloathing of this Country's manufacturing.

Their Behaviour was decent,—and they manifested nothing but Pleasure and Satisfaction in their Countenances at their retiring, as well as through the whole preceding Transactions of the Day.

Wenham, June 23, 1769.

On Tuesday last, came early in the Morning a Number of young Women to the House of the Rev'd Joseph Swain, with Flax, Wool, and Wheels, in order to spend the Day in spinning, which they did till 6 o'Clock, P. M. with Cheerfulness, Discretion, and Industry. Their Diligence and Industry, in the Business of the Day, will appear by comparing the Number of Spinners and the Quantity of the Yarn spun. The Spinners were in Number 38 ; the Quantity of Yarn was 75 Run : All which they generously gave to him and Family, besides a considerable Quantity of Flax and Wool, which was left unspun.

The Merchants and Traders of the Town of SALEM, are requested to meet at the King's-Arms, at 7 o'Clock, this Evening. As there is some Buiness of Consequence to be considered of, it is hoped there will be a general Attendance.
June 27.

THE OLD HOUSE.

BY MARIE S. LADD.

The south wind sweeps, in gusty swell,
Around its walls with sullen gloom,
And swings its tongueless, tilting bell,
And moaning sighs from room to room.

The snow whirls through the shattered panes,
Sifting against the oaken wall,
Stained with the dull and drenching rains
That through the open rafters fall.

A triple purpose, so 'tis said,
It served, a score of years or more,
When houses, here, were scarce as bread—
It then was tavern, church, and store.

And village prate, of this old house,
Bears many a vein of interest deep;
Of nights of grief, or wild carouse,
The babbling records duly keep.

Of weddings, with their gleeful train,
And dark processions, moving slow;
Thus winding from the mystic skein
That threads the life we lead below.

Yet these the gossips could repeat
Of all old homes, where there have slept
Fair children, filled with visions fleet,
Where mothers long have watched and wept.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE WYOMING COMMEMORATIVE ASSOCIATION ON 126TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE BATTLE AND MASSACRE OF WYOMING, JULY 4TH, 1904. This pamphlet of forty-four pages, contains the address, "A Colony Out of the Northern Wilderness," by Maj. George G. Groff.

BALCH CHART. Samuel W. Balch, 67 Wall street, New York city, has issued a unique chart of the male descendants of John Balch, the head of the American family. The chart is arranged so that one can tell at a glance when a member of the family was born and when he died, his length of life being given. The most interesting and valuable feature of the plan is in showing who are contemporary, and how long and in what parts of their lives they were contemporary. The life space of each person is colored, and the chronological basis of the chart are perpendicular lines, indicating periods of ten years.

BRADBURY GENEALOGY.

CAPT. THOMAS BRADBURY¹* was born at Wicken-Bonant, Essex county, England, Feb. 28, 1610-1. He came to America, and was at York, Me., in 1634. In 1637, he settled in Salisbury, Mass., where he was one of the first planters. He was made a freeman in May, 1640; and was an agent of Sir Ferdinando Gorges, 1636-1640. He was one of the most prominent citizens, being town clerk, schoolmaster, justice of the peace, representative in the general court seven years, county recorder, associate judge, etc. Most of the ancient records of Salisbury, and the deeds of his registry in Norfolk county are in his bold and distinct handwriting. He married Mary Perkins of Ipswich May —, 1636. She was tried for witchcraft in 1692, and convicted, but not executed. Like many others of those accused of witchcraft she was held in high esteem. Captain Bradbury died March 16, 1694-5; and she died, his widow, Dec. 20, 1700.

*Thomas Bradbury was son of Wymond Bradbury of Wicken-Bonant, county of Essex, England, and of Elizabeth (Whitgift), who was a widow Gill when Wymond Bradbury married her. It is claimed that his descent from Robert Bradbury, of Ollersett, Derbyshire, England, who was born about 1400, is as follows:—

Robert Bradbury¹ of Ollersett, Derbyshire.

William Bradbury² of Braughing, Hertfordshire.

Robert Bradbury³ of Littlebury, county of Essex.

William Bradbury⁴ of Littlebury, county of Essex.

Matthew Bradbury⁵ of Wicken-Bonant, county of Essex.

William Bradbury⁶ of Wicken-Bonant, county of Essex.

Wymond Bradbury⁷ of Wicken-Bonant, county of Essex.

SALEM IN 1700. NO. 25.

BY SIDNEY PERLEY.

The map on page 154 represents that part of Salem bounded by Walnut, Charter, Essex and Orange streets and the harbor. It is based on actual surveys and title deeds, and is drawn on a scale of two hundred feet to an inch. It shows the location of all houses that were standing in 1700.

Orange street came into existence by an agreement of Paul Mansfield, who owned on the eastern side of a certain line, and Edward Bush, who owned on its western side, Aug. 1, 1671.* Mr. Mansfield donated a strip of land fifteen feet and ten inches wide, and Mr. Bush a strip seven feet wide. It did not at first quite reach to the harbor, but was subsequently extended to it. At the lower end of the lane, they allowed "betweene them Ten foote of Ground apiece y^t is Twenty foote Square beside y^e breadth of y^e Said Lane & Shooting away Eastward from it for roome for a Cart to turne in." This was called Bush's lane in 1752; Masury's lane, 1759; and Orange street in 1815.

Curtis street was laid out over her land by widow Hester Eastwick in or before 1668. It originally extended only to the rear of her house, but was carried through to the harbor about 1700. It was called a lane or the ground of widow Eastwick in 1675; a lane or ground to ye widow Eastwick, 1685; ye lane that leads downe to ye widow Eastwick's, 1698; a lane that runs into ye highway, 1698; Esticke's lane, 1705; ye lane or highway, 1712; Vealy's lane, 1741; Curtis' lane, 1759; and Curtis street, 1795.

Hodges' court was laid out ten feet wide by Mrs. Mary Searle, administratrix of the estate of Alexander Seares, deceased, in 1669, between the houses of Mrs. Searle and Humphrey Coomes.† It was called a lane or an inlet to Francis Skerry's in 1685.

Herbert street was laid out over the ground of Joseph Hardy by an agreement made by him with John Gardner, who owned the ground adjoining on the east, Sept. 26, 1661.* They "agree that there shall be a cart waie betweene our house lots, from y^e end butting on y^e comon, downe all along y^e lott to the riuier, & is to be one pole in breadth, to lay wholly in Joseph Hardyes ground, on y^t side next to John Gardners ground, & this we doe mutually ingage ourselves, that is to say, the cart way shall never be sold or converted to any other use, but to lay in comon between us both, for our owne private use, & for the use of any that shall live on either lott, & in consideration of y^e pr'mises, John Gardner have giuen unto Joseph Hardy fifty shillings to his content," etc. It was first called ye lane or highway in 1679; highway or lane that belongs to those that live thereabouts, 1685; ye lane over against John Sanders' house, 1689; a lane that leads down to ye river, 1703; lane that leads out of y^e great street down to ye sea, 1706; ye lane or highway that leads down by Sanderses, 1712; a lane or highway yt leads downe to ye Sea or South river, 1713; ye lane that leads to Old Mr. Hardy's, 1614; Sanders' lane, 1719; ye lane yt leads to ye water side, 1720; Hardy's lane, 1729; a highway leading from the main street to the water side, 1736; Derby's lane, 1765; and Herbert street, 1798.

Union street was laid out at three different times. When Thomas Jeggles conveyed the front part of his lot to James Brown, in 1665, he reserved a strip of land, now the northern end of Union street, for a way into the remainder of his land from Essex street. May 3, 1675, Mr. Jeggles gave to the owners on either side bonds that he would keep it open.† When Mr. Jeggles conveyed the next lot to Robert Glanfield, Aug. 27, 1677, he reserved a strip twenty feet wide on the eastern side of the lot as a continuation of the lane.* This brought the lane down to the place marked on the map. It was extended to the harbor before 1706. It was called a particular cart waye belonging to Elizabeth Jeggles in 1665; highway or lane I [Elizabeth Jeggles and son Thomas Jeggles] have left out of my ground for our particular uses, 1667; ye lane or highway, 1676; a lane y^t runs between land of John Cromwell and Mrs. Hannah Brown, widow of James Brown, deceased, 1679; land formerly of Goodman Jeggles and now a lane, 1685; a lane or highway from ye maine street down by Robert Glanfield's house to the premises of Thomas Jeggles, which lane is the sole proper right and reserved only for the use and privilege of said Jeggles and Glanfield, 1686; ye lane that runs up to Robert Glanfield, his house, 1689; lane that leads out of ye Great street down to ye sea, 1706; ye lane that goeth to ye house that was Robert Glanfield's, now in possession of William Car-kette, 1706; a lane that leads down to ye river, 1717; Union street, 1732; the lane leading to the long wharf, 1736; the highway leading to the water side from the main street, 1736; and Long wharf lane, 1763. Since 1793, it has been called Union street exclusively.

Walnut street was in existence quite early. It was called a lane in 1680; the highway from the Great street to the cove and highway in 1685; a highway, 1694; a highway leading from ye maine street unto ye water side, 1695; the lane or way which leads downe from the main street along by John Higginson's brew-house downe to the wharf, 1706; the lane or cartway, 1725; Long wharf lane, 1732; Browne's lane, 1756; and Walnut street, 1810.

Charter street was probably laid out in the first settlement of the town; originally extending to Union street. It was called ye common or highway, 1686;

the highway, 1688; highway leading from Long wharf to the spring, 1756; a way leading to the Long wharf, 1770; lane by Whitefoot's house, 1772; Neptune street, 1798; and Charter street, about 1853.

Essex street was one of the original streets. It was called ye common highway next ye pen soe caled, 1662; a common street, 1669; ye common or highway, 1671; ye street, 1675; the high or broad street, 1685; ye main street, 1686; ye great street, 1706; ye towne street, 1706; the highway or broad street of Salem, 1708; and Essex street, 1793.

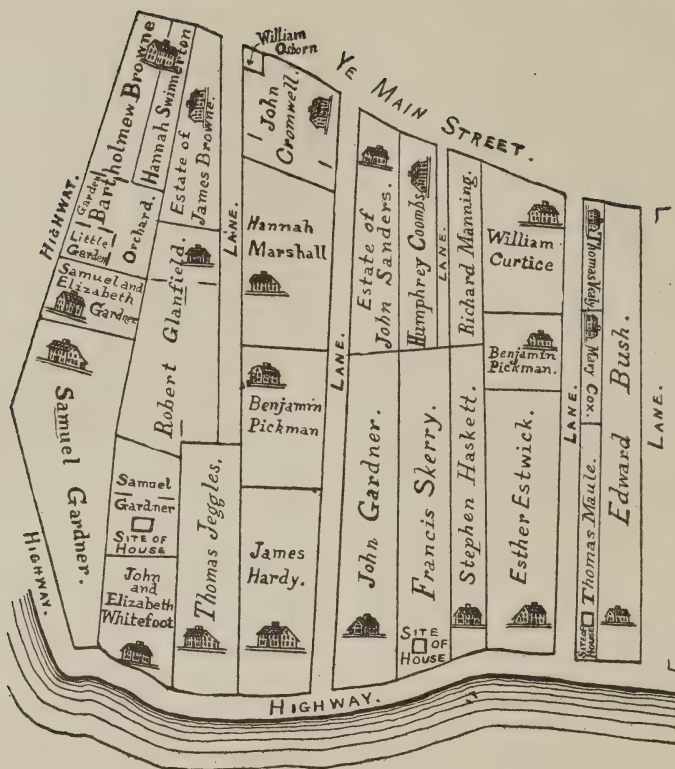

Derby street, in this section, was substantially the ancient highway that was reserved along the shore in the original laying out of the settlement. It was called a highway in 1688; highway that goes along by the South river, 1709; the highway next the harbor, 1747; way leading to the Long wharf, 1761; a way next ye South harbor, 1764; and Derby street about 1853.

The harbor was called ye South river in 1656; the harbor called ye South harbor, 1670; the harbor or South river, 1671; ye river, 1695; and ye sea, 1706.

Edward Bush House. This was apparently the estate of William Cockerell before 1661, when it belonged to widow Elizabeth Cockerell, William Cockerell probably having died that year. She died, possessed of the estate, before 28: 4: 1664, when administration was granted upon her estate. The house was standing as early as 1661, and in the inventory of the estate of Mrs. Cockerell, in 1664, the house and land were appraised at thirty-two pounds. Her administrators conveyed the house and lot to Edward Bush of Salem, seaman, Jan. 7, 1669;* and Mr. Bush died, possessed of the estate, before March 27, 1711, when administration was granted upon his estate to his widow Elizabeth Bush. The house and land were then appraised at seventy-four pounds. By agreement of the children, Benjamin Bush, Eastwick Bush and William Frost and wife Elizabeth, all of Salem, the real estate was assigned to the eldest son, Benjamin Bush, Dec. 28, 1715.* The house was apparently gone before 1724. The location of the house on the lot is uncertain.

Thomas Vealy House. This was a part of the homestead of Elias Mason. His son-in-law, John Robinson of Salem, tailor, had built a house upon it before May 16, 1675, when, with the consent of Mr. Mason, he conveyed the estate to Nathaniel Veren of Salem, carpenter.† Mr. Veren conveyed the house and lot to Thomas Veelee of Salem, laborer, Aug. 31, 1685.‡ Widow Hester Eastwick of Salem released her interest in the land to Mr. Vealy Nov. 25, 1698.§ Mr. Vealy died in 1718, having devised all his estate to his wife Mary Vealy, who, Feb. 19, 1723-4, "in Consideration that my present Dwelling House is very much out of repair & will Quickly be uninhabitable unless Speedily well repaired," and Martin Village, late of Portsmouth, N. H., then resident in Salem, seaman, had promised to put it into good repair and support her for life, she conveyed the house and lot to him.|| She then lived in the house; and six days later married Mr. Village. Mr. Village was a fisherman; and, for one hundred and ten pounds, they conveyed the dwelling house and lot, "where we now dwell," to Dr. Francis Gahtman of Salem Nov. 8, 1731.¶ Doctor Gahtman, for a similar consideration, reconveyed the estate to Mr. Village, who had continued to live there, July 15, 1732. Mrs. Village died, and he married, secondly, Christian Darling May 5, 1734. Mr. Village, then called a mariner, for love, conveyed to Edward Cox of Salem, wheelwright, for his wife Christian, "my now dwelling house" and land, Feb. 25, 1735.* Mr. and Mrs. Village, for one hundred and ten pounds, conveyed "our house" and land to Joseph Wakefield of Salem, mariner, Sept. 1, 1736;† and Mr. Wakefield, for a similar consideration, reconveyed the estate to Mrs. Village Nov. 24, 1737.‡ In 1752, the house and lot were the property of Mercy Lambert, spinster, and widow Mercy Lambert, both of Salem, and widow Elizabeth Tapley of Middleton. Mercy Lambert, spinster, for forty pounds, conveyed one-third of the house and land to Philemon Sanders of Salem, trader, Nov. 7, 1752;§ and Mr. Sanders, for thirty-three pounds, six shillings and eight pence, conveyed the same interest in the estate to James Peirce, jr., of Salem, trader, Dec. 18, 1752.|| Mrs. Tapley, for six pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence, conveyed her third interest to Mr. Peirce, who is then also called a laborer, Feb. 4, 1754.¶ Mrs. Lambert conveyed her interest to Mr. Peirce June 13, 1754. For thirty-three pounds, six shillings and eight pence, Mr. Peirce conveyed the house and lot to John White, jr., of Salem, mariner, June —, 1754.†† Mr. White owned the land more than thirty years, but how long the house stood is unknown.

Mary Cox House. This lot was a part of the homestead of Elias Mason. His son-in-law, George Cox (or, Cocks), apparently built a house thereon about the time of his marriage with Mary Mason, Feb. 23, 1667. Widow Hester Eastwick of Salem released her interest in this lot to George Cocks Nov. 25, 1698.‡‡ Mr. Cox died in 1706; and his widow, "Mary Cox, late of Salem, now of Boston," for twenty-seven pounds, conveyed the house and lot to Ephraim Skerry of Salem, mariner, Feb. 1, 1712-3;* the conveyance being confirmed by her and Mr. Cox's children, Jonathan Cox, Sarah Cox, Martha Cox, Mary Cox and Hannah Cox, Feb. 21, 1712-3.† Mr. Skerry became a husbandman, and, for ninety pounds, conveyed the house and lot to Robert Hill of Salem, caulker, Aug. 25, 1729.‡ For a similar consideration, Mr. Hill conveyed the estate to John Hill of Salem, mariner, March 15, 1730.§ John Hill died in 1772, possessed of the house and land. His real estate was not divided among his children until Sept. 28, 1787, when the house is called "the old house." The northern half of the house, which fronted on the lane, having "the fore door" in the middle, was assigned to Margaret Clarke, daughter of the deceased, and the southern half to the representatives of Samuel Hill, deceased, son of the deceased John Hill. The house and lot were then valued at fifty-five pounds. Upon the division, the land under and adjoining each half of the house went with the respective halves.

The widow Mary Hill married John Mackmillon of Salem, mariner, Aug. 2, 1780; and she and her husband conveyed the southern half of the house and land to Nathaniel Richardson of Salem, merchant, May 14, 1795.¶ Mr. Richardson died before Feb. 1, 1796, when administration was granted on his estate to his widow Eunice Richardson. The deceased's son, Nathaniel Richardson of Portland, Me., tanner, conveyed one-sixth of that part of the estate to widow Abigail Brooks of Salem May 30, 1796.¶ The widow, Eunice Richardson, of Salem, released her interest, and apparently the interest of her minor children and also of her adult son Joshua Richardson, to Mrs.

Brooks July 8, 1796,* Mr. Richardson having sold it in his lifetime to Mrs. Brooks' husband, John Brooks of Salem, trader, deceased.

Mrs. Clarke died, possessed of the northern half of the house and lot, in the winter of 1798-9; and in her will she said: "I give unto my daughter Margreat in gratitude of her Goodnefs by taking Care of me in my old age and Infirmities of Life and also in my Sicknefs the hous I now live in with the land under and adjoining." In the inventory of her estate, this place is described as "an old house with the land under & adjoining; and appraised at seventy dollars. Apparently the old house was gone before 1802.

Thomas Maule Lot. This was a part of the homestead of Elias Mason before 1661; and Nathaniel Felton, aged eighty-four years, and John Massey, aged sixty-nine years, testified that "there was a dwelling house erected upon the land of Elias Mason lying in Salem before ye year of Our Lord 1661 upon the which ye said Mason lived unto his decease which land as wee understand is now in the possession of Thomas Maul." Sworn to March 30, 1700, before John Hathorne and Jonathan Corwine, justices of the peace and quorum.† Upon Mr. Mason's death the land passed to his daughters, Hannah Mason, Mary Cox and Sarah Robinson. Mary's husband, George Cox, sr., became possessed of Sarah's interest in the lot before 1695, when the house was gone. Mr. Cox, for eight pounds and sixteen shillings, conveyed two-thirds of the lot to Thomas Maule of Salem, shopkeeper, Nov. 20, 1695;‡ and Hannah Mason of Salem, singlewoman, for four pounds and thirteen shillings, conveyed her third interest in the lot to Mr. Maule Nov. 14, 1698.§ Widow Hester Eastwick of Salem conveyed her interest in the lot to Mr. Maule Nov. 25, 1698.* Mr. Maule soon afterward sold the lot to Edward Bush, who owned the lot adjoining on the east, for twenty-one pounds, but no deed passed during the lifetime of Mr. Bush. Jan. 22, 1712, Mr. Maule gave a deed of the lot to Mr. Bush's widow and administratrix, Elizabeth Bush.†

William Curtice House. This lot was a portion of the two acres of land conveyed by John Baylies of Salem, tailor, for five pounds and five shillings, to Edward Estwick of Salem, mariner, 8:8:1649.‡ Mr. Estwick died in 1666; and his widow, Esther Estwick, who was appointed administratrix, conveyed this lot (which is described as being "on Bass River Side") to William Curtice of Salem Feb. 23, 1668.§ Mr. Curtice built a house upon the lot. He was a blacksmith, and lived in Salem, when he gave the house, barn, shop and lot, by deed, to his son William Curtice, jr., of Salem, Feb. 17, 1704-5.|| The grantee was then living in the house. William Curtice, jr., died in 1741, having devised the house and land around it to his daughter Lydia Stillman, who lived in Salem. She died, a widow, before March 3, 1779, when administration upon her estate was granted to her son William Patterson, who became the owner of the estate. In the inventory of her estate the house is described as "an old house," and with the land adjoining belonging to it was valued at one hundred and forty-seven pounds. Mr. Patterson died before June 26, 1793, when his children, John Patterson, mariner, Joseph Smith, mariner, and his wife Rebecca, Obadiah Wilcock, mariner, and wife Lydia, and John Bolton, mariner, and wife Sarah, all of Salem, for twenty-two pounds and six-teen shillings, conveyed four-fifths of one-third of the land and buildings to Capt. William Patterson of Salem, mariner.* Captain Patterson died Sept. 6, 1793, possessed of the entire house and land around it, having devised a life-interest in the estate to his wife Mehitable, and the remainder to his children. It subsequently came into the possession of his son William Patterson of Salem, mariner, before 1803, when the house was gone.

Benjamin Pickman House. This lot was a portion of the two acres of land conveyed by John Baylies of Salem, tailor, to Edward Estwick of Salem, mariner, 8:8:1649.† Mr. Estwick died in 1666; and his widow, Esther Estwick, who was appointed administratrix of his estate, conveyed this lot to Isaac Hide of Salem, mariner, Feb. 23, 1668.‡ Mr. Hide built a house upon the lot; and died in 1680, possessed of the estate, which descended to his only child, Richard Hide, a minor. The house and lot were then appraised at sixty pounds. Richard Hide lived in Salem, and was a mariner. For thirty-three pounds, he conveyed the estate to Benjamin Pickman, jr., of Salem, Dec. 30, 1698.§ For thirty-five pounds, Mr. Pickman (who was then a mariner) conveyed the house and lot to Benjamin Smith of Salem, fisherman, Nov. 11, 1715.|| Mr. Smith died before 1742, and his children, Samuel Smith, fisherman, and Mercy Smith, singlewoman, both of Salem, for forty pounds, conveyed the house and lot to James Hanscom of Salem, mariner, May 26, 1772.¶ How much longer the house stood is unknown.

Esther Estwick House. This lot was a portion of the two acres of land conveyed by John Baylies of Salem, tailor, to Edward Estwick of Salem, mariner, 8:8:1649.† He built a house upon the lot before 1661; and died in 1666, possessed of the estate. His widow owned it until her death, about 1701. Her daughter Elizabeth married, first, William Pickman; and, second, Edward Bush; and this house and lot came into her possession. It then passed to the ownership of the latter's daughter, Mary Bush, who married, first, Thomas Searle, and, second, William Frost. Mrs. Frost died about 1750; and her children, William Frost of Boston, shipwright, John Fuller of Lynn, gentleman, and wife Hannah, William Cook of Salem, shipwright, and wife Lydia, and widow Mary Browne of Salem, for twenty-six pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence, conveyed four-fifths of the house and land to John Browne of Salem, shipwright (whose wife Elizabeth was another child of Mrs. Frost and owner of the other fifth interest), Dec. 20, 1751.* Mr. Browne owned the house and land as late as 1770, and the house was gone before 1818.

Stephen Haskett House. This was a part of the lot of land that belonged to Richard Raymond in 1649, and subsequently to Alexander Sears. The latter built a house upon it between 1661 and 1668, and died before 1668, possessed of the house and land. In 1669, it belonged to Mary Sears, who was the administratrix of his estate, and the same year wife of Stephen Searle. She was the latter's widow, and of Salem, March 27, 1670, when she mortgaged the house and lot, for forty pounds, to Stephen Haskett of Salem.† The estate was never redeemed, and Mr. Haskett died in 1743, possessed of the house and land around it. His real estate was divided among his heirs March 23, 1746-7, and the house and land around it were assigned to his daughter Sarah, wife of Samuel Ingersoll of Salem, cooper, and she apparently took the house down.

Richard Manning Lot. This lot of land belonged to the estate of Alexander Sears in 1668; and George Thomas of Salem, gunsmith, owned it in 1669.* Mr. Thomas conveyed the northern half of it to Robert Bronsdon of Boston, merchant, Sept. 9, 1669.† The records reveal no more about the title until 1746, when it belonged to Benjamin Manning, having belonged perhaps to his father Richard Manning.

Humphrey Coombs House. Richard Raymond owned this lot in 1649; and on it, in or before 1661, his son-in-law Humphrey Coombs, seaman, built a dwelling house. Mr. Raymond removed to Seabrook, Conn., before April 7, 1685, when he gave to Mr. Coombs a deed of the land.‡ Mr. Coombs conveyed the house and lot to Samuel Ingersoll of Salem, cooper, Oct. 17, 1705.§ For thirty-eight pounds, Mr. Ingersoll conveyed the estate to Joseph Beadle of Salem, cordwinder, Dec. 10, 1708.|| Mr. Beadle died before 1722, possessed of the house and lot. The estate remained in the possession of his children until 1760, when the house was gone.

Francis Skerry Lot. Richard Raymond owned this lot in 1649; and on it, in 1661, was a house in which he then lived. The land belonged to Francis Skerry as early as 1670, and as late as 1708. The house was gone before 1702.

Estate of John Sanders House. This lot was a part of the land conveyed by John Ingersoll of Salem, mariner, to John Gardner of Salem, mariner, 9: 6 mo: 1656.¶ Mr. Gardner removed to the Island of Nantucket, but returned to Salem before June 23, 1676, when he conveyed that part of this lot lying south of the dashes to John Barton of Salem, surgeon. For twenty pounds, Doctor Barton conveyed the land to John Sanders of Salem, mariner, Oct. 17, 1681.†† Mr. Gardner removed to the Island of Nantucket again before July 16, 1679, when, for love, he gave, by deed, to John Sanders that part of the lot lying north of the dashes, on which the latter had built a dwelling house before 1676.* Thus Mr. Sanders became possessed of the whole of this lot. He died, possessed of the house and lot, June 9, 1694, at the age of fifty-three; and his widow, Hannah Sanders, died March 18, 1706-7, at the age of sixty-five. In his will, Mr. Sanders devised the lot bought of Doctor Barton to his daughter Hannah, and the house and remainder of the lot to his son Richard Sanders. The next conveyance of the premises on record is that of William Sanders of Boston, shopkeeper, who, for seventy pounds, conveyed the house and lot to Paul Mansfield, jr., of Salem, mariner, Oct. 28, 1720.† Mr. Mansfield died, possessed of the estate, before 1740; and his widow, Sarah Mansfield, of Salem, for one hundred and six pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence, conveyed the house and lot to Benjamin Mansfield (nephew of Mr. Mansfield) of Salem, fisherman, Aug. 8, 1765.‡ For twenty-six pounds, Mr. Mansfield conveyed the western half of the house to Jonathan Millet of Salem, mariner, Sept. 14, 1771.§ Mr. Mansfield, for six pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence, mortgaged the eastern half of the house and land to Mr. Millet Nov. 8, 1774.¶ The house was apparently gone a few years later.

John Gardner House. This house and lot were conveyed by John Ingersoll of Salem, mariner, for fourteen pounds, to John Gardner of Salem, mariner, 9: 6 mo: 1656.¶ Captain Gardner removed to the Island of Nantucket, and died in 1706, possessed of the house and lot. In his will he devised the estate to his grandson, John Gardner of Mendham, in Suffolk county, mariner, who, for seventy pounds, conveyed the house and lot to John Langsford of Salem, mariner, April 30, 1713.* Mr. Langsford died before March 11, 1734, when Ezekiel Goldthwright, bricklayer, and wife Esther, and Paul Mansfield, shoreman, and wife Sarah, all of Salem, for four hundred pounds in province bills, conveyed the dwelling house, bake house, shop, barn and land to James Lindall of Salem, esquire.† Mr. Lindall, for a similar consideration, conveyed the same estate to Richard Derby of Salem, mariner, Sept. 18, 1735.‡ The house was removed by Mr. Derby soon after.

William Osborn Lot. This lot was a part of the homestead of Joseph Hardy as early as 1656. Mr. Hardy conveyed it to John Cromwell of Salem, seaman, June 16, 1662;§ and Mr. Cromwell, for five pounds and ten shillings, conveyed it to Benjamin Small of Salem, sailmaker, March 21, 1678-9.¶ For three pounds and sixteen shillings, Mr. Small conveyed it to William Osborn of Salem, husbandman, Jan. 25, 1681-2.¶ Mr. Osborn died in the winter of 1729-30, having devised the lot to his son William. The lot measured fourteen feet on each side.

John Cromwell House. That part of this lot which lies north of the dashes was owned by Joseph Hardy as early as 1656. Mr. Hardy, for five pounds sterling, conveyed it to John Cromwell of Salem, seaman, June 16, 1662;§ and Mr. Cromwell built a house upon the lot and lived there during the remainder of his life. Mr. Hardy died in 1688, possessed of the remainder of the lot, and his executors, for ten pounds, conveyed it to Mr. Cromwell May 6, 1689. Mr. Cromwell became a slaughterer, and died, possessed of the house and entire lot, Sept.

30, 1700. In his will he devised the estate to his cousins, Ann, wife of David Phippen, and Jane, wife of Jonathan Pickering. Jonathan Pickering was a ship-carpenter, and lived in Salem. For forty pounds, he and his wife Jane conveyed one-half of the house and lot to Samuel Phippen, jr., of Salem, mariner, April 18, 1712.* The next day, Mr. Phippen, for a similar consideration, bought the other half interest of widow Anne Phippen of Salem.† Mr. Cromwell's widow, Hannah Cromwell, of Salem, for twenty pounds, had released her life interest in the estate to Mr. Phippen, called a fisherman, April 10, 1712.‡ Mr. Phippen was already living in the house. For eighty pounds, Mr. Phippen mortgaged the estate to Capt. William Pickering of Salem, mariner, March 29, 1714.§ Mr. Pickering foreclosed the mortgage by taking possession of the premises; and, with Samuel Phippen of Salem, then called a blockmaker, conveyed, for eighty-five pounds, the house, shop and land around them to Joseph Phippen of Salem, cooper, April 1, 1719.¶ Mr. Phippen lived here, being at this time a mariner. He died in 1734, possessed of the estate. The house was then valued at sixty pounds, and the shop at twenty-five pounds. His widow, Susanna Phippen, continued to live here. Mr. Phippen's heirs, Joseph Phippen, mariner, and Sarah Phippen, spinster, heirs of Joseph Phippen, deceased son of the deceased, and Sarah Dean, spinster, heiress of Sarah Dean (wife of Thomas Dean, who joins in the deed), deceased, daughter of the deceased Joseph Phippen, sr., all of Salem, for seventy-five pounds, quitclaim their interest in the land (no house being mentioned) to Abraham Watson of Salem, gentleman, Dec. 12, 1782.||

Hannah Marshall House. This lot was a part of the homestead of Joseph

Hardy as early as 1656. He died in 1688, having devised this part of the homestead, which he called the pasture, to his son William Hardy and daughter Hannah Marshall. William Hardy died in 1697, and in his will devised his half of the lot to his sister, Mrs. Marshall, who then built a small dwelling house upon the lot. For one hundred and sixty pounds in current money, she mortgaged the house and land to the executors of the will of Joseph Buckley of Boston, merchant, deceased, Jan. 7, 1706;* and the surviving executrix of Mr. Buckley's will, for fifty pounds, assigned the mortgage to Benjamin Pickman of Boston, mariner, Jan. 27, 1709. Captain Pickman bought the estate of Mrs. Marshall; and died April 26, 1719, possessed of it. It was then appraised at sixty pounds. His widow, Abigail Pickman, and eldest son John Pickman, mariner, both of Salem, conveyed the "small dwelling house" and lot to Jonathan Archer of Salem, cordwainer, Aug. 5, 1723.† Mrs. Marshall had removed to Boston, and died. Probably no deed of the equity had been executed to Captain Pickman by Mrs. Marshall, and therefore her only daughter, Hannah, wife of Joseph Jenkins of Martha's Vineyard, mariner, for five shillings, gave a release of the estate to Abigail Pickman, widow and executrix of the will of her husband, Capt. Benjamin Pickman of Salem, mariner, deceased, Sept. 1, 1724.‡ Mr. Archer gave by deed this house and the land around it to his son Nathaniel Archer of Salem, cooper, April 9, 1734.§ Mr. Archer lived here, and died in 1772, possessed of the house and lot. The house then stood fronting to the south, with the front door in the middle, and end to the street. In his will, Mr. Archer devised the homestead to his wife, Hannah Archer, for her life. The house and land around it were then appraised at four hundred pounds. Their son Jonathan Archer had acquired five-ninths of the estate prior to March 1, 1791, when the estate was divided. To Jonathan was assigned the westerly end of the house and that part of the land, and he was also given the use of the well "so long as the present house shall be occupied." John Archer, late of Salem, then of Craven, S. C., and George Archer of Salem, both mariners, sons of George Archer (deceased son of Nathaniel Archer, deceased), for twenty-one pounds, conveyed one-eighth of the house and land around it to Richard Manning, jr., of Salem, blacksmith, Dec. 18, 1793.* Joseph Archer, mariner, Amos Foster, blacksmith (with consent of his wife Sarah), and Hannah Archer, singlewoman, children of Stephen Archer (deceased son of Nathaniel Archer, deceased), for eighty dollars, conveyed their one-fourth of the eastern end of the house and land around it to Mr. Manning March 24, 1798.† Jonathan Archer conveyed the western end of the house and land around it to Mr. Manning, for four hundred dollars, April 19, 1799;‡ and Jonathan Archer conveyed his interest in the eastern end of the house and land around it, for twelve pounds, to Mr. Manning July 31, 1799.§ Mr. Manning died at Newbury, on his way to Maine, April 19, 1813, possessed of this house and lot. In the inventory of his estate, this is called an "old house," and with the land adjoining was valued at one thousand dollars. The house was probably taken down soon afterward.

Benjamin Pickman House. That part of this lot which lies south of the dashes was owned by Joseph Hardy as early as 1656. His son-in-law, Benjamin Pickman, built a house upon the lot before Aug. 17, 1685, when Mr. Hardy conveyed the lot to Mr. Pickman.|| That part of the lot lying north of the dashes also belonged to Mr. Hardy, and he died in 1688, possessed of it. In his will, he devised it to his daughter Hannah, widow of John Marshall of Salem, and his son William Hardy. Mrs. Marshall conveyed this strip to Mr. Pickman, who was a mariner, April 22, 1692.* Captain Pickman died in 1719, possessed of the house, barn and lot. His son Joshua Pickman of Boston, mariner, owned the estate June 22, 1745, when, for three hundred pounds, he conveyed the house and lot to Jonathan Phelps of Beverly, blacksmith.† Mr. Phelps removed to Salem, and continued his business. He conveyed the house and lot, for four hundred and sixty-six pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence, to his son-in-law Daniel Hathorne of Salem, mariner, Sept. 28, 1772.‡ Captain Hathorne was a commander of several privateers in the war of the Revolution; and died April 18, 1796, possessed of the house and lot. His son Nathaniel Hathorne continued to live in this house after his father's death, and here Nathaniel's son Nathaniel Hawthorne, the great romancer, was born July 4, 1804. The heirs of Capt. Daniel Hathorne, except his daughter Rachel, wife of Simon Forrester of Salem, merchant, namely: Widow Sarah Crowninshield, Judith Archer, Ruth Hathorne, singlewoman, Eunice Hathorne, singlewoman, and Nathaniel Hathorne, Elizabeth M. Hathorne and Maria Loiza Hathorne, minors, by their guardian, conveyed the house and lot to Rachel's husband, Simon Forrester, March 8, 1816.§ Mr. Forrester died in 1817, possessed of the estate; and his executors conveyed his interest in it to his widow, Rachel Forrester, of Salem, Oct. 28, 1817.|| Nov. 17, 1817, Mrs. Forrester conveyed by deed a life estate in the house and land around it to her sisters, widow Crowninshield, Eunice Hathorne, singlewoman, widow Judith Archer and Ruth Hathorne, singlewoman, all of Salem.* She died in the summer of 1823; and her heirs: daughter Nancy, wife of Gideon Barstow of Dedham; daughter Eleanor, wife of Thomas W. Coit of Hartford, Conn.; grandson Isaac Watson Andrew of Salem, son of deceased daughter Catherine; grandchildren Charlotte Story, wife of George H. Devereux, Charles Forrester, Simon Forrester, Rachel Forrester, singlewoman, Elizabeth M. Forrester, singlewoman, Louisa Forrester, singlewoman, and Annie M. Forrester, singlewoman, all of Salem, surviving children of deceased son John Forrester, conveyed the house and land around it to Isaac Cushing of Salem, merchant, June 7, 1850.† Mr. Cushing conveyed the estate to Hannah Beckett, of Salem, singlewoman, for her lifetime, to begin after his decease, Dec. 16, 1858.‡ Mr. Cushing died Jan. 14, 1859; and Miss Beckett died Feb. 12, 1873. The heirs of Mr. Cushing: Elijah C. Thomas, Betsey B. Thomas, Tamar C. Thomas, Sarah B. Thomas, Nathaniel W. Cushing and wife Rachel C., in her right, all of Hanson, Mass., Ruth T. Cushing, George B. Standish and wife Rachel, in her right, all of South Boston, Freeman P. Howland and wife Deborah, in her right, of Abington, and Lemuel B. Hatch and wife Ann C., in her right, of Salem, for twenty-three hundred and seventy-five dollars, conveyed the estate to James Hafey of Salem May 22, 1873.§ Mr. Hafey conveyed it to Andrew Fitz of Salem June 23, 1873;|| and Mr. Fitz conveyed it to Mr. Hafey's wife Elizabeth on the same day.¶ Mrs. Hafey (or, Heafey), died, a widow, Jan. 12, 1879, possessed of the house and land around it, the title to which then passed under her will and also by inheritance to her sister Mrs. Catherine Quinlan of Westerly, R. I., then a widow. Mrs. Quinlan, for fourteen hundred dollars, conveyed the estate to its present owner, William White of Salem June 16, 1882.* The frontispiece of this number of the Antiquarian is a picture of this house as it now appears.

James Hardy House. This was a part of the homestead of Joseph Hardy as early as 1657, and this was his dwelling house. He died in 1688, possessed of the estate, and in his will he devised it to his son James Hardy, "with the wharf, warehouse," etc. James Hardy was a mariner, and died in 1703, apparently without issue, leaving a widow, Ruth Hardy. Hannah Marshall released her interest in the estate to the widow, Ruth Hardy, Nov. 16, 1703.† Mrs. Hardy married Ezekiel Upton of Reading, husbandman, Jan. 23, 1711-2; and they released the estate to Samuel Swasey of Salem, shipwright, March 25, 1717.‡ The house was gone before the death of Mr. Swasey, which occurred in February, 1739.

Estate of James Brown House. This was a part of the homestead lot of William Jeggles, who died in or before 1659. His widow and administratrix of his estate conveyed this part of the estate to James Brown of Salem, merchant, Sept. 30, 1665.§ Mr. Brown built a house and barn upon the lot: and died in or before 1676, possessed of the estate. The house, barn and land were then valued at two hundred pounds. The house contained a hall, parlor, kitchen, porch, hall chamber, parlor chamber, kitchen chamber, porch chamber and garret. Mr. Brown's widow, Hannah, married Dr. John Swinnerton, and when the latter's widow, of Salem, she conveyed the house lot, etc., to Capt. William Pickering of Salem, mariner, the husband of her daughter Hannah Brown, upon the agreement that he should support her (Mrs. Swinnerton) during the remainder of her life, April 29, 1706.* Both Mrs. Swinnerton and Mr. Pickering lived in the house at that time. Captain Pickering died in 1723, having in his will given the estate to his wife Hannah's disposing. Upon her death it passed to their children. In 1723, the house contained, among other rooms, a "bed room below," kitchen chamber, garret, shop, shop chamber and shop garret. The house, barn and land were then valued at three hundred pounds. Feb. 23, 1737, a division of the estate occurred, and Adoniram Collins, cooper, and wife Hannah and Mary Pickering, spinster, all of Salem, children of Captain Pickering, for two hundred and sixty-six pounds and thirteen shillings, released the north end part of the house (in which end was the "great room") and lot to Abraham Watson of Salem, joiner, and wife Elizabeth (their sister);† and Mr. and Mrs. Watson and Mary Pickering, for two hundred pounds, released the southern half of the house and land around it to Mr. and Mrs. Collins (their sister).‡ There was also at that time on this lot and near the house on the south side "ye little house now in ye possession of Thomas Gilpin." The main house fronted on Union street. Mr. Collins became a mariner, and he and his wife, for sixty-one pounds and five shillings, conveyed their part of the original house and land adjoining (but not the little house that had been occupied by Thomas Gilpin and then by John Lander) to Mr. Watson, who, with his wife, owned the other half, Sept. 1, 1742.§ Mr. and Mrs. Watson, for three hundred pounds, conveyed the house and lot to John Watson of Salem, schoolmaster, June 8, 1785;§ and John Watson, for a similar consideration, conveyed the house and lot to Abraham Watson June 11, 1785.|| Mr. Watson died July 6, 1790, at the age of seventy-eight, having devised the estate to his son John Watson. Mr. Watson lived in Salem; and, for five thousand dollars, conveyed the estate to the Salem Union Street corporation June 22, 1808.* The house was then removed.

Robert Glanfield House. This lot was a portion of the homestead of William Jeggles of Salem, who died in or before 1659. His widow and administratrix Elizabeth Jeggles and son Thomas Jeggles of Salem, mariner, for eleven pounds, conveyed that part of the lot lying north of the dashes to Robert Glanfield of Salem, mariner, April 16, 1667.† Mr. Glanfield built a house upon the lot.

That part of the lot lying southerly and westerly of the dashes was assigned to widow Elizabeth Greene of Malden, daughter of William Jeggles, deceased, and she conveyed it to Mr. Glanfield May 10, 1675.‡

That part of the lot lying southerly and easterly of the dashes descended to Thomas Jeggles of Salem, mariner, and, for seven pounds, he conveyed it to Mr. Glanfield Aug. 17, 1677.§

Mr. Glanfield lived here and died in 1702, possessed of the house and lot. The house and ground were then valued at forty-five pounds. John Lander of Salem, joiner, and wife Sarah, daughter of Mr. Glanfield, conveyed their part of the house and lot to Samuel Carlton of Salem, mariner, Dec. 30, 1732.|| Mr. Glanfield's daughter Lydia married William Carkeet before 1702, and died in 1728, leaving two sons, Benjamin Carkeet of Eddinton, N. C., and Robert Carkeet of Salem, both mariners. Benjamin Carkeet conveyed his interest in the estate to Mr. Carlton Dec. 30, 1732,¶ and Robert Carkeet conveyed his part of the house and lot to Mr. Carlton on the same day. Captain Carl-ton died in the spring of 1767, possessed of the house and lot, having devised it to his children. Upon the division of his estate, this house and land around it was assigned to his son William Carlton of Salem, mariner, Nov. 18, 1767.* William Carlton removed to Boston, and, for two hundred and five pounds, conveyed the house and lot to William Cheever of Salem, cordwainer, Oct. 11, 1784.† Mr. Cheever died Nov. 29, 1786, at the age of thirty-four, possessed of the estate, which was then valued, with a larger piece of land, at two hundred and eighty-five pounds. His son, William Cheever of Boston, housewright, conveyed his interest in the house and lot to Jeremiah Bulfinch of Lynn, broker, who had married his mother, for two hundred and fifty dollars, Jan. 8, 1803.‡ For one thousand and fifty dollars, Mr. Bulfinch conveyed his interest in the house and land to Richard Manning, jr., of Salem, blacksmith, June 22, 1803,§ and, for five hundred and fifty dollars, Mr. and Mrs. Bulfinch conveyed her dower right in the estate to Mr. Manning, the house being called the "old dwelling house," on the same day.¶ As guardian of her children, William and Sally Cheever, minors, for eight hundred and ten dollars, Mrs. Bulfinch conveyed their interest in the estate to Mr. Manning on the same day.§ Mr. Manning died in 1813, possessed of the old house and lot, which were then appraised at one thousand dollars. The house disappeared while the estate was in the possession of the heirs a short time afterward.

Dr. William Bentley of Salem, in his journal for the year 1802, gives an account of the removal of this house. He probably has reference to the original portion of the house, and not to the part that was added to it in 1732 by Captain Carlton. Doctor Bentley wrote as follows:—

"June 17 [1802]. This day was taken down one of the oldest houses in Salem, which stood in Union street on the western side one third of the distance from Essex to Derby S. It faced southerly, projected far into the street on its eastern end. The door was on the western side of the front, the window central under a very high pitch of the roof. In the second story was a larger window than below filling the front pitch of the roof, as in Shakespeare's house. The roof was high & sharp. At the eastern end was a small part added with a window only on the south side for bed rooms, & then a kitchen at the western end. Each part had chimnies. The old house at the western end, & the eastern part on the western side, but the kitchen was built with a chimney near the middle chimney but detached from it. The history of this house is, That it belonged formerly to Robert Glanfield, as say his heirs when it was sold to Capt. Samuel Carlton. Upon Robert Glanfield's decease William Carkeet his Son in Law possessed it till death, & his sons Benjamin & Robert disposed of it in 1732 to Capt. Samuel Carlton for 160 Province bills. Carkeet's son Benj. lived in Edenton N C in the County of Tyrell. Capt. Carlton built the kitchen or western end, when he bought it. In the Sale the Commonages are reserved, so that it was built before the settlement of these by Law, & probably as early as 1680. It was bounded in 1732 southerly on Land of Samuel Whitefoot, westerly on land of Eliza Gerrish, Paul Kimball, Jona Archer & John Browne, easterly on Union street, & northerly on Pickering's land. Chimnies laid with clay, & frame of the house filled with clay & bricks."

Thomas Jeggles House. This was a part of the homestead of William Jeggles of Salem, shipwright, who lived in this house, and died in or before 1659. His homestead ran through to Essex street, and with the house it was valued at that time at thirty-five pounds. This part of the lot descended with the house to his son Thomas Jeggles, who, for twenty-five pounds, conveyed it to his son Thomas Jeggles, jr., of Salem April 10, 1686.* Thomas Jeggles, jr., died about 1702, when the house was in the possession of his son William Jeggles of Boston, leather-dresser. William Jeggles and his brother Thomas Jeggles of Boston, leather-dresser, conveyed the lot, for fifteen pounds, to Philip English of Salem, merchant, Jan. 7, 1708.† There were then no buildings on the lot.

John and Elizabeth Whitefoot House. Joseph Swasey owned this lot in 1672, and in consideration of love he conveyed it to his daughter Elizabeth, wife of John Whitefoot of Salem, seaman, and the heirs of their bodies Dec. 14, 1686.‡ Mr. and Mrs. Whitefoot apparently built a house on the lot, and in 1707 died possessed of the house, which was then valued at twenty-two pounds. They, also, then had a part of a wharf, adjoining the lot, which was valued at eight pounds. The house disappeared immediately afterward.

Samuel Gardner Lot. This lot of pasture land belonged to William Jeggles as early as 1659.

That part of the lot lying north of the northern dashes belonged to Elizabeth Webb in 1672; and the title to it passed to John Browne, jr., of Salem, mariner, apparently before 1677.

That part of the lot lying south of the dashes, with a house thereon, belonged to Job Hilliard of Salem, mariner, at the time of his death in 1670. The house and this part of the lot were then valued at seventy pounds. The administratrix of his estate conveyed this part of the lot, the house apparently being gone, to Mr. John Browne June 28, 1672.§ Mr. Browne died in or before 1677, when the whole lot was valued at twenty pounds. It descended to his son John Browne of Salem, mariner, who conveyed it to Samuel Gardner of Salem, merchant, Dec. 27, 1688.|| Mr. Gardner owned it until 1706.

This and the land between it and Union street was called "Jeggles' green" for many years about 1700.

Samuel Gardner House. Elder John Browne of Salem, a merchant and mariner, owned this land as early as 1660. He built a house, barn and warehouse upon the land, a part of which was devoted to an orchard. In 1683, the house was probably occupied by John Bullock. Mr. Browne died in 1685, having devised the premises to his grandson John Browne of Salem, mariner. In 1688, Samuel Shattock lived in the house; and Dec. 27th of that year Mr. Browne conveyed the same estate to Samuel Gardner of Salem, merchant.* Captain Gardner gave the estate to his son John Gardner of Salem, shipwright, by deed dated Feb. 7, 1705-6.† Capt. John Gardner conveyed the house and land, for one hundred and five pounds, to Rev. Joseph Gerrish of Wenhams Feb. 8, 1706.‡ Mr. Gerrish, for love, conveyed the estate to his son John Gerrish of Salem, shipwright, upon the latter's intermarriage with Elizabeth Higginson, Oct. 21, 1707.§ John Gerrish, for one hundred and thirty-five pounds, conveyed the estate to his father-in-law, John Higginson, sr., of Salem, merchant, May 23, 1715.|| Colonel Higginson died in 1720, having devised the estate to his daughter, Elizabeth Gerrish, who still lived in the house. Madam Gerrish probably removed the house immediately.

Samuel and Elizabeth Gardner House. Elder John Browne of Salem, a merchant and mariner, owned this land as early as 1660, and probably built this house for his son Jonathan to live in. Jonathan died in or before 1667, and afterward the house was let to various tenants, among whom was his son John in 1675, and probably Robert Hodge in 1680. Elder John Browne died in 1685, and under his will this house and lot became the property of his daughter Elizabeth, wife of Capt. Samuel Gardner, and her husband. In 1688, the house was occupied by Joseph Phippen and Richard Peters; in 1702, by widow Cox; and in 1706 by widows Cox and Henfield. For forty pounds, Samuel Gardner of Salem, yeoman, conveyed the house and land around it to Jonathan Very of Salem, cordwainer, Oct. 25, 1723,* and for sixty-two pounds, Mr. Very conveyed the same estate to Paul Kimball, formerly of Wenham, but then of Salem, currier, June 2, 1724.† Mr. Kimball died in 1755, having devised the house, shop and land around them to his wife Sarah. The estate was then valued at one hundred and thirty-six pounds, thirteen shillings and four pence. The house was gone in 1786, when Mrs. Kimball sold the lot.

Bartholomew Browne and Hannah Swinnerton House. All the land on the eastern side of Walnut street was early the estate of Elder John Browne of Salem, a merchant and mariner. Mr. Browne evidently built a house upon this lot before 1661, and let his son James Browne occupy it, from his marriage, in 1664, probably. James Browne was a merchant, and was murdered in Maryland Nov. 12, 1675. John Browne, the father, for love, conveyed to his son James' widow, Hannah Browne, the eastern part of the dwelling house, where she then lived, the yard belonging thereto; and, also, the little garden shown on the map, March 3, 1679-80.‡ Mrs. Hannah Browne subsequently married Dr. John Swinnerton, and, when his widow, for love, conveyed the little garden to her son Dr. Bartholomew Browne of Salem Sept. 24, 1695.§ John Browne, sr., died in 1685, and in his will he devised a part of his estate to the four children of his deceased son James Browne. Apparently the remainder of this house and lot was assigned to them, and subsequently released to Doctor Browne, the eldest of the children. The house was standing in 1702, but was probably gone soon afterward.

Jeggles Island. This island was granted by the town of Salem March 31, 1684: "Voated that the towne doe grant unto Thomas Gardner their Right in that Island in the South River that lyeth before Mr. Jos^e Hardy Sen^{rs} dore." Lieutenant Gardner died Nov. 16, 1695, possessed of the island. It descended to his daughter Mary, wife of Capt. William Bowditch, who conveyed all but two-twelfths of it (which interest he retained) to the members of the Union Wharf company other than himself (one of whom he was) in 1726. March 20, 1726-7, the company obtained liberty from the town to build a long wharf from the island to the present junction of Union and Derby streets, and the wharf was duly built. Pickering's coal sheds are now located upon this island, and Union street passes over its western side. The following deposition relating to the depth of water at this place is printed in the Historical Collections of the Essex Institute, volume III, page 289:—

"The Deposition of Stephen Daniels, Sen'r, aged about sixty years, and Samuel Foot, Sen'r aged about fifty seven years, testify and say that they well remember that there was a channel of water running between Jeggle Island, so called, and the Flats by Kanly and Whitefoot's lands, and that at low water it was so deep as for a canoe to pass and repass, and that there was no wading over from the spear to sd Island, but only at low Ebbs, and they further say that they assisted in carrying a ship of about two hundred tons up the sd channel, betwixt the Island and sd Flats. PURCHASE FAMILY.

BY FREDERICK MORGAN STEELE.

In the last number of the Antiquarian appeared a most interesting article on the Purchase family. Its main purport was to prove the identity of the second wife of Thomas Purchase, the early emigrant, and first settler at Merry Meeting Bay in Maine. Its author has done a service to all interested in the records of this family, which, though small, numbers among its early members many prominent men, whose attainments and energy made a lasting impress upon their generation.

As a result of considerable study, I am able to add something to the general fund of information.

Thomas Purchase, gentleman, born in England about 1577, came to America in 1628. In 1631 he again visited Boston, and while there married, first, Mary Grove, whom Sir Christopher Gardiner calls his cousin. She died in Boston Jan. 7, 1656, and he married, second, in 1657, Elizabeth Andrews, born in England in 1633, daughter of Samuel and Jane Andrews of Saco, Maine. This second wife was mother of all of his five children. It was a case of May and December, for she was twenty-four, and he a vigorous old man of eighty. He died at Lynn, Mass., May 11, 1678. His will, dated May 2, 1677, mentions wife Elizabeth and five children, and speaks of his cousin, Mr. Oliver Purchase, of the firm of Hammersmith & Co. His widow married, for her third husband, Nov. 3, 1679, John Blaney, sr., of Lynn. The children of Thomas Purchase were Thomas, Jane, Elizabeth, Abraham and Sarah. Thomas, the eldest, of Salem, married, Dec. 3, 1679, Elizabeth Williams, daughter of John Williams of Salem. On business connected with the charter, he was sent to England about 1681, and on his voyage over, or on his return, was lost at sea. He was never heard from, and was officially declared dead in 1684. The only child of this union was a son, Thomas³, born Jan. 20, 1680. The widow, Elizabeth (Williams)

Purchase, married, as his second wife, John Blaney, at Marblehead, Dec. 30, 1683.

It is of this fatherless boy, Thomas³, more particularly that I write. Born in Salem, he undoubtedly was taken to Marblehead with his mother, upon her second marriage. From this time till 1715, when he was thirty-five years of age, I lose track of him. Perhaps others may locate him. At that date he appears, a blacksmith by trade, at Wallingford, then called New Haven Village, Conn. He lived there from 1715 to 1718, and had no land record at that place. But the following record is found there, book 2, page 800: "John, son to thomas purchase, born Sept^{hr} y^e 16, 1716, and died October y^e 15. Mary, Daughter to thomas purchis, born August y^e 30, 1717." Invited by the new settlement of Enfield to remove his blacksmith shop to that place, and further induced by a grant of land, as shown by the town records of date Feb. 4, 1716-7, he took his family and became a resident for the balance of his working life at Enfield. Jan. 18, 1727, Thomas Purchase and Hannah baptized their three daughters, Mary, Hannah and Lydia.

On coming to Wallingford, they evidently brought with them their older children, Elizabeth, Jonathan and Thomas. Where Thomas, the father, lived, who the wife Hannah was, whether she was his only wife, and where they were married, are at present conundrums. The family, however, would be something like this:—

Elizabeth⁴, probably named for her father's mother, married, Dec. 26, 1728, Thomas Roe³, born July, 1708 (Peter², Hugh¹).

Jonathan⁴ owned the covenant and was baptized May 21, 1727; admitted to full communion Aug. 18, 1728; married, Nov. 10, 1734, Margaret Worthington of Springfield, Mass. "Margaret ye wife of Jonathan Purchase admitted to full communion March 6, 1737." After some years in Somers, he went to Springfield, Mass., where he set up a blacksmith shop on the west side of the river, and where his father spent his declining years. I assume that he was born about 1710.

Thomas⁴ was baptized June 22, 1735, and admitted to full communion. He married, April 7, 1738, Sarah Parsons, both being of Somers. Their children were as follows: Sarah, born Oct. 1, 1739; Editha, born April 26, 1741; Hannah, born June 6, 1743; Thomas, born Aug. 17, 1746; died Oct. 9, 1747. Sarah, the mother, "wife Thos. Purchase," died Nov. 23, 1773, aged fifty-seven. Somers church records show that Thomas Purchase died Nov. 15, 1806, aged ninety-four, making his birth date 1712.

John⁴, born in Wallingford, Conn., Sept. 16, 1716; died Oct. 15, 1716.

Mary⁴, born in Wallingford Aug. 30, 1717; baptized at ten years of age, at Wallingford, Conn., 1727.

Hannah⁴, baptized in Enfield Jan. 18, 1727; perhaps born in 1719.

Lydia⁴, perhaps born about 1721, and baptized at Enfield Jan. 18, 1727; married in Canaan, Conn., Aug. 7, 1743, Lemuel Roberts. He was born in Colchester, Conn., March 24, 1717.

Thomas Purchase³ died, in old age, at West Springfield, Mass.

The proof of this line, which eluded notice for many years, is on record in the registry of deeds, York county, Maine, in a quitclaim deed, in which "Thomas Purchase of Endfield, in the County of Hampshire and Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England, Yeoman, conveyed to Samuel Waldo of Boston May 14, 1734, lands 'which were long since granted to George Way of Dorchester in the Kingdom of England late dec'd, and my late Grandfather Thomas Purchase and by him held possessed and improved from the third year of King Charles the first by patent from the Council of Plymouth until the great Indian war on or about 1675 . . . and descending to me the s'd Thomas Purchase Grandson of Thomas Purchase late of Pejeboscott in the late Province of Maine now part of the Massachusetts Bay which said Thomas Granter to these Presents was only Son of Thomas Purchase Eldest Son of the Original Patentee and Grandfather of the Present Grantor.' "

So we have the line, beginning with the Maine settler, Thomas Purchase, and his second wife, Elizabeth Andrews (daughter of Samuel and Jane). Thomas Purchase and Elizabeth Williams, daughter of John of Salem, Thomas Purchase and Hannah ——. I have yet to find the marriage record of the last Thomas, born in 1680, to Hannah —, and that of their earlier children, which are known to me, viz.: Elizabeth, Jonathan and Thomas. Through the valuable columns of the Antiquarian perhaps later the missing links may appear.

BANCROFT—BONYTHON.

BY CHARLES E. BANKS, M. D.

The gencalogy of the Bancroft family in the Antiquarian, VI., 57-59, may be supplemented by the following data, which was collected by me years ago when I prepared the Bonython genealogy for publication in the Register:—

John³ Bonython, jr. (John², Richard¹) of the Saco, Maine, family, had among other children, Mary, living 1731, who was then the wife of John Bancroft, jr., of Lynn. The estate of Bonython, who died sometime after 1694, was not finally settled till 1732. Mary Bancroft declining to administer, her cousin, Sarah Andrews, was appointed, and in the account of the administratrix is an item of expense for "journey to Reding, Lyn & marblehead to notify some of the Heirs of John Benighton."

It may be that this Mary Bonython had previously married a Mansfield, and was the widow Mary Mansfield who became the second wife of Dea. John³ Bancroft in 1724. Evidence of the above alliance is to be found in York county, probate records, IV., 105, 125, and the Bonython line runs into a distinguished family in Cornwall.

Report of Wm. Gerrish and Nicholas Noys, commissioners. Besides above answers, John Hull would not state his reasons. Robt Adams said that Lt. Jn^o Pike brought the petition to him. Some said that Jn^o Bartlet, Jn^o Hutchinson and Jn^o Cheany brought it. Abraham Tap-pine, Wm. Sayer, Tristram Coffine and Wm. Chandler said Robert Pike was a peaceable man, and were sorry that they had given the court offence. Tho: Smith, Ant^o Mors, sr., Daniel Pearce, Stephen Grenleife, Rob^t Coker, Nic^o Batt and Rob^t Adams said that they were ignorant of his sentence, and were sorry they did it. ffrancis Plumer and Rob^t Mors said that he was a useful man, could not see how they had done amiss. Jn^o Bishop, being desired to go to the meeting house about the petition, said he could not stay; the constable said he must; he said the reasons were in the petition, and so turned his hat and went away. Edw: Woodman said that he was ignorant what words he spake, etc. Jn^o Cheany said he was his friend, and out of love to him he signed voluntarily. Sam: Plumer said he intended no affront to the court. Jn^o Emery demanded our commission and a sight of the petition, and then he would answer. Etc., etc.

Agreement of Robertt Wallis (his R mark) and William Smith with William Goodhue of Ipswich, about a meadow below Gravelly brook, etc. William Goodhue is to build them a house thirty feet long with two chimneys, and a barn forty feet long with a leanto at one end; a common right that he bought belonging to a house that he built in Hog lane now possessed by Jeferie Snelling. Witness: John R Johnsonn.

THE OLD FIREPLACE.

THE blessed old fireplace! how bright it appears
As back to my boyhood I gaze
O'er the desolate waste of the vanishing years,
From the gloom of these lone latter days.
Its lips are as ruddy, its heart is as warm,
To my fancy, to-night, as of yore,
When we cuddled around it, and smiled at the storm
As it showed its white teeth at the door.

I remember the apple that wooed the red flame
Till the blood bubbled out of its cheek,
And the passionate popcorn that smothered its shame
Till its heart split apart with a shriek;
I remember the Greeks and the Trojans who fought
In their shadowy shapes on the wall,
And the yarn, in thick tangles, my fingers held taut
While my mother was winding the ball.

I remember the cat that lay cozy and curled
By the jamb, where the flames flickered high,
And the sparkles—the fireflies of winter—that whirled
Up the flue as the wind whistled by;
I remember the bald-headed, bandy-legged tongs,
That frowned like a fiend in my face,
In a fury of passion, repeating the wrongs
They had borne in the old fireplace.

NOTES.

WHEREAS Information has been made to the Merchants and Traders of this Town, that fundry Perfons belonging to Bofton, have fent Quantities of English Goods into this Town for Sale, which were imported fince the general Agreement of the Merchants (not to import fuch Goods) took Place:—We therefore, the Merchants and Traders of the Town of Salem, at a Meeting at the King's Arms this 30th Day of June, Anno Domini 1769, do publicly declare our Difapprobation thereof, and refolve, that we will do all in our Power to difcourage the Sale of fuch Goods, by not purchafing any of them ourfelves, or fuffering any Perfon for or under us to purchafe them. We think (in Juftice to thofe Merchants and Traders who have ftrictly adhered to their Agreement) we ought to inform all Perfons, that the Shop lately kept by Mr. John Gool, now tended by John Norris in this Town, is now owned and supplied by Merchants in Boston, who have taken the Advantage of others not sending for Goods, to import double the Quantity of Goods which they did at other Seasons, expecting to make their Fortunes, while others were sinking theirs for the Benefit of their Country. We hereby caution all Persons, who have the Interest of their Country at Heart, against purchasing Goods of any Persons who come from Boston and offer Goods to sale, such as Tea, Loaf-Sugar, Crates of Earthen Ware, etc., as we have great Reason to suspect, that those Goods are sent out of that Town, because of the Discouragements the Owners meet with in the Sale of them by the Friends of Liberty there. We also request the Town of Marblehead to join with their Neighbours (for the general Good) not to send for any more Goods, contrary to the Interest and Meaning of the Agreements entered into by the Inhabitants of the Town of Boston and other neighbouring Towns, which Request, if still refused, we must desire all who are real Friends to their Country, properly to take Notice of. We also request those Traders in this Town, who (it is well known) have deviated from their Contract, that they would (for the future) strictly adhere thereto; for it is determined at this Meeting, that we will make publick the Names of all those who shall hereafter break through their Engagements by purchasing Goods of those who have not subscribed the Agreements, or by any other Way.

All GENTLEMEN of NOTE, in their respective Towns, are desired to caution their Families and Neighbours from purchasing at the abovementioned Shop, or of any traveling Traders who are sent out to sell Goods imported since the Agreements aforementioned.

452. Relative to the "telegraph" along the coast of Massachusetts a century ago, is the following advertisement in the Salem Gazette of Sept. 14, 1802:—

Telegraphie.

MERCHANTS and others concerned in Navigation are respectfully informed, That the subscriber will re-commence the operation of his Telegraphy by the first of October next.

All persons who may wish to obtain by the Telegraphy, or by the Telegraphy and by the Mail, first intelligence of arrivals at the Vineyard—or of arrivals at foreign ports—or who may wish to pass orders directing a vessel at the Vineyard to fail from thence to any particular port—or to wait there for further orders—or who may wish to learn the contents of a cargo—or whether a friend is on board of a particular vessel here, &c &c. may be accommodated.

The terms are lodged (for the convenience of all concerned) at the Post Offices in Boston, Salem, Newburyport, Portsmouth and Portland, and will be lodged at the Post Office of any other port, if desired. Agents are appointed in all the ports above-named, to accommodate such as may wish for immediate intelligence from the Vineyard.

The terms contain different rates of fees.—If a man applies for first intelligence of an arrival at the Vineyard, by the 20th of September inst. or three weeks before the day of such arrival, HE shall have such intelligence at the lowest rate.

An applicant has nothing to pay until the Proprietor or his Agents shall announce first intelligence of an arrival or other first intelligence desired.

Masters of Vessels will enter their arrivals at the Vineyard free of any expense, that the Proprietor (and the owners, if they please) may have immediate knowledge of such arrivals.

JONATHAN GROUT, Patentee.

Boston, Sept. 14, 1802.

There are hills in Plymouth, Marshfield, and perhaps other places, that are marked on current maps "Telegraph" hills, which seem to indicate a flag system.

Concerning the introduction of the modern telegraph, the following news item is copied from the Salem Register of Oct. 28, 1847:—

TELEGRAPH TO SALEM. The Mercantile Journal learns that Mr. James Eddy, of N. York, the proprietor of the contemplated line of magnetic telegraph between Boston and Salem, has concluded a contract with Mr. Green Howe, to procure the poles and set them, and to oversee the building of the line. Mr. Howe has had much experience in building lines of telegraph, and was called from his duties on the New York line, to commence on this new work. He commenced operations on Monday morning, and, under his supervision, it is expected that the work will be completed in a most thorough manner.

The following item, from the Salem Observer for July 22, 1826, shows how early the telephone was proposed:—

In the last number of the Revue Encyclopedique, there is an account of a very extraordinary proposal, viz. to communicate verbal intelligence in a few moments to vast distances, and this not by symbols as in the telegraph, but by the human voice. The plan originated with Mr Dick, an Englishman, who states that the human voice may be made intelligible at the distance of 25 or 30 miles.

EDITORIAL.

This number completes volume ten of The Essex Antiquarian. There have been published during the year the wills proved in Essex county in 1661 and 1662; the gravestone inscriptions in the town of Groveland (formerly the parish of East Bradford) before 1800; the genealogies of Essex county families from Bowden to Bradford inclusive; the record of the Essex county Revolutionary soldiers and sailors from Boardman to Bond; abstracts of the old Norfolk county records, 1671 and 1672; Ipswich quarterly court records and files, 1652-1654; and miscellaneous genealogical notes from the records from Blackmore to Boothby.

To this number, as it completes ten volumes, is added a subject index covering the entire ten years that The Antiquarian has been published.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

A BRANCH OF THE CALDWELL FAMILY TREE. By Charles T. Caldwell, M. D. Washington, D. C., 1906. This is a record of Thompson Baxter Caldwell and his wife, Mary Ann (Ames) Caldwell, of West Bridgewater, Mass., and is issued in a pamphlet of eighteen pages. This Caldwell family was of the Rhode Island branch.

HISTORY AND GENEALOGY OF THE PERLEY FAMILY. By M. V. B. Perley. Salem, Mass., 1906. This is the title of the latest addition to the larger works of its kind. The labor of several persons, covering a long period of time, has been the cost of this, as it is of all worthy books of the sort. A complete and accurate history and genealogy of a large and scattered family cannot be searched out and arranged easily or quickly. The following of clues and digestion of evidence involves months and years of time. The first attempt at the collection and arrangement of such information of the Perley family was made in the year 1785.

The Perley History is not only complete in its general features, but much biographical matter ordinarily esteemed of secondary importance is included; and the descendants of the daughters are extensively given. The writer knows how careful and thorough the compiler and his assistant* have been all through the difficult task; and the result in every way must be a great satisfaction not only to themselves but to all interested in this extensive family.

A more interesting family history has not been published.

The volume contains 770 octavo pages, 78 pages being a comprehensive index in small type. There are, also, 65 portraits on inserted plates. In all, there are 281 engravings, portraits,—autographs, views of homesteads, coats-of-arms, gravestones, maps, monuments, and miscellaneous subjects. The frontispiece is a portrait of Hon. Ira Perley, chief-justice of the supreme court of New Hampshire, a native of Boxford, in this county, and probably the ablest and most distinguished of the name.

Bound in half sheep and half cloth, the price of the volume is five dollars. If sent by mail, forty cents must be added to pay packing and postage. It can be sent by express at the expense of the purchaser. Address M. V. B. Perley, 22 Cabot street, Salem, Mass.

*The compiler's daughter, Miss Edith F. Perley, whom justice will not permit us to pass in silence, though her modesty has caused the elimination from the book of the credit for her part in the work.
